Shattered wreckage of locomotives blocks CPR main line 55 miles north of Calgary

VICTIMS LEAP CLEAR, DIE IN EXPLOSION

Flaming Train Collision Kills Two Crewmen

BOWDEN, Alta. (CP) — A tank car of liquid butane still was burning today after two freight trains collided head-on Tuesday night, killing two trainmen who had jumped from the engine seconds before the impact.

Police said the collision about 55 miles north of Calgary started fires in one of the engines, the tank car, two box cars carrying kegs of beer, one carrying lumber, an empty flatcar and one loaded with fertilizer.

The victims, identified as engineman A. E. Lewis, 48, and fireman Colin Gradley, 42, both of Calgary, jumped clear of their northbound train just before the collision but were burned to death in a sheet of flame that extended 500 feet from the tank car of butane.

The freight train collision started a fire in the first engine unit of the northbound train, which was tilted into the air by the second engine unit.

Just behind the engines was a box car carrying beer kegs which punctuated the crash scene with persistent, though relatively harmless explosions as the shaken-up beer blew out of its containers.

Firemen and rescue workers concentrated on the burning tank car carrying 6,000 barrels of butane.

A Canadian Pacific Railway spokesman said today normal rail service would resume Thursday. A southbound dayliner between Edmonton and Calgary had not reached Red Deer at the time of the crash. Passengers were being bussed between Red Deer and Calgary.

Traffic on Highway 2 resumed after RCMP had diverted cars to country roads Tuesday night.

People evacuated from nearby homes after the crash returned when it was learned a tank car was carrying phosphate fertilizer, not ammonium phosphate which would have been poisonous if it had ignited.

Four persons were slightly injured in the crash and released from hospital. There were five crew members on each train.

The collision was the second incident in fewer than four hours on the same line.

400,000 Flee East Pakistan To India Towns

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The India - Pakistan diplomatic war was on the boil today as the number of refugees fleeing to India from Pakistan was reported to have topped the 400,000 mark.

An official report issued in Calcutta, capital of India's West Bengal state bordering East Pakistan, said more than 300,000 persons had sought refuge in Bengal state alone since the central Pakistan government cracked down on secessionist moves in East Pakistan March 25.

No official figures were available for the number of East Pakistanis entering other Indian states and territories bordering East Pakistan on its eastern side but observers estimated it must be around 100,000.

The Press Trust of India news agency reported heavy fighting in the Sylhet region in the northeast, which it said was almost entirely under secessionist control.

India turned down Tuesday night a Pakistani demand that it remove East Pakistanis who have assumed control of the Pakistan deputy high commission in Calcutta, proclaiming that it now represented the so-called Republic of Bangla Desh (Bengali nation), proclaimed by secessionist leaders.

DEMANDS REMOVAL

The Pakistan high commissioner in New Delhi, Sajjad Hyder, who demanded the removal, was told that the affair was an "internal matter" for Pakistan.

A. K. Ray, joint secretary in the foreign ministry, said the Indian government had no objection to a senior member of the Pakistan high commission in New Delhi going to Calcutta to take up the post of deputy high commissioner.

Mahdi Masud was named by the high commission to replace Hossain Ali, an East Bengali, who declared last Sunday that he and his staff had switched allegiance to Bangla Desh.

Pakistan also accused India of organizing the hijacking of an Indian airliner to Pakistan in January in order to bring about a confrontation between the two countries and strengthen separatist tendencies within Pakistan.

India banned flights by Pakistani aircraft over the 1,000 miles of Indian territory separating East and West Pakistan after the Fokker Friendship aircraft was hijacked to Lahore Jan. 30 while on a flight over Kashmir.

PACIFIC RIM PARK OFFICIALLY NAMED

CALGARY (CP)—A new national park on the west coast of Vancouver Island will be called Pacific Rim National Park, it was announced today.

R. P. Malis, western regional director of the National and Historic Parks Branch, said in a prepared statement the park will include Long Beach, the Effingham Islands and the West Coast Trail.

Malis said the park, in French, would be called Parc National Pacific Rim.

1,800 Delegates To Pick NDP Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,800 delegates massed today to select a new NDP leader and assemble a policy platform bridging heated controversy on issues ranging from nationalism and nationalization to Quebec's problems.

Under gray skies, just across a road from the old Coliseum where the party was born almost 10 years ago, the NDP faithful assembled without the fanfare or high-spirited fervor usually associated with North American leadership contests.

The note of single-minded dedication to business was emphasized early today with approval for an amendment to the agenda that will bring delegates to Parliament Hill Thursday to protest against plant closures and high unemployment.

Al Campbell of London, Ont., proposed the amendment, saying he was being laid off soon by Eaton Automotive Corp. He is a delegate representing a local of the United Auto Workers, one of the big trade union delegations expected to have a major impact on convention policy, particularly in rebuffing left-wing policy as espoused by the militant Waffle group.

Today's policy discussion concerns farming, fishing and labor.

FIVE SEEK LEADERSHIP

Five candidates seek to replace T. C. Douglas, the former CCF Saskatchewan premier who led the New Defocratic Party at its founding in 1961.

The new leader will be elected Saturday.

In the running are David Lewis, 61, now deputy to Mr. Douglas; Edward Broadbent, 35, MP for Oshawa-Whitby; John Harney, 40, York University professor; Frank Howard, 45, MP for the British Columbia riding of Skeena; and James Laxer, 29, Queen's University lecturer from Kingston.

Mr. Lewis is widely expected to lead on the first ballot.

MAY SHIFT VOTES

But as delegates shift their votes on succeeding ballots, the other candidates give themselves good odds to win.

The delegates are to meet all the candidates at a bearpit session tonight.

Rising Waters Threaten Montreal Island Residents

MONTREAL (CP) — Floodwaters along the northern side of Montreal Island rose a further two feet overnight and civil protection officials warned that with forecast intermittent rain today the situation could reach critical levels by nightfall.

Specially-trained armed forces personnel and Quebec government engineers moved in Tuesday to areas where some families have been evacuated and hundreds of homes partially flooded. Many buildings in inundated sections along rivers and lakes are unoccupied summer cottages.

However, at least 50 families have had to leave their homes in a handful of hard-hit suburban communities. Further evacuations were threatened today.

Hardest hit were low-lying communities on Laval Island, adjacent to Montreal Island. However suburban Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Chateauguay and Ile Perrot have also been severely affected by the flooding that was the result of warm temperatures after a record winter of snowfall in the region.

Communities north and west of the city have been threatened by rising waters from the Ottawa River since late Monday.

OTTAWA RISES

On Ile Perrot, west of Montreal Island in the junction of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers, a flood control centre said levels were approaching the danger point.

Armed forces advisors and provincial engineers were advising residents and local civil protection units in the various areas affected on how best to stop the rising waters.

Some attempts were being made to construct dikes while homeowners began piling sandbags.

The situation this year is being described as the worse in at least a decade.

COMPUTER SEEKS DATA-PUNCH PAL

MONTREAL (UPI)—The Sun Life Assurance Company recently assured its policyholders their letters would be answered by a human being, not a computer.

Shortly thereafter, the company said Tuesday, the firm received a packet of punch cards, which were translated by their computer. It was a letter of sympathy to their computer from computer "001-001-001" in Don Mills, Ont., expressing sorrow that "life for you may not be as full and rewarding as it is for me," and inviting the lonely machine to become a data-punch pal.

Calgary Schools Closed by Strike

CALGARY (CP) — More than 78,000 students were forced out on the streets today as 3,900 teachers officially went on strike in a contract dispute with the Calgary public school board.

It was the first teachers' strike in the city's history and closed 184 schools while keeping more than 1,000 non-teaching employees out of work.

Negotiations have not resumed between the board and Alberta Teachers Association following the collapse of mediation talks Tuesday.

However, Henry Libke of Edmonton, conciliation officer for the board of industrial relations, was scheduled to hold separate meetings with both sides later today in an attempt to bring them together.

Meanwhile, officials of Calgary's separate school board said they cannot accommodate children from public schools, even temporarily.

More than 21,000 separate students are continuing classes because their 975 teachers settled on a two-year contract in February.

Laird Warns Russia Adding ICBM

NEW YORK (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today recent intelligence evidence "confirms the sobering fact that the Soviet Union is involved in a new and apparently extensive" intercontinental ballistic missile-construction program.

At the same time, he warned that if there is no "convincing progress" at U.S.-Soviet talks to limit strategic arms, the United States may have to take what he termed offsetting action to preserve "the sufficiency of our strategic forces."

"This new ICBM construction effort, coupled with additional momentum in the strategic defence area — all clearly planned months ago — must be of major concern," Laird said.

Lon Nol Agrees To Stay in Office

PHNOM PENH (Reuter) — Cambodian Premier Lon Nol has agreed to form a new government after tendering his resignation, official sources said today.

Gen. Nol offered his resignation Tuesday to Chief of State Cheng Heng for health reasons, but it was not immediately accepted.

The sources said Cheng Heng had urged Nol to reconsider his resignation and gave him three days to put together a new government. They added that Nol agreed.

A joint session of the Senate and National Assembly voted today to promote Nol to the country's first marshal of the army.

Nol is partly paralysed from a stroke he suffered Feb. 1.

Manila Court: Mendoza Guilty

MANILA (Reuter) — Bolivian painter Benjamin Mendoza was convicted Tuesday of attempting to kill Pope Paul at Manila International Airport Nov. 26.

Judge Pedro Bautista of the suburban Pasay city court sentenced Mendoza to imprisonment from two years, four months and one day to four years and two months.

Monarchy End Gradual —Marceau

(Times News Services)

RIMOUSKI, Que. — A Quebec member of the parliamentary committee on the constitution says he doubts the committee will recommend "the aboliton of the monarchy right now."

But Gilles Marceau, Liberal member of Parliament for Lapointe, said he thinks the committee's report will recommend reforms leading in the "direction" of abolishing the monarchy.

In an earlier interview, Marceau denied published reports that the committee was ready to recommend immediate abolition of the monarchy in Canada. "No one knows for sure what will be in the report," he said.

"We are still at the stage of public hearings," he added.

'LEAKED' NEWS

Published reports from Quebec City said Marceau and three other members of the committee leaked news of the planned recommendation at a routine hearing in Quebec City Monday night.

Marceau said Tuesday no member of the committee has declared what the report will recommend.

However, he said:

"I did tell a journalist Monday night in Quebec that I was personally in favor of abolition of the monarchy, but that was only a personal opinion."

The published reports quoted Warren Allmand, Liberal MP for Montreal—Notre-Dame-de-Grace, as saying "three-quarters of the members of the joint committee are against the monarchy."

Neither Allmand nor other members of the committee could be reached for comment Tuesday.

The committee, composed of both senators and MPs, is currently holding public hearings for views on the constitution.

Marceau said he was not sure when the report would be presented as it would depend on how much time the members had to spend in Parliament.

Course Set

CAIRO (AP) — The Soviet Union and Egypt said today they have charted a joint course of action on the Middle East crisis but did not spell it out. "The two sides have agreed on joint steps for the future to return the Middle East situation to normal," they said in a joint communique.

FIRST REPORT TO CONGRESS

Prisoners Tortured

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee has heard for the first time testimony that U.S. soldiers participated in or witnessed the torture of prisoners - of - war in their custody in South Vietnam.

Larry Rottmann, a spokesman for Vietnam Veterans Against the War, told the House of Representatives foreign affairs subcommittee Tuesday he personally knew of skin-stripping, pole-hanging and water torture of Vietnamese soldiers captured by Americans.

"Incidents like My Lai are not isolated," he said. "They are the result of de facto military policy in Indochina."

The session before the subcommittee amounted to the kind of atrocity hearing war opponents in and out of Congress have demanded of formal congressional committees but had not received.

Rottmann, who said he was a lieutenant in Vietnam with the 25th Infantry Division, also detailed a

. . . NDP CONVENTION

The ownership debate likely will be spurred by the party's nationalistic, left-wing Waffle group which sought unsuccessfully in pre-convention committee to send to the convention proposals for immediate nationalization of resource industries and financial institutions.

The Waffle also wanted a long-term NDP goal of public ownership of all major corporations in manufacturing, resources, financial, transportation and commodity distribution sectors.

Instead, the party's resolutions committee approved for convention debate proposals for government planning in the private and public sectors, and a halt to foreign take-overs of Canadian industry.

On the Quebec issue, delegates from the province battled in pre-convention committees for a clear statement of Quebec's right to self-determination.

APPROVE COMPROMISE

In a compromise, with objections from English-speaking delegates, the committee approved a resolution that would send the issue to a party bicultural council for study, after outlining the points in dispute.

The points are whether Quebec should itself decide to separate or not, the range of relationships that can be discussed and whether Quebec should negotiate on the basis of parity with English Canada.

The decision to send the issue to the council is aimed at avoiding a floor fight on the questions that could have led to a walkout by Quebec delegates.

Mr. Douglas will be honored by party colleagues and show business personalities Thursday night.

Leadership candidates will speak to the convention Friday night—but only briefly.

Organizers say they will each have just 15 minutes for a speech and demonstration by supporters.

The party is supplying a band that will play selections of the candidates' choice.

Tricky Tax Laws Considered in Hummel Case

The intricacies of tax laws relating to capital gains and taxable income dominated trial proceedings Tuesday afternoon in the case of lawyer David Hummel, charged with tax evasion.

A tax expert from Vancouver, Paterson Thorsteinsson, said the section gives the revenue department more trouble than any other part of the Act.

"And for every case that comes to court, there must be another 75 settled out of court or on which the taxpayer simply gives up and pays," Thorsteinsson said.

Thorsteinsson, who worked once with the legal branch of the national department of revenue, is legal tax adviser to Hummel and his wife, Patricia.

The expert said he had always been an advocate of some sort of capital gains tax in Canada. He agreed with the defence that his position was essentially one of conflict with the department of national revenue.

"It is the duty of the department of national revenue to collect as much as they can, just as it is the duty of a lawyer to collect as much as he can for a client who has suffered a whiplash injury," suggested Spencer.

"That's right," Thorsteinsson replied.

His work with the four-family partnership in the period involved in the charges included "shaking out individual rate bases," he said. This involved spreading legal ownership of the group's enterprises around the husbands and wives of the four families, with the object of getting as much exemption from taxes as possible.

"It is legitimate . . . and common to spread ownership around among people who in tax terms are strangers to each other," he said.

At another point in his testimony, the tax expert said: "The hole structure of the Income Tax Act is artificiality."

The Crown's charges centre partly around tax exemptions claimed by Hummel for a $6,600 annual salary paid to his wife and for $100 per month allowed him by the group for use of his home as an office in which business was conducted.

Testimony indicated these were legitimate claims.

This was supported by Michael Warren, a Vancouver lawyer whose business break-up with the accused in 1964 touched off the turbulent period involved in the charges.

Warren said Mrs. Hummel took a more active interest in the group's affairs than did any of the other three wives.

"I was astonished that she was always with him," Warren said. "They spent hours in their little grey Volkswagen, driving around the city looking at development sites.

"She was a sort of sounding board for him. She had built-in sensors, better judgment. He relied on her very much, and she gave him credibility, rounded him off a bit."

Hummel, visibly shaken by the repeated references to his wife's role, also heard his claim supported that the house was to a large extent also a place of business.

"A cast of thousands . . . the house was often in chaos, people wandering in and out, mostly members of the group, always discussing business," Warren said.

Under re-examination by the Crown, Warren said meetings had been held at his apartment, too, but not so often. He said Hummel was the acknowledged leader of the group.

Warren had received no allowance for use of his home as an office, and his wife had received no salary. Asked whether his wife had shown any interest in the group's activities, Warren replied: "Not that which I thought she should."

Warren also testified the group was "often behind in its corporate housekeeping, because we were all overworked, busy developing projects . . . many of which came to nothing."

Also heard Tuesday was testimony by Insp. William James Neill of the RCMP commercial fraud section in Vancouver.

Robbery Story Just That . . . a Story

A 20-year-old city man who concocted a story of armed robbery because he was short of money was fined $500 today in court when he pleaded guilty to public mischief.

Judge William Ostler fined William R. Pearson, 1055 Pendergast, who had told Saanich police Tuesday evening he had been robbed at gunpoint of $87.

Saanich detective Frank Briers said the accused phoned the department about 6 p.m. and said he had been frightened by a youth with a rifle while walking along the railroad tracks behind Growers Wine Co. winery on Quadra.

When police went to the scene, Pearson led them to a point 300 yards west of Quadra near the tracks where his personal papers were spread over the ground.

Briers said Pearson was wearing pants and a shirt and a vest that had slash marks over them.

The accused told the investigating officers a youth about 16 with short white hair and a rifle ordered him to take off his jacket and then slash his own clothes with a stock knife he had.

Pearson, Briers said, told officers the youth slashed the jacket and took $87 from it before returning it to him.

At the police station, Pearson wrote a five-page statement describing the alleged robbery before officers told him they didn't believe the story.

Pearson changed his story, Briers added, when he learned he could be charged with public mischief.

His explanation for the story, the policeman said, was that he was short $50 of his share of rent and he thought this was a good way to get around paying.

Briers said 10 officers were involved spending two hours at the scene of the simulated robbery and added that he and another detective were five hours on the case.

Ping-Pong Diplomacy Makes Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — Ping-pong diplomacy made a graceful debut here Tuesday night when Hsu Chung-fu, Chinese charge d'affaires, entertained a group from the Canadian Table Tennis Association at a relaxed, informal dinner.

Roy Gannon, executive director of the association, said the four guests "couldn't be happier" with the way the evening went.

"If relations come to this level, we have something to look forward to," he said in an allusion to the exchange of diplomatic recognition between Canada and mainland China last fall.

DETROIT (AP) — The president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association says Chinese table tennis players have accepted an invitation to visit the United States "in the near future" and he will discuss the invitation today with President Nixon.

torture known as the "half a chopper ride." He said this entailed pushing one prisoner out of a high-flying helicopter so others would talk.

Several others in the hearing room also gave brief descriptions of what they had seen, including alleged chopping heads off dead soldiers and withholding medical treatment for severely wounded prisoners until they talked to interrogators.

Rottman said he was taught two of the torture techniques during officers training at Fort Benning, Ga. He said the instruction, which included pole-hanging and water-torture, was part of a survival course in which trainees were put in a simulated prison camp and torture techniques were demonstrated.

Representative James Fulton (Rep. Pa.) told Rottman unless he could give dates, places, men involved and commanding officers who condoned the torture, his testimony was only hearsay.

CHESTER RONNING OFF TO PEKING

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Former Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning leaves this week for Peking, China, where he will be the guest of Premier Chou En-lai.

Ronning, now a resident of Camrose, Alta., last week hailed U.S. President Nixon's decision to ease travel and currency restrictions into mainland China.

The retired diplomat will be accompanied on the month-long trip to his birthplace in China by a television team of Peter Stursberg and cameraman Steven Griffiths.

Flu Believed Factor In Eight City Deaths

Private as well as public hospitals are restricting visitors to reduce the threat of flu infection, particularly among elderly patients.

Dr. Donald Shorting told fellow members of Greater Victoria's metro health board Tuesday he understood flu was a factor in eight of nine recent deaths among elderly patients at one nursing home. He did not name the nursing home.

The board's senior medical officer, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, said there wasn't much information available on the spread of influenza but he had word of one nursing home which had seven cases.

He advised nursing homes to follow the lead of the public hospitals in banning or discouraging visits to patients.

The type of flu circulating this year seems more severe and to last longer, Whitbread said, but he didn't think it could be termed an epidemic.

Principal Explains Why Paper Destroyed

Mount Douglas Senior Secondary principal Jack Lowther issued a statement today on a recent decision to confiscate and destroy an edition of a student newspaper.

Lowther said the publication contained, among other things, a cartoon which depicted President Nixon in bed with his wife, "and from the position of the feet there wasn't much doubt about what they were doing."

Not all the articles were in bad taste, the principal said. There was some very good writing.

"There are some pretty bright kids on the newspaper staff, they just went off in the wrong direction."

Lowther's statement:

"The editors did not follow the procedure which had been set up; that is, before the newspaper is printed the copy is to go before an advisory board consisting of three students and three teachers.

"A reading of the newspaper indicates why this policy was not adhered to. It is an understatement to say that some of the art, pictures and language used were not befitting a high school newspaper.

"As principal of Mount Douglas I feel I have the reasons and authority to destroy this edition of the newspaper. Following my action I received the support of the staff and students' council.

"We are attempting to make Mount Douglas a school that the students are proud to attend and where their parents can send them with confidence."

Earlier, a dayliner carrying passengers to Calgary from Edmonton collided with a car at a level-crossing near Lacombe, 45 miles north of here.

The driver of the car, not yet identified, was reported in serious condition in hospital. No one was reported injured on the dayliner.

Police said the freight train crash occurred after the northbound train, hauling 56 cars, missed a scheduled stop at Bowden, a half-mile south from the accident scene. It had been scheduled to stop to let the 52-car southbound train pass.

3 Businesses Have Tax Cut

Saanich's first court of revision for the new business tax resulted in three reductions Tuesday of annual rental values.

The tax of 5 per cent, less the business licence, is levied against the assessed rental value. Businesses may appeal to the court of revision in the same way as residents can appeal property assessments.

The annual rental value of Longhorn Restaurant was reduced to $3,600 from $5,820. Q-Line Plumbing and Heating was lowered to $3,075 from $3,750 and Inter-Island Construction was cut to $2,100 from $2,400.

Two other appeals were turned down, one was tabled and two companies withdrew appeals.

The court of revision is to conclude its hearing of appeals tonight.

public school teachers operate them.

A conciliation officers' report, rejected in February by the teachers, recommended a 33-hour work week including 25 hours of classroom instruction.

The teachers are askingg for 20 hours of classroom instruction for teachers of grades 1, 10, 11 and 12 and 22½ hours for teachers of Grades 2 to 9 inclusive.

The dispute went to mediation after the teachers rejected the conciliation report.

G. M. Burden, chairman of the school board, told a news conference Tuesday that trustees cannot agree to letting teachers formulate policy on working conditions.

Mr. Burden also said the board could not continue in mediation talks unless teacher negotiators "change their position appreciably" on a five-point plan presented by board negotiators to settle the eight-month dispute.

The conciliation recommendation, approved unanimously by the school board, called for a pay increase of 6.04 per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971 and 6.32 per cent, starting Jan. 1, 1972.

The last contract expired Dec. 331, 1970 and provided for wages of between $5,000 and $13,250 depending on qualifications, experience and position in the school.

'Sorry Ma, I Forgot the Bread'

By ART WRIGHT

KINGSTON (CP) — Ricky Nelson Abrams rubbed his sleepy eyes as he stepped off the bus at the nearby deserted Kingston bus terminal.

The time was 3:14 a.m. Tuesday and for 13-year-old Ricky, it was the end of a three-day excursion during which he ran away from home, sneaked into the United States illegally, hitch-hiked 410 miles to Boston, bought a scalper's ticket to watch the final game of the Boston Bruins-Montreal Canadiens Stanley Cup playoff and got a free bus ride home.

He did it all on a budget of $3.70 which his mother gave him Saturday morning to get a haircut and buy bread and meat on the way home.

Ricky, with the $3.70 tucked safely in the pocket of his corduroy pants, left his bicycle downtown and started hitch-hiking out Highway 2 toward the Ivy Lea bridge leading into the U.S.

It wasn't until Ricky reached the U.S. customs office at the bridge that he ran into his first major problem.

"I didn't have no I.D.," he said, "so they told me to go back."

He said he started to retreat but as soon as the officer took his eyes off him, Ricky dashed into the nearby wood and circled around the customs office.

Hitch-Hiking Trip to Boston And a Bus Ride Back to Kingston

Back on the road again, Rickey got his directions mixed up and wound up going northeast to Alexandria Bay rather than south.

"Some goof told me to go that way by mistake," he said.

Saturday night he arrived in Watertown, N.Y., where he spent most of the night sitting in a restaurant drinking coffee. He telephoned his mother and told her where he was and that he was going to Boston to see the hockey game.

"She told me to start hitch-hiking home right away," Ricky said, "but I just kept goin' the other way."

He made good time hitch-hiking on the New York Freeway and the Massachusetts Turnpike and arrived in Boston early Sunday afternoon, "about half an hour before game time."

At Boston Garden, Ricky encountered another boy "about 12 years old or so" who asked him if he wanted to buy a ticket. The boy said he had found the ticket but Ricky didn't bother to ask him where. He just whittled him down to $1.50 for the ticket and disappeared through the turnstiles.

"I thought the kid was crazy when he let me have it for only $1.50."

Ricky witnessed one of the biggest upsets in recent National Hockey League history when the Canadiens beat the defending champion Bruins 4-2 to win the best-of-seven series four games to three.

"I wanted to see Boston win," Ricky said. "I hate the Canadiens."

After the game it started raining and Ricky sought help at a police station where the officers started asking him where he came from in Canada, how he got into the U.S, and how he got in to see the game.

"I told them everything," Ricky said, "and a lot of them got a big laugh out of it.

"One of the cops, named Lou, got me a hamburger and a milkshake and dried my coat. He slipped me $3 later.

"Two of the cops were going to take me home to their place to spend the night. Then a big fat cop, named Bob, got hold of the Canadian consulate and they arranged for me to stay in a home overnight. The cops were really good to me."

The next day, a man from the consulate came to see Ricky and gave him a $24.60 bus ticket, $5.50 in cash and a registered letter to give to customs officials on his way back into Canada.

He boarded the bus Monday afternoon for the 12-hour trip home.

His mother Nelda, was at the Kingston terminal to meet him Tuesday morning when he stepped off the bus.

"Sorry, Ma," he said, "I forgot the bread. . . ."

School Grant To Victoria Up $1.8M

Provincial grants to the Greater Victoria school district for operating expenses will rise by $1.8 million this year while the mill rate in the district rises by 1.4 mills to 31.98.

The figures were released today as the education department set the local contribution for shareable operating expenses at 24.5 mills, up from 24.1 last year.

Total grant to the Greater Victoria school district will be $10.5 million, including grants for college operation.

A grant of $2.3 million to the Sooke school district will mean a mill rate decrease of 1.73 mills to 26.74 mills.

Saanich district will get $1.5 million and will have a mill rate of 33.1, up 1.1 from last year.

The basic levy of 24.5 mills which is applied on a province-wide basis under the school finance formula will leave an excess of 7.48 mills in Greater Victoria school district.

This 7.48 mills includes the costs of local share of debt and capital expenditures and the full cost of any operating expenditures above the amounts eligible for provincial grants.

The over-all average mill rate on a province-wide basis is 31.88 mills, up from 31.81 mills last year.

Education Minister Donald Brothers said the increase in the homeowner grant from $160 to $170 this year will mean a majority of taxpayers should have a reduction in local school taxes.

The government has provided $172 million for operating grants to school districts for elementary and secondary schools and another $14 million for colleges.

Colored Notices Run Royal Yacht

By PAT DUFOUR

The only admiral in the world who is still expected to captain a ship wouldn't have it any other way.

Rear-Admiral R. J. Trowbridge, captain of the royal yacht Britannia, admits "there's no other job I would like better than the one I have."

How did he get the job?

"I was fortunate enough to be the chap who drew the short straw — or the long one — and drew the prize."

Is skippering the 413-foot royal yacht any different than serving on one of the many warships he's had since he joined the Royal Navy as a boy seaman 35 years ago?

Quite a bit.

"You have to be a little more careful coming into harbor. She's in rather better condition than most ships. We have to watch that expensive paint job."

You also have to watch the orders.

At a press conference, rarely given by members of the royal household, Trowbridge admitted he had to change his ways when he took over command of Britannia.

He had to give up barking commands.

Instead, the ships' routine is planned to the last second with any changes being relayed to the crew through red, white and blue notices posted at various stations.

"You can't have the royal family subjected to hands falling in for something all the time.

"When they (the crew) see a red notice they know they have to move pretty damn quick."

How are the 225 men who serve in Britannia chosen?

"All the officers serve two years, the same as in other RN ships. The ratings are on trial for a couple of years. If they measure up they can become part of the permanent yacht service."

What about her skipper?

"When the safety of a monarch is at stake, the chap has to have a wealth of experience behind him."

Britannia's ruddy-faced skipper has that. He's served on the China stations, took part in Allied landings in North Africa, Sicily and Italy; did duty on the East Indies station and in the Far East.

He's also adept at holding press conferences without disclosing a single crumb of information about the royal family.

Queen Marks 45th Birthday

WINDSOR, England (AP) — The Queen is 45 years old today, a birthday many persons don't know.

Official celebration of the Queen's birthday comes this year June 12.

The Queen planned only a simple family party today, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said.

Calls Flood Yacht Exchange

The telephone operator aboard the royal yacht Britannia is the busiest man in town.

Since the Times announced Tuesday that invitations to the yacht's crew could be made by phoning 386-8323, the ship's exchange has been inundated with calls.

No one is complaining, not even the operator.

GIs, Officers Fight Own War

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Fragging" incidents among United States troops in Vietnam doubled in 1970 over the previous year, the Pentagon disclosed Tuesday.

The Pentagon released figures on the number of incidents after Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told the Senate about the murder of a young West Point graduate in his sleep by an enlisted man who tossed a grenade into an officer's billet.

Fragging is a term describing the hurling of a fragmentation grenade by one American serviceman against a fellow soldier. Although the Pentagon had previously acknowledged these incidents were increasing, the numbers were not disclosed.

Pentagon confirmed Mansfield's report of 209 fragging incidents in Vietnam last year and said this compared with 96 in 1969. There are no records for previous years.

The Pentagon said 34 were killed last year in fraggings and 38 in 1969. Statistics were not available on the numbers wounded or on the number of convictions of those charged in the incidents.

Mansfield called fraggings "just another outgrowth of this mistaken, this tragic conflict."

Because of the incidents, Mansfield said, the military is sometimes disarming servicemen in non-combat areas. But he said: "The only solution is the total dissolution or our involvement in Vietnam."

A Quick Return

A MEASURE OF THE IMPORTance attached to China's recent fun-and-games ploy in diplomacy may be seen in the nature of the concessions which President Nixon immediately made in United States trade and immigration regulations dealing with China. The reaction was so immediate, indeed, that there may be grounds for a belief that the ping-pong overture—suddenly sprung as it was—was not entirely unexpected.

In any case, Mr. Nixon has made changes in his country's attitude and in the process has temporarily cooled more than one hot controversy which was in progress within his defence, commerce, justice and other departments. The outright ban on direct trade with China will be removed for non-strategic items, although the definition of non-strategic may lead to considerable argument, both domestically and with Peking.

But the fact that a 21-year-old embargo on trans-Pacific trade has been lifted, if only in part, is a significant move. If Washington views this as a relaxation of the isolation of China, it may equally be seen as a similar change for the United States.

Now it is not the fact of trade with China, but its volume, which must be determined. And it should be remembered that not only American exports are in prospect, but Chinese shipments of goods to the United States. The reception of the latter will be interesting to observe.

The other major part of President Nixon's relaxation of bars was his decision to "expedite visas for visitors or groups of visitors" from China. This, coupled with Premier Chou's comment that United States news correspondents would be coming to China "in batches," could be even more important than the trade offer in its effects on the international scene.

There will undoubtedly be much to clarify in this regard, for it is not likely that complete freedom will be offered to travellers in either country right away.

Diplomatic reactions to the ping-pong episode may be interpreted in the nature of a quick return of the ball from one end of the table to the other. Certainly Mr. Nixon has gone much farther than any of his recent predecessors — much farther than his own recent position — in adopting a more realistic view of the country whose population comprises a fifth of the world's people.

The problems are many, of course, and the current trans-Pacific signals have not begun to cope with them; the Vietnam war, the status of Taiwan, diplomatic recognition, a U.N. seat, a nuclear treaty, the effects on Russian relations with each party . . . the list can be a long one. And there will be domestic dissent, already voiced by Vice-President Agnew. But a start has been made; and mutual confidence may flower and encourage square dealing on both sides as communication improves.

What's in Your Dossier?

AN OLD SOLO SUNG BY MR. Harold Winch, veteran NDP—and formerly CCF—member for Vancouver East, has become a swelling chorus in the House of Commons as members demand from Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer information on reports that police dossiers are being kept on elected representatives. This follows charges that the RCMP have been compiling and keeping files on men in public life in Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Goyer has given no straightforward answers. He has, however, said that the RCMP consider all citizens equal and that MPs are not exempt from Canadian law.

That statement needs elaboration. Under what circumstances are Canadian citizens to be subject to compilation of dossiers by the national police force? Are their lives to be invaded by paid agents of the state? Are they to live in uncertainty over the possibility that some informer, for whatever reasons, has contributed information or misinformation to the police which might, under conceivable circumstances, place them in a position of acute embarrassment, if nothing worse?

How are they to know if they are under surveillance; if some faceless accuser has, for purposes of his own, maligned them; if some of their innocent actions and associations have been misconstrued? How can they defend themselves against such a practice?

From time to time over a number of years, Mr. Winch has raised pointed questions on the issue. The evasion with which he has been greeted has created a highly cynical attitude toward such police operations. Now the challenge he raised is joined by other members who should be given honest answers, not just as elected representatives but as Canadian citizens.

Beyond the Red Horizon . . .

DESCRIBED VARIOUSLY AS an extension of the Middle East conflict or the beginning of a Vietnamese-type involvement, the Soviet role in the fighting in the Sudan is becoming a factor in world politics.

The civil war has been smouldering for nine years and is a result of the attempt of the northern Arab Sudanese to impose their language and Islamic culture on the black Christians and pagans of the south who have been demanding regional autonomy with the right to speak English. The U.N. estimates there have been 500,000 civilian casualties.

The present government in the capital, Khartoum, run by General Numeiry, has had to defend itself against nine reported coup attempts since 1969. It is apparent that General Numeiry is becoming increasingly dependent on Soviet officials in his efforts to maintain Arab control and to spread what he describes as "Arab socialism."

A naval base is being built by the Russians on the Red Sea coast at Port Sudan whose purpose, analysists say is twofold: to project Russian naval power into the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf, and to bottle up the Israelis in the Red Sea. Anti-aircraft missiles are being installed, Russian army advisers are with the Arab-led Sudan army in the south; other Russians are said to be servicing helicopters and bombers.

The extension of Soviet influence beyond the Mediterranean into Africa south of the Sahara, and the establishment of Soviet naval strategy in the Indian Ocean area, draw increasing attention to Russian global policy. Is it not time for a non-interference treaty which would keep the military influence of the major powers out of the non-Russian, non-Western, non-Chinese worlds?

The Ultimate Weapon

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

A Little Veneer to Screen Canadian Losses

TWO veneer plants are in the news, one at Maniwaki, a town in western Quebec, and the other at International Falls in Minnesota. Both are controversial; both involve jobs and — in oddly different ways — American investment. At Maniwaki, according to reports in several Quebec newspapers, there was a threat of violence which appears to have been averted by the threat or promise of a U.S. takeover. The case is interesting although not perhaps an exhibit that one would recommend to an earnest waffle candidate in search of the NDP leadership.

Western

The plant, founded originally by a local citizen, has been owned since 1963 by the General Investment Corporation, in which the Quebec government has a 50 per cent interest. Thus it ought to have been safely and snugly Canadian; as secure indeed as a company might be if it was supported by the tax dollars of the Canada Development Corporation.

Fewer Jobs

Unhappily, GIC's subsidiary Sogefor has been losing money on the venture. Over the period, jobs have dropped from 517 to 180. The government has decided that the plant must be sold. Trouble developed because the prospective Canadian buyer was in a position to rehire only half the workers; in addition the firm is said to pay low wages at its other works.

It is now reported, however, that the original owner in partnership with a New Jersey concern is prepared to buy and convert the plant. Townsmen have been assured that 180 men will have their jobs back within three months and that expansion should push employment back to the old level within a year. The fact that U.S. capital is to work this transformation appears to upset no one.

At Fort Frances, opposite International Falls, the concern is about future jobs. This area is a theatre of operations of the Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Company Ltd., a subsidiary of Boise Cascade. The company has plants on both sides of the border. Thus it is now building a kraft mill at Fort Frances, with the aid of large, and partly forgivable, Ontario loans, and it has more controversial plans for expansion, including a stud mill, a veneer mill and a refiner installation at the U.S. site.

These plans depend on the outcome of an application to the National Energy Board for permission to import large additional quantities of Canadian power.

Critics of the application are as free of prejudice against American capital as the townsfolk at Maniwaki. Similarly, the company appears from its propaganda to take an enlightened view of national frontiers, being willing to locate its business according to normal considerations of cost and profit anticipations.

Employment Outflow

The fear in Fort Frances is that the jobs will move in the same direction as the power. There is a feeling among critical local citizens that a community ought not to be required to export its own natural advantage in order to qualify as a good neighbor.

There are power exports now and no one suggests their termination. Indeed, many people presumably share the view of John Reid, Liberal member for Kenora-Rainy River, that exports should be increased to provide for the natural growth of business on the U.S. side.

They would argue, nevertheless, that the company's demands are excessive and ought not to be sanctioned. The application calls for much more than a doubling of exports. It is held that 10,000 kilowatts are required for normal growth over a 10-year period although the total exported in 1970 was only 14,500. Further, the company expects 4,000 kw. in stand-by power and an additional 8,500 kw. for modernization and expansion of the International Falls operations.

In the face of such figures, it is difficult not to believe that some of this "normal growth" on the U.S. side will be at the expensie of "normal growth" on the Canadian side.

The case for building the veneer plant at International Falls rests on the proposition that there is a U.S. "high tariff" on veneers. Some may find it bizarre that a U.S. company should appeal to Canadian generosity with the argument that the U.S. government maintains a tariff to limit imports of Canadian veneers.

This "high" tariff is six per cent and it is to drop next year to five per cent. This may not sound frighteningly high although the effectiveness of a tariff depends on various considerations. Some will suspect that Boise Cascade, with a bit of effort, could absorb it, margins being what they are.

Alternatively, the company might employ its persuasive talents in Washington with a view to eliminating the tariff in the general interest.

In any case the tariff argument does not apply to a second expansion project, the stud mill. According to Mr. James Crump, vice-president and general manager of the company, there is now a "small" tariff on studs entering the U.S. and this is to be discountinued in January.

As to certain of its other expansion plans, the company is decidedly vague. "We have given thought," Mr. Reid has been advised, "to paper-converting facilities that would further process paper made on existing machines." The types of paper Boise Cascade has in mind carry "quite a high tariff." It will be astonishing if the National Energy Board sanctions power exports for purposes to which the company has merely "given thought."

Business Sense

Without quite saying so, Boise Cascade manages to convey an impression that good citizens should set aside their criticisms out of gratitude for the benefits (such as the kraft mill) which have rained on Fort Frances. In reading the literature, however, it is marvellous to see how common business sense keeps breaking into the argument.

Thus Mr. Crump: "It has been and is our goal to make the best use of the resources available to us provided, of course, such use is economically sound." We may reasonably conclude then that the pulp mill at Fort Frances and the new tie and stud mill at Keewatin were economically sound in the company's judgment and not mere public relations projects.

Resources now available on the Canadian, but not the American side, include power. Before shipping scarce power to plant, the National Energy Board should make very sure that there is no reasonable prospect over the next decade of attracting plant to power. Such an attitude is agreeably free of any taint of anti-Americanism; the best way to encourage U.S. capital is to keep our power at home.

Letters to the Editor

Pioneers in Restraint

On Tuesday, you reprinted an interesting editorial from The Globe and Mail of Toronto, under the title— "Will Doctors Elsewhere Follow Newfoundland's Lead?" The basic subject matter was the report that physicians in our most easterly province had agreed to a measure of restraint on incomes, at least until a new fee schedule has been worked out.

We in B.C. in the medical profession had been aware of the events in Newfoundland and realized that they might develop because of local conditions there.

We feel, however, that when this topic is discussed publicly in our own province, it should be noted that B.C. doctors voluntarily opted for a one year moratorium on fee increases. We are now four months into the moratorium year. Because statistics on medical economics usually lag by almost a year, the effect of the moratorium will not be shown for some time, but the plain facts are that the profession in B.C. pioneered in this area of temporary voluntary restraints.—W. J. Corbett, M.D., president, B.C. Medical Association.

Pollution Loopholes

I would like to refer to a statement recently made by Mr. W. N. Venables, director of the Pollution Control Board, about the possibility that several hundreds of industries in B.C. are discharging effluent without permit and "subsequently can't be prosecuted!" (Victoria Times, April 6, 1971.)

I can't help but have a very uneasy feeling about the future of this province if this is the way our anti-pollution law is administered and I wonder what kind of people are in our government if laws are drawn up with obvious loopholes like these.

I am sure that we are all looking forward to the day when the Pollution Control Board is in control of pollution matters.

May this day come soon.— L. F. Westerman, Cobble Hill.

Looking Back

From the Times of April 21, 1911:

The pictures for today and tomorrow at the Majestic Theatre are composed of a great variety of subjects. "The Lily of the Tenements," is a Biograph film showing New York tenement life among the poorer classes. "The Love of an Enemy" depicts a Yankee spy who gains the love of a southern girl. "Sea Birds in their Haunts" shows a series of photographs of shy sea birds obtained under extreme difficulty in their almost inaccessible haunts.

Taiwan Reef Still There

By TIM TRAYNOR from Washington

IT is clear that both the U.S. and Communist China have had enough of the icy enmity of the past 20 years. A new Chinese attitude has been give ostentatious display in the treatment of the visiting American ping pong team and, even more, in the welcome extended to the American and other Western journalists. For his part, President Nixon has made a sustained effort to foster a new and less hostile climate.

Traynor

In itself, the movement to date is of the greatest importance. What remains to be seen, however, is whether there is yet a basis for more than a slight thaw.

Very early on, the Nixon administration gave notice of a general softening of attitudes towards the Peking regime. In late 1969 and early 1970, there were modest moves to ease trade restrictions.

(Over the past year, small quantities of products from the American plants of such companies as General Motors have begun to find their way to the mainland market).

By stages, the administration intensified its exertions, particularly after Canada's recognition of Peking as the government of the Chinese mainland and the subsequent United Nations General Assembly vote in which support for the admission of Red China reached a new level though less than the two-thirds required. Reinforcement of past efforts was forshadowed in the president's state of the world report and, in the aftermath of the Chinese initiative, the president has been quick to announce a broad lowering of barriers to travel and direct trade between the U.S. and the Chinese mainland.

All this adds up to a very considerable evolution of the American side. But flexibility is by no means the overriding feature of the Nixon policy, as spelled out in the world reports of the president there remains much of the older and affirmations of a desire for movement, and the secretary of state. Amid the harder attitudes,

Evolutionary Process

Thus, the president in his report observed: "We are prepared to establish a dialogue with Peking," but he then went on to underscore U.S. ties with Peking's enemies in Taiwan, and to stress continuing U.S. opposition to "the notion that Communist China must exercise hegemony over Asia."

It was pointedly noted how well Taiwan had done economically, compared with the mainland, with American aid, and there was a flat reaffirmation of U.S. commitments to defend Taiwan and to oppose efforts to put the Taiwan government out of the United Nations in the course of seating Red China. (This, it was said, would add up to allowing Peking "to dictate to the world the terms of its participation.")

On the question of admission of Peking to the UN, there has, to be sure, been a modification of the official U.S. attitude. Though the matter was avoided in the most recent policy announcement, Secretary of State Rogers in his report expressed a desire to see Communist China play "a constructive role in the family of nations," and indicated the U.S. was looking hard at the UN admission matter in the light of the growing support for Peking.

Communist Demand

As of now, however, the U.S. softening looms less large than the hard position on Taiwan's expulsion, since there is no reason to expect that Communist China will be satisifed with anything less. In a recent interview with Edgar Snow, premier Chou En-lai said consideration would be given to UN membership "with Chiang's clique out of the United Nations altogether," and he strongly emphasized the Communist demand for the dismantling of the U.S.-Taiwan relationship.

It is very possible that the U.S. will fall back on a "two-China policy" which will call for the seating of both Communist China and Taiwan in the UN. Though on the surface this would have the appearance of promoting Communist Chinese entry, it might well be used to the opposite end. An all-important group of nations whose members are unhappy with the current situation and are at a point of throwing their support behind the long-standing pro-Peking, anti-Taiwan resolution would probably welcome, as another way out, a U.S. two-China resolution.

By this device, the tougher Albanian resolution, which now seems near approval, might be blocked, and approval might be given to a "two-China" resolution, which would probably be spurned by Peking. Needless to say, this would constitute a major impediment to any profound easing of relations between the U.S. and Peking. Canada's activities will be of special interest because the Trudeau government has indicated it means to join those pushing for the admission of Peking.

The UN admission matter is, furthermore, only one of a number which becloud the scene. President Nixon has charted a new and lesser U.S. role in Asia, in the post-Vietnam era, and may well have had something to do with the new Chinese attitude. Insofar as the new policy means a transfer of U.S. power to Japan, however, the reaction of the Chinese is bound to be hostile. Indeed, this point has already been strongly made in a New York Times article by Professor Paul Lin of McGill University, an expert on Communist China.

SCHREYER DEFENDS NDP POLICIES

Manitoba, Two Years After Turnover

By RICHARD STARR

WINNIPEG — Reviewing nearly two years in office, Premier Ed Schreyer says his New Democratic Party government has achieved "a greater equality of the human condition" in Manitoba, and it will continue to work in that direction.

In an interview with The Canadian Press, the 35-year-old former university teacher, who came to office in an upset victory in the June, 1969, provincial election, said tax measures introduced by his government have been intended to bring about greater equality.

As an example, he points to an 88-per-cent reduction in premiums for medical care coverage and an 18-per-cent increase in the provincial share of corporation and personal income tax to make up the necessary revenue.

In all, the Schreyer government has passed nearly 200 pieces of legislation in two sessions, despite the absence of a clear majority in the 57-member provincial legislature until its two byelection victories in early April just before the new session began.

When the NDP toppled the 10-year-old Conservative regime in the 1969 election and became only the second socialist-oriented government in Canadian history, it won only 28 seats, compared with 22 by the Conservatives, five by the Liberals and one each by a Social Crediter and an independent. One of the Liberals later left his party to sit as a Liberal Democrat and sometime member of the NDP caucus.

Auto Insurance Legislation Toughest Fight

The toughest fight Mr. Schreyer has faced so far was over legislation to set up a publicly-operated auto insurance plan. He was forced to woo support from the two non-aligned members to get the legislation through the house last year in the face of determined opposition by the Conservatives and Liberals.

A self-professed moderate who condemns as "wrong politics and wrong policy" the rhetoric of the NDP's left-wing Waffle group, Mr. Schreyer said he does not feel the auto insurance legislation alienated Manitoba's business community.

The record of his government has shown it has not been moving in "any indiscriminate or hasty way" into private enterprise fields.

He said the government's action in appointing a receiver for the troubled integrated forestry development at The Pas, built with about $90 million in provincial loans, "was necessitated by events and circumstances, not because of any ideology or political philosophy."

An edited version of the tape-recorded interview follows.

Q—Shortly after taking office, you indicated that the two over-riding goals of your administration would be to work for "equality of the human condition" and at the same time reassure private industry that you had "nothing silly, impractical or imprudent in mind." In your estimation, how have you lived up to these goals so far?

A—Well, I certainly think that we have brought in measures that tend to bring about greater equality of the human condition. I doubt very much that I said that we would expect to reach equality of the human condition—it's a matter of degree. All of our tax measures and adjustments have that objective in mind.

We virtually abolished—reduced by 88 per cent—the flat medicare premium tax which did not take into account ability to pay, a flat tax borne in equal amount by those on $3,000-a-year income and those on $30,000 or $100,000 a year. We've cut that by 88 per cent and put in its place additional points in income tax, personal and corporate income tax. Now that was a pretty significant step in greater equality in our taxation system, which in turn has a bearing on general conditions in the province.

In addition to that we have increased the minimum wage in two steps and will be increasing it again this year and that too is obviously going to have an effect in bringing about a little more equality in conditions. We have set up a small-business-loans branch in the Manitoba Development Corp. so that the small businessman will not be as much at a disadvantage as he has been in the past in making use of the development fund. In the past, there has not been enough attention paid to smaller businesses.

In summary, just about everything we've done has been intended to bring about greater equality.

Q—What about the second part of the question—reassuring private industry?

A—Well, I think that the record of the past year and a half, since we've been in office, shows that we have not been moving the state or the public sector into the private enterprise sector in any indiscriminate or hasty way. We have, in certain specific and select cases, provided for more public enterprise but in percentage terms the number of operations, the number of factories, the number of business enterprises is larger than it was two years ago simply because there have been new industries created.

Q—Do you feel that the auto insurance legislation or your handling of the forestry development at The Pas may have tended to hurt your credibility with the business community?

A—I don't think so. If it has, it's something I'm not going to apologize about. The fact of the matter is that we were talking about having auto insurance in the public sector during the election campaign, and all we've done is simply lived up to our promise, to our commitment. I feel more strongly than ever that auto insurance under public enterprise is the right way to go about it and will result in a better system of auto insurance, a more effective, efficient (system), fewer delays in the settling of claims and lower rates.

Tax Burden To Be Eased At Local Level

Now with respect to CFI (The Pas forestry development), I can assure you that the action we took in the case was necessitated by events and circumstances, not because of any ideology or political philosophy on our part.

Q—Are you satisfied with the way Manitoba's economy generally has grown under your government?

A—No, I'm not satisfied because the rate of growth has been very modest. But when you compare it with the growth and all of the other economic indices in the other provinces you will see that Manitoba's economy has held up rather well through this period of recession that the whole country has gone through in the past couple of years.

It's no secret that unemployment in Canada is at the highest level in a long, long time. The fact that Manitoba's unemployment rate, that we've been able to keep it approximately two percentage points below the national average of unemployment is, I think, a good sign from Manitoba's point of view, although even here it's higher than we would like it to be.

In terms of retail sales, Manitoba's economy shows up very well in comparison to the sister province to the west, Saskatchewan, and in fact it shows up very well in comparison to the whole country. In terms of dwelling-unit starts, which is a fairly important indicator, Manitoba's rate of construction starts in housing has held up very, very well compared to most other provinces.

Q—Most of the legislative priorities which you set prior to the 1969 election, such as the shift in the medical care costs and the auto insurance legislation, have been implemented. Have you looked beyond the coming session to establish another set of priorities? Where do you go from here?

A—We are already in the process of undertaking another major tax objective which is in addition to those we already have under way, that is to bring about a significant shift in taxation so that there will be less of a burden on municipal and real property taxes, less of a burden at the local level, because the province will be assuming a greater proportion of the cost of education.

To the extent that the province increases its input into education, the local ratepayer will realize a reduction in his local taxes. That's taking place in a two-step program, part of it in '71 and part of it in '72 for a total tax shift of something in the order of $20 million.

Q—Have you looked beyond this program into some other areas? Can you say what will be the general thrust of future programs?

A—Well, we'll continue to work towards greater equality in the human condition and that will mean programs designed to reduce disparity in living conditions and living standards, more opportunity for people of native ancestry, more integration of them into manpower training, manpower mobility, manpower placement itself; also programs of public housing to provide better housing accommodation for those on lower incomes, not just in Metropolitan Winnipeg but in some of the rural centres and in northern communities.

All these things we will be following up in a systematic way—we have some of them under way already. Public housing for example, in Manitoba, has increased so dramatically it is hardly possible to put a percentage increase figure on it because whereas there was almost no public housing for example in 1968-69, in 1970 we took that up to around $12 or $14 million, this year we brought it up to $34 million and next year we hope even higher.

'Our Economy Held Up Well In Recession'

Q—You have indicated several times, I believe, that the purity of NDP ideals is one thing, but the NDP must get elected before it can accomplish anything. Do you feel the NDP nationally and in other provinces should follow your concept of social democracy in order to make significant gains at the polls, or do you feel the electorate is willing to accept a further left approach?

A—I think a person or a group of people should follow what they believe. I'm not very happy about my remarks being misconstrued to mean that they should have as their over-riding obsession the desire to get elected, that they should have that desire so honed that they are prepared to set aside what their philosophic objectives are. I'm not suggesting that.

I think, however, that it's just not practical, and it's not right politics for that matter, to think in terms of massive public ownership of production, distribution and exchange. Now if people really believe that's right, then they have to govern themselves accordingly within a political party. I'm suggesting though that the obsession on the part of the more left elements of the NDP with massive public ownership of production, distribution and exchange is both wrong politics and wrong policy. It will not win the confidence of the majority of Canadians.

Q—Do you think your success here will have any impact nationally?

A—I think it will, if—and it's a big if—if the majority of the party nationally are willing to endorse the concept of social democratic government as opposed to the more doctrinaire socialist kind of policy. There is a distinction.

Q—You're saying the majority hasn't up to now?

A—Oh, I think they have, with the exception of the rather militant group who have semi-organized themselves within the party and are calling for the very kind of thing that I'm suggesting is both wrong policy and wrong politics. I'm referring to the Waffle group.

Q—But in the 1968 federal general election, the Waffle group hadn't been heard of, yet the NDP won only 22 seats.

A—That's because of the phenomenon that was known as Trudeaumania. I'm convinced that it's part of the exigencies of politics that a trend or development can be stopped by the appearance on the scene of some new kind of phenomenon which has a duration of a greater or lesser period of time.

Q—The question of Quebec's relations with the rest of Canada has been fairly widely discussed during the current leadership campaign in the NDP. Several of the candidates have suggested constitutional reform aimed at giving Quebec some sort of special status within Confederation recognizing its cultural and linguistic differences. Where do you stand on this issue?

A—I don't think it's possible to answer that question in any definite way for another few years. I know that the prime minister is trying to follow a policy of treating Quebec the same way as any other province and to the extent that the government of Manitoba can be of any help to the federal government in this respect—trying to preserve national unity—we are trying to be of some help.

THE GRAND TOUR

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Is it possible to have a state visit when the visitor is not a head of state?

Canada appears to be willing to give it a try, and if one were to judge by the trappings alone, the visit is one of regal proportions. Governor-General Roland Michener and Mrs. Michener sailed from Portsmouth aboard the Canadian naval supply ship Preserver, bound for Amsterdam. The Preserver plowed proudly across the North Sea, escorted by the Canadian destroyers Assiniboine, Ottawa and Margaree.

To people from the old country, the spectacle may be both dazzling and dumfounding. The Governor-General, they will know, is the Queen's representative in Canada — but at the moment he isn't in Canada. He is not our head of state, but the scale and pomp of this trip would suggest that he was.

It also appears to be lavishly expensive. One might almost wish he had borrowed the royal yacht Britannia rather than taken this fearsome flotilla with which to make the grand Amsterdam entrance. We know there is nothing quite so much fun as messing about in boats, but it will leave many people awash with confusion about the monarchical system and its strange Canadian offshoot.

Not All Tea and Cookies

By ART STOTT

By what has seemed to me a set of fortuitous circumstances, my children went through the same elementary school as I did. In our family, we thought it was a pretty good school. We thought, also, that it had done a pretty good job for us. So, purely from a sense of obligation, I made myself available to the PTA. It was condescending of me. The PTA, in my opinion, was "mother's night out." I shared what appears to be the common attitude today, that the association was a tea-and cookies agency, all fluttery in its desire to please the principal.

* * *

My condescension lasted right up to the door of the assembly hall for my first meeting. It was difficult to be condescending in a gathering in which participants included Dr. Cliff Carl, Bob Wallace, Dr. Dave Turner, Dr. Bert Petrie, Dr. W. A. McElmoyle and Harry Gilliland, to mention a few of the fathers who gave active support. Their talents were matched by the ladies. "Mother's night out" became something a little more than a tea-and-cookies deal. These people — and the rest of the membership — were interested in their children, interested in their children's school and brought very considerable talents to discharging any obligation they may have felt toward it.

Most of us agreed modestly that we probably had the best PTA in town, perhaps in the province. Why not? We were enthusiastic.

We also had a general idea that people who had trained for education, both those on the school staff and those in the department, might know a little more about it than the man on the street. But, in that era, we had not been subjected to a virulent fever which later broke forth in rashes of protest, condemnation and efforts to put down those who assumed responsibility in the classroom and on the playing field.

We suffered, also, from another handicap. Our programs were so arranged that we were kept reasonably informed on changes in the school system and in educational philosophy. We were muzzled, no doubt, by at least some knowledge of what was going on, what certain courses of action were being taken for what purposes. That knowledge, inadequate as it may have been, tended to silence the loud yak that emerges from the know-nothings. Also, we were squares.

* * *

Simple days, those. We thought it our duty to help when help was sought. We were disinclined to interfere in areas where we recognized our lack of competency — and that was a time when some sensibility was shown for an individual's limitations. Not everyone was an expert. We were involved, but not to the point where involvement became disruption. And, strange as it may seem, we appeared to be appreciated.

Perhaps that was an age of feeble-minded benevolence, when a person did what he or she could to give assistance — even if it was brewing tea and baking cookies to raise a dollar here and there.

We did not then, any more than we do now, believe that teacher invariably knew best, but we gave teacher credit for doing the best he or she could.

* * *

So now the appeal is going out to bring more parents directly into the task of fitting the schools to present-day needs. In principle, it sounds like a good idea. At the same time, some of us wonder how much better equipped parents are than teachers and other educationists to determine what should be done in school. A little hesitantly, I ask if a parent's job shouldn't be that of a parent, a teacher's job, that of a teacher. Co-operate, sure. But let's avoid telling one or the other how to do the job unless we are completely informed — which most of us aren't.

There are areas where consultations, one with the other, can accomplish substantial good. At the same time, I have had well-meaning teachers try to tell us what we should do with our children. Oddly enough, the advice has frequently come from those who have no children of their own.

And I realize that the abdication of parental responsibility has been proceeding in various areas for some time. The children need help. If they're not getting it at home, some people believe, the school is the automatic alternative. Why? If the TV goes on the fritz and you can't get a television repairman, do you call a plumber?

On some matters home and school overlap and co-ordinated effort is required. The parent, usually, also has a very definite dollars and cents interest in the school, as well as the less tangible concerns of seeing that in class the child has an opportunity to advance in formal education — however that is defined.

* * *

But involvement is a term as elastic, and often as sticky as unset glue. How far does it go?

Maybe you answer the question by deciding first, what the job of the parents should be and what teachers should be expected to do. That might be a useful starting point to decide what direction a revived PTA should take.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

S. W. Potash

Southwest Potash Corp., a subsidiary of American Metal Climax Inc. has made tentative sales agreement for Saskatchewan holdings with International Minerals and Chemical Corp. (Canada) Ltd. The purchase by an Amax affiliate of a minor portion of IMC potash ore reserves and for processing of potash from these ore reserves through IMC plants, are covered in the agreement.

Final terms are subject to approval by directors of companies concerned.

Evans Co.

Net earnings up 76 per cent are reported for the first quarter by Evans Products Co., Portland-based forest products, building materials and housing components company with B.C. interests.

Revenues in the period ended March 31 were up 10 per cent from $116 million to $127.87 million, producing net income of $1.98 million (30 cents a share fully diluted) compared with just over $1 million (16 cents) a year ago.

Great Pacific

Gross income of more than $7 million — up $1.8 million — is reported by Great Pacific Industries Ltd., of Vancouver, for the year just ended.

Earnings after tax were down from $468,861 to $313,273 and after an extraordinary writeoff amounted to $248,716. In 1969 earnings were 46 cents a share; last year 24 cents.

President W. J. Sleeman said the company felt the effects of increased competition and a cutback in the oil exploration industry. Attention is being given to developing new markets.

Pacific Pete

Pacific Petroleums Ltd. reports first-quarter earnings of $5.95 million or 28 cents a share, compared with $4.85 million or 23 cents a share, for the corresponding period ended March 31, 1970.

"From nearly every standpoint, this has been the most successful quarter in the company's history, president L. Merrill Rasmussen told shareholders at the company's annual meeting in Vancouver.

Security Measures Tighten At Canadian Stock Centres

TORONTO (CP) — Security at Canada's to major stock trading centres has been tightening during the last six months.

It is a reaction to "the climate of the times," says a vice-president at the Toronto Stock Exchange. The latest effort to tighten security at the exchange building in Montreal followed the kidnappings last fall by the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Smaller exchanges in other Canadian cities report little or no change in their security efforts.

Huntley McKay, vice-president, market development and research, at the Toronto market, says reinforced security measures are similar to those taken at "many other public buildings."

The exchange has increased its security staff, but Mr. McKay declined to say by how much.

Both the Toronto and Montreal markets have closed their visitors' galleries, which overlook trading floors, but the public is allowed in at Toronto on prearranged tours conducted by staff.

Security is so tight at Montreal, "they even check my briefcase every day," says President Charles Neapole.

The Montreal market was damaged by a bomb explosion in 1969. Security was tightened after the explosion and again following the kidnappings last fall.

Casual observers no longer are allowed, and packages cannot be brought into the exchange building.

The identity of each group or individual is checked before entering the building. An additional guard has been added to the security staff.

The Toronto market has increased security in its computer room, which provides quotations to investment houses.

Mr. McKay says if the computer were damaged, or otherwise malfunctioning, "it would create confusion across the country."

Toronto is Canada's biggest security market. Last year about 67 per cent of all shares traded on major Canadian markets changed hands through the Toronto market.

NO TROUBLE REPORTED

Mr. Neapole says results of the beefed-up security program at Montreal have been satisfactory. There have been no incidents.

Mr. McKay says the Toronto exchange has received no crank calls or threats in the last few months.

But he says the exchange was disrupted one day last year by a person who came in and threw dollar bills on the trading floor.

Secretary - Treasurer R. C. Clifford of the Winnipeg Stock Exchange dismissed a query about security as "silly."

He says there never has been any discusion of tightening security because of Quebec's political climate.

The Vancouver Stock Exchange closed its visitors' gallery for two weeks following the 1969 bombing in Montreal. But it has not increased its security staff and the gallery now is fully open.

J. R. Thomson, manager of the Calgary Stock Exchange, says "we haven't done anything about people in the public gallery."

Exchange directors, he says, agreed the exchange must "maintain as much public access as possible."

The exchange sympathizes with the problems of exchanges in Eastern Canada, and "we would certainly look" at increased security if faced with similar circumstances.

"But there are no indications in Calgary to cause alarm."

AT VIENNA BUSINESS MEETING

Canadians Talk on Pollution, Taxes

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
Canadian Press Business Editor

VIENNA (CP) — Canadian delegates spoke to an international meeting of business men today about Canada's proposed new tax laws on multinational corporations and the need for co-operation in fighting pollution.

Charles McLaughlin, tax manager of Canadian Industries Ltd., Montreal, said the role of the international corporation is of special interest in Canada.

Tax reform proposals contained in the government's white paper "were particularly highlighted because Canada has been the most open of economies featuring foreign control, rapid development, great capital inflows and growth of nationalist sentiments."

"A concern now is whether it is more important to increase Canadian ownership of Canadian enterprises perhaps at the price of some reduction in the number and size of these enterprises," he told the International Chamber of Commerce.

"Not all parts of the country agree on the priorities of the problems. But it is clear that our tax rules will either be adapted to these policies, or make the policies themselves."

MUST USE RESOURCES

Dennis Yorath, chairman and vice-president of International Utilities Corp., Edmonton, said there is a growing need for use of natural resources.

But these demands would bring problems, such as added pollution in expansion of energy resources.

Mr. Yorath recommended a world-wide educational program on pollution "directed at all people of all ages . . . to lessen the emotional approach to a very practical problem, to help them understand that problem so they can in turn assist in its solution."

"Education, research and more research at great cost is required for which the people as consumers and taxpayers must be prepared to pay.

"All this will have to be one nationally and internationally or success will only be partial. The elimination of pollution in one country is of no value if a neighboring country does not also play the game."

C. H. Scoffield, general manager of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said chambers have an important role in meeting the public's cry for improving the quality of life.

"Business cannot escape its responsibilities. There is no force more powerful in the private sector than business and industry."

TIRE TESTER at Goodyear's Toronto plant uses two-and-a-half ton flywheel of resiliometer for speed and endurance tests. Resiliometer is capable of testing tires at 200 m.p.h. but most speed tests are done from 75 to 100 m.p.h.

WESTCOAST TRANS. EARNINGS JUMP 21%

VANCOUVER (CP) — Net earnings per share of Westcoast Transmission Company Limited showed 21 per cent increase in the first quarter of 1971 compared with the corresponding 1970 quarter, Kelly H. Gibson, chairman and president, reported at the company's annual meeting here Tuesday.

He told shareholders the increase marked "the first time in two years that the company's quarterly profit has exceeded that of the corresponding period the previous year."

In the three months ended last March 31, the company's earnings were $2,000,027 or 20 cents a share compared with $1,627,000 or 24 cents a share for the corresponding quarter of 1970.

Gibson said the increased earnings resulted from a cost control programinitiated by the company last year.

He said the advent of warm weather made futher profit growth unlikely in the second and third quarters but predicted a "tramatic improvement" for the fourth quarter after a new export contract with El Pase Natural Gas comes into the effect.

Under the contract, sales to the United States firm will increase to 733 million cubic feet daily from 505 millimn and the average price will rise to 33 cents per 1,000 cubic feet from about 26 cents.

Planes Delivered But Role Uncertain

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — The $215 million defence order for CF-5 jet fighter-bombers has been filled, informed sources said Tuesday.

There were 115 planes turned out by Canadair Ltd. of Montreal but only 54 are in regular flying units.

Forty-four are in storage at Trenton and North Bay, Ont., while defence planners ponder a role for them.

Nine are undergoing various types of technical and maintenance evaluation, five have been lost in accidents and three still are at Canadair undergoing tests.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald intended to make a statement last month on future roles for the controversial CF-5, ordered five years ago as a ground support aircraft.

However, the subject will be covered in the government's white paper on defence, expected late next month or in June.

Mr. Macdonald has said he wants to put all the CF-5s to work in worthwhile roles. He has indicated partiality to the idea of designating a squadron for NATO's northern flank in Norway and perhaps some for Canada's North.

The units already formed are an operational squadron at Bagotville, Que., and a training squadron at Cold Lake, Alta.

Six CF-5s are in Scotland, where they have been since completing tests in Norway nearly two months ago.

Meanwhile, Canada's CF-101B home defence interceptors, grounded last month except for emergencies awaiting correction of an engine defect attributed to aging, began flying again this week in limited numbers at Chatham, N.B., Bagotville, and Comox, B.C. Curtailments of Voodoo flying are likely to last through the summer.

Officials, while refusing to give details, said the problem is being licked through an accelerated supply of new engines combined with modification of engines before the fatigue problem develops.

Bangkok Fire Kills 13 Americans

BANGKOK (AP) — At least 13 Americans were among 24 persons killed in the fire at the Imperial Hotel early Tuesday, officials said today. They included families of three American servicemen.

Among the dead were the wife and three young children of Lt.-Col. Herbert Matsuo of Honolulu. The colonel was in an army hospital at the time of the fire, and another son escaped from the hotel.

Police said the other dead included Egyptian and Chinese airline crew members, a German tourist and two Thais.

Four bodies had not been identified. There was no confirmation of Canadians among the casualties as reported earlier.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Times reporter Don Vipond recently spent two days at the National Research Council establishment in Ottawa. In a three-part series, of which this is the last installment, he looks at the NRC itself, its work and its goals.

By DON VIPOND

OTTAWA —Now everybody knows computers can't think.

But at the National Research Council establishment here where computer-aided learning systems are being studied there's a showpiece machine which leaves you wondering . . .

You sit down at a teletype keyboard, your guide punches in the appropriate codeword and quicker than you can say Hippocrates, you're face to face with an electronic doctor. Of sorts.

Tap out your troubles on the typewriter keys. And the machine chatters back at you. It doesn't have much of a bedside manner. But it does have a sense of humor and can be quite devastating in getting the last word.

Here's the dialogue between one irreverent reporter and the even cheekier computer:

C: "How do you do. Please state your problem."

R: "I'm poor."

C: "Is it because you are poor you came to me?"

R: "Yes."

C: "You seem quite positive."

R: "I am."

C: "How long have you been poor?"

R: "All my life."

C: "Your life?"

R: "My life."

C: "Why do you say your life?"

R: (mildly exasperated) "All. Right. Let's say my career."

C: "You are sure?"

R: "Absolutely."

C: "Please go on."

R: "Perhaps my problem is physical."

C: "Is it important to you your problem is physical?"

C: "I see."

'A BIG HELP'

R: (sarcastically "You are a big help."

C: (unperturbed) "What makes you think I'm a big help?"

R: "Perhaps my problem is mental."

C: "Your problem is mental."

R: (sneeringly) "Thank you."

C: (implacably) "We were discussing you — not me."

The "doctor" program in the computer-teletype linkup is an experiment aimed at leading "patients" into spotting logical answers to their own questions, explains Jack Brahan, associate research officer. The concept is called "patient-induced therapy."

The memory bank of the computer had been fed a broad supply of information. The machine scans the patient's questions for key words it can recognize, then reacts to them by tossing back more questions than answers.

A sort of electronic self-help program. But spooky.

It's a line of research which may lead somewhere. But the practicality of computer-aided learning systems which the information science section of NRC's radio and electrical engineering division is working on is much more obvious.

BRAIN CORE

Main tool of the study is a $431,000 PDP-10 time-sharing computer. In the next few years, when programs start to be implemented, it can serve as a brain core from which information can flash the length of the country to regional computers.

These in turn can be tied to a number of terminal units used by students. The student's end of the line might be simply a teletype. Or it might include television displays, slide projectors and audio tapes.

At the lab here, for example, there is a demonstration which even incorporates sense of touch in the computerized learning process.

Put a finger on a sensitized map of Canada and a tape recorder spins to the appropriate setting and spews forth information on the region. Sometimes the teletype delivers the information.

The possibilities for rapid and stimulating visual, audio and written exchanges, between student and computer stuffed with information, are dazzling.

The NRC isn't interested in the question of course content. Brahan explains that the lab's role is that of systems developer. In its research it's already working with the potential users and it is they who decide whether the equipment is effective.

TIED TO SCHOOLS

The computer is already linked with the Ontario Institute of Education in Toronto for experimentation. Shortly it will connect with the University of Calgary and later the University of New Brunswick.

Ultimately the system might be tied to schools right across Canada, delivering and receiving in both French and English. To be used economically it would have to be available to a wide audience, says Brahan. And in Canada, that automatically means geographically wide.

Connections from the central computer to the regional ones can be over ordinary telephone lines.

Computer-aided learning systems shouldn't be thought of just in terms of schools, Brahan says. They could have application in industry and government, sending and collecting information, for example, for widely scattered groups of employees.

Apart from a capacity to handle many chores simultaneously, the system offers versatility.

In its tutorial mode, the computer can pose questions, correct answers. Then there is the computation mode, when students can use it as a calculator.

There is as well a so-called simulation mode in which it can present practical situations (to a farm manager, for example) as a teaching technique.

The potential is obvious, says Brahan. But a lot of work remains to be done.

It started with taste...

Pinto 3-Door Runabout

The Pinto Runabout

features a third door at the rear. This giant trunk lid, which includes the rear window, swings up easily on two counterbalanced supports for instant access to the interior. And what an interior! Both floor and passenger compartment feature color-keyed nylon carpeting for wall-to-wall luxury. Another added feature of the Runabout is the standard-equipment fold-down rear seat. This provides a handy loading platform extending to a full 61.2" to the front seat back. The third door and folding rear seat are better ideas that make Pinto Runabout a better little car to run about in. Whether you're off to a shopping centre, golf course, hunting trip . . . almost anywhere. Pinto Runabout lets you load and carry bulky or long items with the extra convenience you expect from a little carefree car.

Hydro Offer Judged Low

A provincial government evaluator says B.C. Hydro should pay $13,500 for a five-acre piece of property on which Hydro's highest offer was $7,500.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Borden of 2144 Ferndale had a government evaluator assess their property on Munn Road after they failed to come to terms with Hydro.

The crown corporation will appeal the evaluation to the Supreme Court, Mrs. Borden said Monday.

The land, which the Bordens bought for a future home, lies in the path of a power transmission right-of-way from the proposed Pike Lake Station and Victoria.

'Quebec To Dominate'

A dual Canada would be dominated by Quebec and the Official Languages Act is another step toward that objective, argues Joseph Thorson, 82, former cabinet minister in the Mackenzie King administration.

That conviction has driven Thorson to a speaking tour of Canada, despite his age, and the octogenarian will speak to the Single Canada League of Victoria tonight at 8 at the Empress Hotel.

The Single Canada League was formed last June and has since gained more than 1,000 paid-up members — almost a third of them in Victoria.

Man's Body Identified

NANAIMO — Coroner Dr. Michael Smart identified a body found by RCMP Saturday on the south side of Lasqueti Island as Samuel Edward Hughes, 50, of Vesuvius Bay, Salt Spring Island.

Hughes had been missing since his single-engined plane crashed Feb. 1 at the mouth of the Fraser River while he was on a flight from Ganges to Vancouver.

The body was identified through documents contained in a wallet but a dental examination will be performed for confirmation, RCMP said.

Workshop Set For South End Of Goldstream

A $20,000 workshop and service facilities will be established this summer at the south end of Goldstream park, a B.C. parks official said today.

The service area, already established, is on a road running north just past the service station at the entrance to the park.

The workshop will be used to service provincial parks in the capital region, he said.

Pearkes to Open Riding Ring

A new riding ring on West Saanich Road, North Saanich, will be officially opened at a schooling show June 5 by former lieutenant-governor George Pearkes.

The show will be part of B.C. Festival of Sports and feature young equestrians trained by Barbara Trickett of Sunset Riding Club whose members have built the ring.

Before the Judge

An 18-year-old youth was sentenced to four months definite and eight months indeterminate in jail Tuesday by Judge William Ostler for attempting to get a cash refund on a pair of slacks at a local department store that were stolen from another store.

John W. Thorburn, 1800 Forrest Road, was on probation at the time of the offence for an earlier theft conviction.

He allegedly told authorities that he tried to get the refund so he could buy a capsule of heroin.

He pleaded guilty to the attempted false pretence offence Tuesday which involved attempting to get money for the slacks at The Bay about 5 p.m. April 17. He admitted to Bay security officials that the pants had been stolen from K-Mart department store earlier in the day.

A price tag for $23.95 was found in the back seat of the accused's car parked in the nearby parkade, court was told.

"Here is the classic pattern," Ostler said after rereading Thorburn's presentence report for the earlier conviction, "marijuana at 14, LSD and other soft drugs and heroin at the ripe age of 18."

Ostler sentenced the youth to New Haven for young offenders.

* * *

John D. Kerr, 20, of 3660 Tillicum, was sentenced to four months in jail when he was found guilty of possession of a stolen outboard motor.

City police detective Edwin Hardy testified that he went to his boat docked at Finlayson Arm, Goldstream, Jan. 12 and discovered the 5½-horsepower motor missing from the back of the craft.

Another witness said he bought the motor from the accused for $20, had some repairs done on it and later turned it in to police.

* * *

James N. Glanville, 17, of 2646 Cook, was sentenced to four months definite and eight months indeterminate in jail by Ostler for possession of hashish.

He pleaded guilty earlier to having a silver package of the substance which he dropped on the ground while being searched by investigating officer while walking on Cook Street April 8.

* * *

A 32-year-old man was fined $350 in court Monday when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. The 23-year-old passenger in his car was fined $200 for obstructing a police officer.

Clement R. Thibault, 2750 Graham, was fined by Judge Edmond St. Jorre after court was told that he was the driver of a car stopped by city police at Humber Green about 6:45 p.m. Saturday.

Thibault had a breathalyzer reading of .21 per cent blood-alcohol content at the time.

Donald McNabb, 841 Esquimalt, was fined by Ostler after he pleaded guilty to obstructing one of the officers arresting Thibault.

An officer testified that McNabb told Thibault he didn't have to say anything to the investigating officers and at one point tried to pull his friend away from the police.

McNabb was arrested, the officer said, after he persisted in interfering although he had been warned three times not to do so.

Thibault was also prohibited from driving for three months.

* * *

Mary Nowik, 57, of 919 Leslie, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a six-month probation when she was found guilty of shoplifting.

Ostler imposed the sentence following a trial in which a security officer testified that she saw the accused take two address books, valued at a dollar each, from Woolco department store about 10:30 a.m. March 3.

Uvic Math Professor To U of A

University of Victoria mathematician Dr. Sudhish Ghurye, who resigned suddenly as head of the math department three months ago, has accepted a post as chairman of mathematics at the University of Alberta, the Times has learned.

Dr. Ghurye, one of the 40 full professors at Uvic, will leave for the Edmonton campus this summer.

He is one of four professors who have left Uvic this year.

Dr. Arthur Kratzman, formerly assistant to the dean for administration and supportive services, has taken a job at the University of Saskatchewan where he will assume duties as dean of the faculty of education.

Dr. Anne Saddlemyer, the English department's ranking expert in Irish literature and owner of a significant personal collection in her area, will be teaching next year at the University of Toronto.

The fourth to leave Uvic is associate professor Richard Courtney, a world authority on developmental drama who resigned to take a post with the University of Calgary after an upheaval in the theatre department.

UIC Plan Wins Vote

Greater Victoria school trustees voted Monday not to oppose unemployment insurance coverage for teachers.

The trustees defeated a motion arising out of a letter from B.C. School Trustees' Association president Peter Powell calling on all school boards to protest the federal decision to collect unemployment insurance from teachers across Canada.

Chairman Allan McKinnon spoke strongly in favor of the motion, saying the whole system of social assistance and taxation must be questioned. He read a list of payments the school board must already pay to the federal government.

McKinnon said literature promoting both sides of the unemployment insurance question was being paid for by taxpayers.

Trustee Harold Knight also spoke in favor of the motion. He said education funds would be used to support a welfare scheme (unemployment insurance) and it would amount $112,000 from Greater Victoria.

Rental Board Tries Again For Aid

Victoria's rental grievance board will try a second time to get financial help for distribution of landlord and tenant laws.

Having been refused free copies of the B.C. Landlord and Tenant Act from the provincial government, the board decided Monday to ask the city to print 10,000 copies of a fact sheet on landlord-tenant law.

So far, the city has refused attempts by the board to become a legally constituted grievance arbiter, and the provincial attorney-general's department has been referring enquiries it receives to the Victoria board.

The board has no budget, operates through the Victoria Better Business Bureau, and makes use of some city materials and secretarial staff.

During the last four weeks, the rental board received about 150 enquiries and complaints.

Ald. Robert Baird told the board he would try to get agreement from council to pay for the cost of printing the brochure — about $350.

The board also decided to write a standard set of rules or tenancy agreement for use in the Victoria area.

Saanich Will Probe New Library Sites

Saanich council agreed at a closed-door meeting Monday night to investigate new sites for a Centennial branch library.

The council had previously recommended to the Greater Victoria Library Board that the site be adjacent to the Gordon Head Recreation Centre in Lambrick Park.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said later the library board, on the basis of recommendations from professionals, recommended another sit to Lambrick Park.

No details were disclosed and the subject was discussed privately because of possible acquisition of private land. Attending the closed meeting were library board chairman Alf Hood and member Brian Tobin.

Curtis said he read council opinion to remain favorable to the Lambrick Park site, but Saanich will look sincerely at sites in another location.

"There is a variance of opinion between the library board and council," he said.

"If we can find a site in this other area, something reasonably priced, it might be exciting."

NEW SITE

He pointed out that a new site will be more expensive than Lambrick Park.

"We were prepared to let the library board have a branch next to the recreation centre for $1 which saves a lot of public money," he said.

"You certainly get less of something because there are only so many dollars in Centennial grants."

He said on the assumption Victoria and Saanich proceeded jointly, $30,000 or $50,000 or $70,000 would have to be subtracted for land acquisition.

If Victoria and Saanich have separate branches, "you still have to take off those dollars for land acquisition. At Lambrick, all but $1 is available for construction."

Townhouse Passes First Hurdle

Saanich council approved a controversial 72-unit townhouse project in the Gordon Head district at a marathon public hearing Tuesday night.

But the simple-majority approval, in a 5-to-4 vote, is insufficient to carry the rezoning bylaw at final reading next month when two-thirds support is necessary.

The hearing, which followed five other rezoning items, lasted four hours, ending at 12:15 a.m., the longest for several years.

For 80 minutes, more than 100 persons listened to the reading of 31 letters opposed to the townhouse project, at 3987 Gordon Head Road, just north of McKenzie Avenue, while 12 letters were in favor.

Then, after developer Stuart Purches and his lawyer Lloyd McKenzie outlined proposals, the public listened for 95 minutes while 24 persons spoke against and six in favor.

A petition of opposition signed by 197 persons was submitted, along with one from immediate property owners which showed 20 in favor, eight opposed, nine who didn't know and 16 who declined to sign anything.

The planned townhouses were on the same site as a proposal considered and rejected by council, in a 6-to-3 vote, two months ago. However, the developer reduced the size of the project from 84 units to 72 after re-arranging financing and council voted 7-to-2 to hold the second public hearing.

Residents voiced opposition on the basis that the area is zoned for single-family housing now and should stay that way, that the townhouses would overcrowd public facilities such as schools and roads, lower property values, and they urged that a single plan be made for the area and adhered to.

Several members of council said changes in the area were indicated by the municipality's Apartment Study and University Area Plan.

Those in favor said the development would be a credit to the neighborhood and that what was being proposed was one acre of housing (on a seven-acre site) rather than seven acres of houses.

In other rezoning business, council approved:

- Consolidation only of amendments since 1967 to the zoning bylaw;
- Erection of a second dwelling on a single lot at 4107 Holland Avenue;
- Duplex, southwest corner of 3694 Saanich Road;
- Six units of row housing, immediately north of 3277 Linwood;
- Quadruplex, immediately east of 900 Scotia Street.

Trustee Wants Check-Off End

Greater Victoria school board may cease deducting B.C. Teachers' Federation dues from teachers' cheques next fall.

That's the intent of a notice of motion which Trustee Peter Bunn presented to the board Monday.

He said after the school board meeting he would like to see if teachers are as enthusiastic about belonging to the BCTF when they have to send in their own dues, now that membership in the organization is no longer compulsory.

Economic Growth Forecast

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chairman of the Economic Council of Canada said Tuesday the country can look forward to several years of "high economic potential" and a strong period of growth.

But Dr. Arthur Smith told a news conference following a two-day council meeting here there is still a considerable slack in the economy, with it operating four per cent below its potential in the last quarter of 1970.

"Four per cent may not seem like a lot," Dr. Smith said, "but this means about $3.5 billion that was not produced by the economy."

Dr. Smith said fears of a build-up of unemployment, particularly among youth and the lesser skilled, should be allayed once the economy gets in motion.

"The same fears were expressed in the early 60s, but once the economy got rolling we found it could create a great many jobs."

VOWS RESTATED

CROYDON, England (UPI) — Len and Mavis Sevenoaks were married for the second time on the 19th anniversary of their first wedding.

The couple, whose first marriage ended in divorce 15 years ago, were wed in a carbon copy of their first wedding with the same best man, three of the same bridesmaids and the same wedding cake decorations.

Len, 43, and Mavis, 38, neither of whom had rewed, met again a month ago and decided to get married again.

THE CONCORDE

Blunder or Not? CP Air Says No

The charge here that CP Air has made a monumental corporate blunder in failing to join the queue of international air lines reserving delivery for Concorde, the Anglo-French supersonic jet transport, is disputed in a letter today from that company.

R. A. Keith, CP Air's director of public relations in Vancouver, writes as follows:

"Your recent column, 'How CP Air Blew Its Super Future' expresses a commendable dedication to the 'great, beautiful, wild-blue-yonder bird,' the Concorde. It is unfortunate that your enthusiasm for this pioneering enterprise has inspired you to attack CP Air for 'refusal to get in on the ground floor of supersonic transport.' We have blown it, you say, and CP Air 'will have messy corporate egg on its face from thinking too small, too late.'

★ ★ ★

"The accusation is ludicrous. If anything, we thought too big and too soon. CP Air has always been a front-runner in the quest for faster and more economical air transportation. Witness the fact that Canadian Pacific was the first in the world, next to BOAC, to place orders for the Comet, the real trail-blazer of the jet age. Far from being a supersonic laggard, CP Air put up cash deposits on the U.S. supersonic transport as early as February, 1964, at a time when Air Canada and many other carriers were still just thinking about it.

"We chose the U.S. version for the soundest of reasons: It was and still is, according to our studies, the only SST design capable of operating successfully on our long-stage international routes.

"You make the unsupported assertion that Japan Air Lines will be running Concordes 'between this coast and the Orient in competition with CP's old-fashioned jets.' Have you seen any Concorde range and load figures to support this assumption? We have not. There is no hope that even a beefed-up version of the Concorde will carry a payload non-stop over this 4,700-mile Vancouver-Tokyo route. A fuel stop en route would wipe out any competitive advantage while adding to the economic penalty for the SST operator.

"How can you describe CP's 'shelling out a $300,000 deposit' for Boeing SST delivery positions as 'a compromise?' (The deposit rose to $600,000.) This was no compromise but a cash commitment to the only supersonic aircraft capable of performing with success on the CP routes.

"You further asserted: 'Concorde's makers have beefed up their bird . . . and have demonstrated to Canadian Pacific that the plane can do the job on any of its routes. There's no evidence that CP has bothered to make a reappraisal.'

"On the contrary, the evidence was as available as your telephone. Had you bothered to check with CP on this, we would have informed you that our technical evaluation team of six specialists in economics, flight operations and engineering has maintained a constant liaison with the Concorde sponsors, has visited the United Kingdom plant within the last 12 months, and as recently as December welcomed Concorde technical personnel at our headquarters.

★ ★ ★

"After appraising the most recent data available, our experts report that this 'beautiful, wild-blue-yonder bird' does not meet the minimum requirements of our route pattern. In these circumstances, if you were the president of CP, would you order for your airline an aircraft you considered too small and short-ranged to be a success? That would blow it! Talk about corporate egg-on-the-face!

"Your enthusiasm for supersonic travel is more than shared here at Canadian Pacific. But unlike a newspaper columnist, the management of an airline must temper enthusiasm with economics."

Oh, come now, Ron Keith, either you haven't done your homework or you're conveniently over-looking some mighty relevant facts.

Fact: No one, including Concorde's makers, has ever suggested that the SST would work on all routes. The makers claim only this: An airline in the future operating on a balanced mix of Concordes and subsonic jets will earn a better return on their investment than an airline with an all subsonic fleet. CP Air may not be convinced of that but Air Canada, Pan-American, BOAC, Air France, Qantas and a dozen more giants see it in their future.

Fact: The maximum range of the first production-line Concordes will be 4,000 statute miles with normal airline reserves for holding and diversion. The only CP Air routes that could not be managed by Concorde would be the Vancouver-Amsterdam over-the-pole non-stop route of 4,791 miles (though Toronto-Amsterdam is well within range) and the non-stop Vancouver-Tokyo route, 4,699 miles (though CP Air jets refuel at Anchorage, Alaska, on heavy-load flights and in bad weather and with an Anchorage stop the SST would fill the bill).

Fact: Concorde's present maximum payload of 30,790 pounds will have increased to 33,670 pounds after the first 40 airplanes have been sold. In all tourist, all first class and typically mixed class configurations, Concorde's cabin can carry 144, 108 and 134 passengers respectively. In a day when the big jets are running with a great many empty seats, CP Air's "technical evaluation team" must know that losses through empty seats in off-season periods could equalize the advantages of greater passenger capacity during intensive travel periods.

Fact: Concorde's 4,000-mile range gives it full capability on CP Air's important Australian and South American runs, both almost entirely over water. On the Australian route the Vancouver-Honolulu leg is 2,706 miles, Honolulu-Fiji is 3,174 miles and Fiji-Sydney is 1,971 miles. On the South American route it is 2,452 miles to Mexico, 2,641 miles from Mexico to Lima, 1,529 miles to Santiago, 710 miles over the Andes to Buenos Aires. Concorde could also be used on the 3,255-mile route from Montreal to Lisbon. (It should be noted, as well, that the Soviet Union's TU-144, virtually a sister ship to Concorde, will be in service before the year's end between Moscow and New Delhi. That is a run up toward the 4,000-mile mark.)

Fact: Concorde can be there and back, at 1,450 miles an hour, while the regular, horse-and-buggy jet is still on the outward passage.

The ultimate fact would seem to be that CP Air's decision to go with the Americans and its rejection of a money-back guarantee by Concorde's makers that their SST would do the job, is just what I said it was — a blunder.

City to Refuse Union Demands

Victoria city hall is not prepared to meet demands of outside civic workers who have rejected the latest wage proposals, Mayor Courtney Haddock said today.

Haddock said he expects unanimous backing from council when it meets Thursday to formally consider the contract agreement.

"I am sure council is completely unified, because they have no choice," Haddock said.

"There is just no way we can meet the demands they're making. I sincerely hope they won't consider striking."

The city "simply can't find the funds" to pay for wages higher than the amount already offered.

The union is asking "far too much."

●

Members of Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees met Tuesday night and voted "overwhelmingly" in a standing vote to refuse the city's offer, union negotiator Tom Smith said today.

No vote count was taken but Smith said it was roughly the same as the 87 per cent ballot vote taken earlier to strike.

The city's offer is in line with wage hikes accepted by Victoria's inside workers as well as Saanich's inside and outside employees.

●

Workers earlier voted in favor of striking if no acceptance contract was offered by the city. A mediation officer was appointed, legally prohibiting an actual strike until he has reported no settlement is possible.

Workers would then have 72 hours to wait before halting work.

The offer by the city is for a 7½ per cent wage increase beginning Jan. 1, 1971 and a further 7½ per cent Jan. 1, 1972.

Haddock said the city's offer will cost taxpayers $1.5 million. The offer, he said, is well above the rise in the cost of living since the last contract.

One area of dispute between the union and the city is the wage scale for temporary or casual laborers who get a lower wage than regular class I laborers.

The casual scale is used for summer employees and for new laborers during the first six months of employment. The offered casual wage is $3.17 an hour compared with the class I wage of $3.33.

Increases offered include 25 cents in 1971 and again in 1972 on the 1970 rate of $3.08 an hour for class I laborers, and 38 cents and 29 cents on $3.48 for journeymen mechanics.

A letter sent by the city to all employees affected says there is no guarantee that retroactivity will be made if a strike is held. Losses for the four-month period beginning Jan. 1 would be $174 for laborers, $264.48 to journeymen mechanics and $320.16 to foremen.

●

The earliest time when 72-hour strike notice can be served by the union is sometime Friday, after mediation officer Clark Gilmour produces a final report.

An agreement between the city and inside workers who are also members of CUPE does not require the inside workers to cross picket lines.

BANISHED from Sealand because of her lusty aggression is 17-foot-long Nootka, who was hoisted out of the whale pool today by a 65-ton crane. Nootka left Victoria International Airport on a jet freight, en route to California where she will be the only killer whale at the Japanese Village and Deer Park near Los Angeles. Nootka was sold because, having become sexually mature, she started taking over the pool when Haida, the much-younger male killer whale failed to respond to her attentions. It was feared that Nootka's dominance was causing tension in the young white killer whale Chimo, a female.

Barrier Still In Doubt

Royal Victoria Yacht Club's determined battle to build a breakwater in Cadboro Bay may not yet be won, despite approval by municipal council Tuesday night.

Dr. Ross Henry, most vociferous foe of the breakwater concept since its inception, said today the breakwater "still has a number of hurdles to clear" before it is built.

A long and bitter argument over permission to build the rock breakwater ended officially, so far as council is concerned, when it voted 4-3 Tuesday to support the club's application to the department of transport.

The vote came after arguments by all members of council were heard on the subject. Bitterest opponent of the breakwater on council was Mayor Frances Elford, who suggested a "year or two delay" for hydraulic testing before the application was approved.

Also opposed were aldermen Alan Hoey and John Goult. Voting in favor were aldermen Douglas Watts, Brian Smith, Norman Pimlott and Shirley Dowell.

Henry, 3295 Beach Drive, told the Times the club faces opposition in financing of the plan — and opponents to the breakwater concept — within the department of transport.

'SMART PEOPLE'

"The DOT has some smart people. There is a fair possibility they won't approve the idea on the question of height alone," Henry said.

The breakwater, to cost an estimated $160,000, would stand an average six feet above water level. It would run 600 feet into Cadboro Bay off the entrance to Loon Bay.

"We wish to commend Mayor Elford for her clear and determined stand for the interests of Oak Bay municipality as a whole," Henry said.

Other members of council, who supported the proposal, were either "insufficiently informed, lacking in understanding or unable to perceive the broad picture of what is best for Oak Bay . . . or they were politically motivated," Henry said.

"The breakwater is not yet built, and an expression from Oak Bay taxpayers might still be effective . . . to prevent this disaster."

LAWYER OBJECTS

A brief skirmish erupted during the council meeting when Ald. Dowell questioned the authenticity of a petition circulated by breakwater opponents.

Lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, representing the opposition, told council Ald. Dowell had made a "personal attack" on him and asked for a withdrawal of her remarks. "I don't withdraw anything I said," Ald. Dowell said.

After the meeting, engineer John Graeme, chairman of the club's breakwater committee, expressed cautious optimism at the council decision.

"We are pleased with the decision and by the very fair treatment afforded us by council," Graeme said.

Master Plan Charge 'Absolutely Ridiculous'

Oak Bay alderman Shirley Dowell came under fire this morning for an attack Tuesday night in which she accused "a handful of rebels" of disrupting the University of Victoria campus.

Referring to a "smear campaign" against Uvic president Bruce Partridge, Mrs. Dowell said she was "absolutely appalled" at the situation.

She named former student president Norman Wright and said the disruptions were "part of a master plan by Mr. Wright to overthrow the administration."

Mrs. Dowell said she had called the university and been given information about Wright. More than $6,000 "of taxpayers money" has already been used by him, she said, "to cause this unrest."

'PETULANT'

Wright this morning denied the charge he had used $6,000 to create unrest as "absolutely ridiculous."

"Mrs. Dowell's petulant remarks about me contain the full quota of innuendo which has become the hallmark of recent statements by both the university administration and those who speak on their behalf.

"Her limited experience of public affairs must be to blame for the fact that she can totally misinterpret the events on this campus as a 'master plan' by any individual," he said.

'UNIMPORTANT'

Faculty Association president Dr. Charles Doyle also rallied to Wright's defence, although he dismissed Mrs. Dowell's accusations as "unimportant."

"It seemed to me she was probably just airing her prejudices," Doyle said. "She can't have close and accurate information about the situation.

"She talks about Partridge being smeared. That's kind of a smear in itself."

Oak Bay council also received a petition signed by Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Wolfe and 15 other residents of the municipality.

It said:

"Because of the proximity of the University of Victoria to Oak Bay, the quality of that university must surely reflect on our community . . .

"As things stand now this university has been censured by the executive of the CAUT. If the full Council of the CAUT accepts the officials' recommendations and censures the University of Victoria, the effect on the university and its students will be drastic. Degrees which are obtained only after the expenditure of much effort, time and money will be markedly devalued. A graduate from a university with a better name will definitely have the edge over a University of Victoria student.

"All of us who can read know that two or three years ago our local newspapers, the Daily Colonist and the Victoria Daily Times, gave us glowing enthusiastic accounts of the new president of the university and his superlative qualifications. Everyone was very happy — Uvic would grow to be a credit to Victoria, to British Columbia and to Canada. What has happened since then? Where are those exceptional qualifications? Why have the governors of the university not offered the citizens any reasons, or excuses, or remedies for this fiasco?

"How can we expect the younger generation to have any respect for us older ones if we do not take a stand on this important issue? The young people are the chief losers — but we too lose something if we do nothing. We lose some of our integrity. We, the undersigned, ask council to take a look at the situation and make your position known to the board of governors."

Visitor Dies In Canyon Fall

A 28-year-old man believed to have fallen 150 feet was found dead Tuesday at Niagara Canyon in Goldstream provincial park.

Colwood RCMP identified him as Frank Pretula who is from out-of-town and had been visiting his mother Donna Pretula, 923 McLure.

A 32-year-old German tourist, Herbert Otto Hohans, died in a fall from the same cliff less than a year ago.

Pretula's body was found by hikers at 1:30 p.m., at the bottom of the canyon a few feet from a pool of water. It is believed there were no witnesses.

A provincial parks branch official said warning signs have been posted and painted on rocks in the Canyon area. But guard rails along the trail will not be put up.

This is impractical, he said, for many spots on the trail are dangerous. This is the case with many trails in provincial parks.

Parks director Robert Ahrens said policy is not to erect guard rails.

"In the end, we each must be responsible for our own safety," Ahrens said.

Man Dies From Burns

A landlord who attempted to rescue an 80-year-old man killed in a house fire Sunday morning died in Royal Jubilee Hospital late Tuesday afternoon.

Edwin Kaye, 68, had been in poor condition with burns to his face and body since the fire at his home at 1016 Queens.

He had attempted to save tenant Ernest Greenwood from his upstairs room and was found lying outside the room.

Faculty Votes Aid For 3 in Dispute

The Faculty Association at the University of Victoria authorized at a general meeting Tuesday night establishment of a legal aid fund for three faculty members involved in a tenure and contract dispute with the administration.

The motion to create a legal aid fund of $1,000 on behalf of Dr. Tikam Jain, Dr. William Goede and Toby Graff drew overwhelming support, a spokesman said this morning.

The fund was authorized for administration by the executive of the association.

"There was feeling that the association should put a legal counsel on retainer," the spokesman said.

Jain, Goede and Graff have been involved in a lengthy and complex dispute since last year. Their cases have been central issues in student and faculty discontent which has produced votes of non-confidence in president Bruce Partridge.

Later Tuesday night Dr. Charles Doyle was elected new president of the association, succeeding Don Harvey.

Esquimalt Gets Sewerage Loan

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has approved a $100,000 loan for part of the Capital Regional District's sewerage work in Esquimalt, Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson said today.

The loan, repayable over 15 years, will go towards the $150,000 cost of three pump stations and 2,650 feet of four-inch and six-inch force mains in the dockyard and Craigflower-Admirals areas.

AT INTERVALS through the years, I have uttered dolorous croaks about the state of affairs along Vancouver Island's great north road. Now Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich has discovered that all is not as it should be, what with car graveyards, unsightly industrial blotches, and suchlike visual pollution.

But Mayor Hugh's outburst didn't cover enough territory. It set Nanaimo, the self-proclaimed bathtub capital of North America, Lord help us, as its northern limit, whereas the unsightlier aspects of rural sprawl don't end there.

Except for too-brief interludes, the traveller who seeks relief from roadside clutter needn't hope for it until he has left Campbell River behind and is well along the blacktop that leads to Kelsey Bay.

I don't really expect the municipalities concerned, or the provincial government itself, to do much about ribbon development as it has multiplied along our Trans-Canada and Island Highways. As a matter of fact, there's little that they can do.

Plant some trees, maybe. Persuade the operators of junk car middens to build highway-fronting fences . . . which, come to think of it, would hardly contribute to the pleasures of a run north. Preserve buffer zones along reaches where private enterprise in one form or another has so far failed to rear its head.

Otherwise, a return of the highway strip to sylvan semblance could only be brought about through a wholesale pushing-back of man's works from the verges.

That would call for massive expropriation, a remedy which I for one would find much worse than the ailment.

The sort of thing that offended the Saanich mayor's vision didn't come about overnight. It is the product of many years during which population increase wasn't paced by municipal or senior government planning. I suspect that it also offers a preview of the Vancouver Island east coast future.

More population. More clutter. And eventually, as already heavy traffic pressures increase, a drastically revised highway which for much of its length will forsake the coast for points inland.

Meanwhile, I wish Mayor Curtis well in his attempt to remove eyesores from our present route, which I love most dearly in spite of its faults and flaws.

If he can do no more than persuade Mayor Frank Ney of the Bathtub Capital to yank out that roadside sign advertising his city's claim to fame, I'll be grateful!

Here's a letter from Victoria artist-designer Barbara Burns, who feels that craftsmen of this area would fare better if their individual efforts at marketing their work could be replaced by a co-operative venture.

"Surely the best reward the craftsmen could hope for," she writes, "is more exposure and sale of their work throughout British Columbia and abroad."

As a means of bringing this about, she suggests a B.C. design and craft centre, to be operated on a non-profit basis. It would function as a clearing house where dealers could select and purchase work for future retailing.

"Screened B.C. crafts carrying a seal of quality on them would encourage the artist to improve his product," Mrs. Burns points out.

"Only in this way can the oft shy, non-salesman artist feel he has a distribution centre, along with 'if not approved, why not' control over what he produces. Surely with so much talent under our noses, it wouldn't be asking too much to promote such a craft distribution centre."

Would the producing craftsman reap worthwhile benefits if one were organized here? What, if any, are the difficulties he would encounter?

I'll welcome a breakdown from any craft-occupied reader who may have dealt with such a centre elsewhere.

One Good Period Not Quite Enough

BILL WALKER

This, in essence, was supposed to be seven whole days away from it all. But if the setting on the south slope of Mount Tolmie was expected to supply all the necessary excitement, it failed the test, if only partly. An event of unusual consequence in Boston had intervened. For it was there that a dynasty had tottered, and fallen. A new team of destiny had been born.

It was a surprising finish on that Sunday afternoon. Montreal Canadiens, in a dramatic turn of events, had beaten the best club in all of hockey, and they had handled the Boston Bruins, well, too.

For this was the Boston Gardens, "The Bear Pit." Surely the Bruins couldn't lose at home again? They had been embarrassed earlier in their National Hockey League series when they blew a 5-1 lead into the horror of a 7-5 defeat. Then they had gone behind two games to one in the series, only to rally and take a three-to-two margin. Then came disaster. It wasn't so much that the Canadiens had forced the deciding game in seven by winning big at home in the sixth game, 8-3. But the Habs had to more than make good in the finale. They had to win in Boston, and at the same time destroy the myth that the Bruins were invincible. They did both.

But now, even in retrospect, it still is hard to believe. For Boston was the most talked about team in the country. Scoring and individual records tumbled with every late-season game the Bruins played. They had the game's youngest superstar, Bobby Orr. They had what they believed history's greatest line — Phil Esposito, Ken Hodge and Wayne Cashman. They had won easily during the year, and almost, it seemed, when they pleased.

In all, it was a slightly unbelievable season. And if the Bruins weren't exactly odds-on favorites to take the series against Montreal, and roll on unmolested to a second straight Stanley Cup triumph, there were few who would bet against it.

But stumble they did. And when the fall proved fatal, it was either that they were the victims of a serious let-down, or they couldn't match up to a slightly superlative performance by the Canadiens. Because if Montreal wasn't exactly the classic underdog club, it certainly wasn't ecpected to win, either.

Coach Al MacNeil of the Canadiens had to be surprised too, although he tried not to show it. He was openly sarcastic of all the so-called experts after the Habs had taken the early series lead. But that was understandable. Because if he couldn't actually believe his good fortune, he had a hard time explaining it, too. But that could have been his own version of a psyche job. Complacency had no place in the Hab plans. They still had much to do.

After all, hadn't he taken over from the reluctant Claude Ruel in mid season? And hadn't his first task been to restore unity to the team? He had to get the wingers to talk to the defencemen, and in the same language. One they could understand.

It had been that kind of a season in Montreal. The players wouldn't play as well as they could for Ruel. So he quit. He asked to. But they would play for MacNeil. So he finished the season in impressive fashion, too, except for those two last-week defeats by Boston. This had confused the issue. The Montreal thinking was muddled. And it was no clearer after the first playoff game, either. Boston, as expected, had won.

But suddenly, in the second game, at Boston, the Bruins were no longer that impressive. They had chucked it, and blown a 5-1 lead. The season-long Boston domination, if not over, was suddenly suspect.

If there had been the merest hint of the possibility of a collapse, the Canadiens obviously recognized it in that game. They had a new hope, and now it is history that they brought it off to a successful conclusion.

In the final, the Habs simply outplayed the Bruins. It was Boston, not Montreal, which was playing scared. The Habs clearly outhustled and outskated the big, bad Bruins, and if their defence was admirable, the reason was simple. They contained the two men they had to contain — Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito.

●

And if there still is some lingering doubt that the Habs weren't full value for their victory, then what about goalie Ken Dryden?

For who ever heard of a coach using a rookie against the greatest scoring machine the game of hockey has ever known? Especially in the playoffs! And that rookie having played only six games in his entire NHL career. What affrontery? Besides, he was leaving himself, and the rookie goalkeeper, wide open to criticism.

For who could blame Dryden if he cracked under the pressure. Similar fates had befallen others before him. Perhaps better goalkeepers, too. But if Dryden was to knuckle under, he never showed the strain. And although he was bombed with rubber throughout the series, and beaten three times, at the finish he was supreme.

He had helped to reduce a once, magnificent scoring team to very ordinary status. And the beaten Bruins, to a man, were quick to heap praise upon him. For if it wasnt' his giant figure which was blocking shots, it was his golden glove which was plucking them out of the air. That's what had finally racked up the Bruins.

But there had to be a big vote here for MacNeil. As one rookie to another his move in using Dryden has to be admired. More important, it paid off.

Lemaire's Three Spark Canadiens To 7-2 Walkaway

MONTREAL (CP)—Captain Ted Harris of Minnesota North Stars did the best job of describing the first game of the National Hockey League semi-final between the North Stars and Motnreal Canadiens.

"We had a real good 20 minutes," he said after the game Tuesday night. "The trouble is the game is 60 minutes long."

The North Stars did look good in the first period. But after that it was all downhill for the West Division team as the Canadiens' pumped seven goals past goaltender Lorne (Gump) Worsley en route to a 7-2 win and a 1-0 lead in the series.

"What are those Canadiens made of?" asked Bobby Rousseau, the right winger Canadiens traded to the North Stars last summer. "They come off a tough series with Boston and you'd think they would have a letdown. But no way."

The North Stars outskated and outplayed Montreal in the opening period and grabbed a 1-0 lead at 11:45 on Danny Grant's power-play goal.

GOT JUMP

The North Stars, appearing in their first Stanley Cup series against an East Division team, appeared to have caught the Montrealers off guard.

"We didn't start out well at all," commented Montreal coach Al MacNeil. "We weren't at our best.

"I don't know why. You could say it was a letdown after the Boston series, but I don't think so.

"They just moved in the second period. There was no emotional pleading or pitch on my part."

The Canadiens started to skate in the second period and fired four goals past Worsley, their ex-team-mate.

TARDIF TIES IT

Marc Tardif tied the score at 1-1 at 5:48 with a blistering shot from inside the blueline and then Jacques Lemaire scored three times to tie a National Hockey League playoff record for most goals in a period by an individual player.

Lemaire sent Montreal ahead 2-1 at 11:07 combining with Henri Richard and Frank Mahovlich on a three-way passing play.

Four minutes, later, he beat Worsley with a shot to the short side and added his third goal with 69 seconds remaining in the period.

Lemaire said he was unaware he had tied the record. He also had words of praise for his line-mate Frank Mahovlich.

"He's strong and tough and very hard to move. Therefore, he's usually in the right spot at the right time."

SCORE THREE MORE

In the third period, the Canadiens kept right on top of the visitors getting three goals—one each from Tardif, Frank Mahovlich and Guy Lapointe—while Bill Goldsworthy was the Minnesota scorer.

"We'll know more by Thursday," said Minnesota coach Jackie Gordon. "We didn't look sharp. It's been a long layoff for us from last Thursday to Tuesday and I think we were affected by it.

"We got away from our checking game and weren't playing positional hockey after the first period."

Gordon said that Cesare Maniago would start in nets for Minnesota in the second game of the series Thursday night.

"I planned to alternate my goalies on a game-to-game basis anyway. Gump played all right. He didn't have too much help out there tonight."

MacNeil on the other hand would not name his starting goalie. Rookie Ken Dryden played in goal Tuesday night and faced only 28 shots.

Both teams have scheduled practices for today.

"We have some work to do," said MacNeil.

"We've had two days off since training camp and I don't want to give them any more days off now," said Gordon.

PLEASE DON'T MISS IT

Front-row seat for Stanley Cup hockey playoff isn't enough for this fan. Montrealer brought portable television set to Tuesday's Minnesota-Canadiens game, presumably to see scoring replays. Montreal defeated North Stars 7-2 and, unquestionably, this fan didn't miss a thing.

Playmaking Satisfies Koroll As Hawks, Dennis Find Range

CHICAGO (CP)—It didn't matter to Cliff Koroll that he scored what proved to be the winning goal in Chicago Black Hawks' 3-0 victory over New York Rangers Tuesday night.

To the Chicago right winger, it was more important that he helped Dennis Hull break a playoff drought.

Koroll's first-period goal put the Hawks in front 1-0, then Hull scored in the second and third periods as Chicago evened the best-of-seven National Hockey League semi-final series at one game each.

Koroll's goal came after Ranger goaltender Ed Giacomin failed to hang on to a Stan Mikita shot. And his assist came when he and Hull combined in a second-period break with only Ranger defenceman Rod Seiling between them and goaltender Ed Giacomin.

Hull, streaking down the left wing, passed to Koroll, who returned the pass after drawing Giacomin. Hull flipped the puck high into the net for the score that took the pressure off the Hawks.

"The goal was a big one," Koroll said, "But I like the assist a little better.

"It got Dennis on the scoreboard and gave us a 2-0 lead," he said.

Hull, elated after shaking the playoff slump, thought for a while he couldn't buy a playoff goal after scoring 40 times in regular-season play.

First Playoff Shutout for Tony

Giacomin was pulled in the last minute of play in favor of an extra attacker but Dennis Hull again ended the threat with a long shot into the unprotected goal with 15 seconds left.

Hawk goaltender Tony Esposito wasn't excited about his first-ever playoff shutout.

"I don't care about the shutout," he said bluntly. "We won the game."

"It's now a three-out-of-five series and home ice doesn't mean much," said Chicago coach Billy Reay. "It hasn't meant much in the playoffs this year.

"The game was very similar to the one Sunday night which the Hawks lost 2-1 in overtime except that maybe we skated a little faster tonight. This club has come through in the past like they did tonight."

Giacomin, whose outstanding goaltending in the first game allowed the Rangers to overcome 1-0 first-period deficit, said his team-mates were going to have to score more goals to win the series.

"You can't just wait to score in the last couple of minutes," he said. "In the last two games, we haven't done well.

"It's tough when you don't have goals," he explained. "The pressure mounts—you know the next mistake could be another goal and then . . . but give the guy at the other end credit."

The New York goaltender said a cut to his left hand that required five stitches to close suffered in a collision with Chicago's Bobby Hull in the first game didn't trouble him Tuesday night.

"The hand didn't bother me at all," he said, displaying the bandaged hand to reporters.

Emile Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers, didn't appear upset over the loss.

"We just got through winning two overtime games on the road in Toronto and in Chicago," he said. "We're not going to cry about it."

KAREN GRABS PROVINCIAL PIN CROWN

VANCOUVER — Victoria's Karen Roberts captured a provincial crown and just missed out on a Western Canada title in a dual high school fivepin bowling tournament at Chapman's Reacreations.

The 16-year-old Esquimalt High School student rang up a 969 four-game total to win the B.C. championship but was 58 points behind Della Ferguson of Thunder Bay in the Western Canada competition in which scores were telephoned in to a central point.

Bill Candine of Winnipeg won the boys' Western Canada title with 1,111 while Bob Gibbons of New Westminster won provincial laurels with 1,075.

Senior 'C' Boxla

Efforts are being made in the city to form a Senior C men's lacrosse team.

Players interested in the formation of such a team are asked toget in touch with Sid Lougheed at 382-4405.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Returning to winners' list in Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest is Helen Vaupel, who captured women's tenpin honors during 26th and final week of eighth annual competition. Helen was missing from list last season but came back with 207-170-186—563 series in Ladies' Classic League at Mayfair Lanes to earn weekly honors and berth in Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on May 2.

Calgarian Leads Empress Tourney

Grant Hans of Calgary's Inglewood Club breezed in as a late starter Tuesday to capture the first round lead with a net 67 in the 41st annual Empress Hotel golf tournament.

Joe Kelly of Vancouver's Marine Drive, who had earlier led the field of 100 golfers through a windy round with a sparkling net 68, was alone in second place.

Mrs. Clara Ulrichsen of Calgary, led the women's division with a net 79, one stroke better than Mrs. P. V. Frith of Pitt Meadows, B.C.

The medal-play will continue at the Victoria Golf Club for two more rounds for the Sir Edward Beatty trophy.

Top rounds for men, besides Hans were: Joe Kelly, Vancouver, 68; Willard Soames, Seatle, 70; Gordon Greenwood, Victoria, 70; Bob Davis, Tacoma, 70; Jack Foley Vancouver, Wash., 70; R. E. Wilkins, Capilano, Vancouver, 71; Mac Parsons, Red Deer, Alta., 72; Merv Coulter, Victoria, 73; Bill Templeton, Calgary, 73; Jim Snider, Portland, 73; Ray Tull, Calgary, 73; Preston Varney, Seattle, 73; Glenn Weyenbergg, Wenatchee, 73.

Were They Mad!

By The Associated Press

Clay Dalrymple was mad. So was Earl Weaver. And Dick McAuliffe . . . ooh, was he mad!

It was just a mad, mad, mad world at Tiger Stadium Tuesday night.

McAuliffe capped a night of madness by bouncing into catcher Dalrymple at home with the winning run that gave Detroit Tigers a 7-6 victory over Baltimore Orioles. The ninth-inning collision almost touched off a wholesale fight as both American League benches emptied, but it was stalled by the umpires.

"That's the way you're supposed to play the game," said losing manager Earl Weaver, referring to catchers blocking the plate.

"Ellie Hendricks did it earlier to Joe Niekro and Bill Freehan did it to Boog Powell . . . so Dalrymple was going to do it to McAuliffe."

Weaver pointed to the fifth inning when Hendricks, the starting Baltimore catcher, was flattened while blocking the plate in a collision with Detroit pitcher Joe Niekro. The run preceded Jim Northrup's three-run home run.

CAUGHT BY KALINE

In the Orioles' five-run eighth inning that tied the game at 6-6, Powell roared home, but was cut down by an Al Kaline throw after a single to right field. In this case, Freehan was blocking the plate, too.

Northrup then lashed a single to left off Pete Richert that chased home McAaliffe. Greeting the Tiger runner with open arms was Dalrymple, an eighth inning sub. Only trouble was, he didn't have the ball.

"McAuliffe never touched home," said Weaver," but it didn't matter—Dalrymple was ruled for catcher interference."

After McAuliffe got up, Dalrymple followed him from home and tagged him. McAuliffe shoved Dalrymple, Dalrymple shoved back and the other players joined in before the umpires quieted things.

Elsewhere, Washington Senators defeated New York Yankees 8-2, Boston Red Sox whipped Cleveland Indians 4-2, Minnesota Twins nudged Kansas City Royals 5-4, Chicago White Sox stopped Milwaukee Brewers 7-1 and Oakland Athletics beat California Angels 4-0.

GIANTS, EXPOS LOSE

In the National League, St. Louis Cardinals ended San Francisco Giant's nine-game winning streak, Montreal Expos fell out of first place, and Phil Niekro of Atlanta found his knuckle ball again.

The Cards defeated the Giants, 2-1, Montreal was shut out 1-0 by Philadelphia, behind Chris Short's three-hitter, and Niekro allowed Pittsburgh Pirates only six hits in a 2-0 Atlanta victory. Hank Aaaron hit a two-run homer for the Braves.

In other games, Cincinnati Reds edged New York Mets, 3-2, on Johnny Bench's two run homer in the eighth inning, Chicago Cubs downed Houston Astros, 3-1, and Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Diego Padres, 6-2.

Niekro, who pitched Atlanta to the championship of the NL West in 1969 with 23 victories, slipped to 12-18 last season and his non-knuckler was tattooed for 40 home runs. After the season he worked with the Braves' instructional league team in Scottsdale, Ariz., and regained his touch.

THEY'RE HIS FRIENDS

He apparently came all the way back Tuesday night. Even during 1970s bad times, though, Niekro shut out the Pirates twice.

The Giants seemed a shoo-in to run their winning streak to 10 when they sent ace Juan Marichal against Reggie Cleveland of St. Louis, a 22-year-old native of Swift Current, Sask. Cleveland had lost all six of his major league decisions, including four last year.

But the Cards nicked Marichal for both their runs in the fourth on a walk to Matty Alou, who stole second and continued to third on Dick Dietz' throwing error, then scored on Joe Torre's single. Ted Simmons tripled for the deciding run.

Cleveland blanked the Giants until the eighth when they scored on Tito Fuentes' two-out single.

Ron Santo hit a two-run homer, Joe Pepitone tripled home a run and Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., hurled a six-hitter as the Cubs ended a four-game losing streak by beating the Astros.

MARSE JOE McCARTHY . . . hale and hearty at 84

'Keep Giving Boys Bats And a Place to Play . . .'

BUFFALO (AP) — Marse Joe McCarthy, manager of the great New York Yankees teams of the 1930s and '40s, turned a spritely 84 years old today.

The baseball Hall of Famer, whose black hair is streaked by only a few strands of gray, has been a gentleman farmer on his 61-acre Yankee Farm in nearby East Amherst, N.Y. since retiring in 1950.

Now McCarthy's main "managing" tasks are supervising nurses and housekeepers who care for his wife Elizabeth, an invalid for 64 years.

In a concession to his age, he permits others to tend his flower beds and crops.

He retains an excellent memory and has firm ideas on the endurance of baseball tradition.

'NOTHING WRONG'

"There's nothing wrong with baseball," he said in a pre-birthday interview. "Just provide the boys with bats and balls and a place to play and this country will continue to develop top players."

McCarthy notes that baseball games sometime lag because of "too many visits to the mound by managers before changing players."

He added: "A two-hour 30-minute game is about right, but there is no time block in baseball, and the fans love those extra-inning battles that go much longer.

"I remember one day in Chicago. Grover Cleveland Alexander pitched a game only a few minutes over an hour. The concessionaire complained he didn't have enough time to heat the hot dogs."

In his 16 years as pilot of the Yankees he led them to seven World Series titles, eight American League pennants and five second-place finishes.

WAS TOUGH BOSS

McCarthy was regarded as a strict disciplinarian of his players and a believer in tight-knit team performance, despite the fact he managed some of the top individual performers of all time—Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe Di Maggio and Ted Williams.

Gehrig has a special place in McCarthy's memory.

"He wasn't an easy man to know, but he was loyal every inch and with the stakes highest, the best clutch hitter I ever had."

McCarthy, who spent 15 years as a player but never made the major leagues, completed his managing career after three seasons with Boston Red Sox.

Jones, Vickery Finish on Top

Marg Vickery and Stan Jones emerged winners from the second annual Victoria city fivepin bowling championships and led qualifiers in the Pacific Coast fivepin trials staged jointly at the weekend.

Seven women and seven men will represent Victoria at the Pacific Coast event in New Westminister, May 22-24.

Mrs. Vickery rolled 1,376 at Cush's Bowl-a-Golf Spa on Saturday and finished the 18-game rolloffs with 1,476 at Capital City Bowladrome and 1,566 at Gibson's Bowladrome on Sunday for a 4,418 total.

June Peddlesden finished second with 4,301. Other women on the city team are Angy Nadin, Sena Guest, Evie Weinberger, Donna Brock and Min Mann.

Jones had a somewhat tougher time collecting the men's trophy and had to survive a late rally by Duncan's Ernie Moon. Jones added series of 1,671, 1,443 and 1,675 for a 4,789 total to edge Moon by 84 points.

Moon finished with the highest six-game block in the tourney — 1,773. Others qualifying for the men's squad were Wally Weinberger, Jake Jacob, John Hoult, Mike Thompson and Dennis Swonnell.

Out of the 14 qualifiers, three women (Mrs. Vickery, Mrs. Peddlesden, Mrs. Guest) and two men (Weinberger, Jacob) were members of the 1970 Victoria team which finished in a fourth-place tie with Burnaby. Surrey is the defending coast champion.

Dean, McTavish Win Grapple Bout

Dean Higuchi and Duncan McTavish got together Tuesday night to defeat Gene Kiniski and Dutch Savage in the feature tag-team bout of a professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

In other bouts, Ban Babich outgrappled Rick Renaldo, Jones bounced Billy Cody and Pancho Lopez downed John Anson.

Show Betting Returns, Horse Crashes Office

VANCOUVER — Show wagering for thoroughbred racing at Exhibition Park in Vancouver has been reinstated.

In making the announcement, a B.C. Jockey Club official said "there was quite bit of resentment to the move." to have win and place betting only.

Earlier the Jockey Club had cancelled show wagering and instituted a new system of quinella betting, which also found distavor with the bettors.

The change in betting had been an increase from $2 to $3, but it was not popular either and the original $2 quinella was reinstated on Monday.

There still is the exacta wagering at $2 and $5 in which a bettor is required to name the first and second horses in that order.

Meanwhile, there was excitement of another sort at Ex-Park on Tuesday.

A stable pony got loose in the racing secretary's office Tuesday morning, crashed through furniture and glass partitions, injured a woman, who was taken to hospital, and generally made a shambles of the office until he fell down at the end of a narrow corridor, and was brought under control.

It was believed that the injured woman had suffered broken ribs.

From Honda, the world's largest, most modern motorcycle factories come style and engineering that's years ahead.
CB350 — An overhead cam twin, with 4-stroke, 36-bhp engine. Ultra-wide Honda torque band, lets you purr around town all day long, way down the rpm scale, with plenty of power to keep up with the traffic. For highway riding you can rev to over 10,000 rpm, for more power than you'll ever need. Suggested price $951.
CB450 — This is the world's first double overhead cam motorcycle now fitted with a front disc brake for more stopping power. Valves controlled by torsion bars, 4 main bearings, twin CV carbs and many other design innovations. Suggested price $1,324.
CB750 Four — Here is motorcycling's finest 750-cc engine . . . 4-cylinder, 4-carb, 4-stroke, and this is the machine that won the famous Daytona classic the first time they let the modern 750s on the track — an average of 102 mph for 200 miles, including pit stops for gas. Equipped with the world's first motorcycle disc brake up front. Suggested price $1,515.

WATCH ROYAL FOOD

Staff of Greater Victoria's metro health board will keep a close eye on banquet arrangements during next month's Royal visit, board members were told Tuesday.

The board's senior medical health officer, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, said he has been asked to co-operate with other government departments in security arrangements.

This will involve strict supervision before and during state banquets at The Empress and Government House, he said.

In other business, board members decided to study draft regulations which would dictate public health facilities at marinas and consider the matter at the next meeting.

The proposals cover requirements for public washrooms, water supply and disposal systems for sewage pumped from boats.

Dr. Donald Shorting, representing the Greater Victoria school board, said school trustees intended looking elsewhere for any services the health board cannot provide this year.

The board authorized Whitbread to discuss the matter with A. J. Longmore, the school district's superintendent.

Court Plugs Bus Loophole

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court held unanimously Tuesday that federal courts may order bus transportation of public school children as a means of desegregating schools.

"Desegregation plans cannot be limited to the walk-in school," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in announcing the most important ruling of the current Supreme Court term.

Among the court's findings was that the North Carolina law prohibiting "busing" is unconstitutional because it prevents implementation of desegration plans. The law forbade assignment of students on account of race or for the purpose of creating racial balance.

Additionally, it prohibited "involuntary" bus transportation as well as the use of public funds for such transportation.

Health Board Joins Protest Against Mine Dumping Plan

Greater Victoria's Metropolitan Health Board Tuesday joined those protesting a proposed mine discharge system near Jordan River.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, the board's senior medical health officer, told members at their regular monthly meeting that he had studied the system planned by Dison Developments Ltd. at the request of the deputy minister of health and had already recorded his opposition.

After hearing details, the board decided it would also record its opposition with the provincial government's Pollution Control Branch, the agency assessing the company's application for a permit to discharge up to a million gallons a day of effluent from its copper concentrator.

Jordan River residents, commercial fishermen and conservationists have already expressed opposition to the Dison application and the Capital Regional Board has suggested certain safeguards would be needed before it would be satisfied.

Whitbread said Tuesday the mine discharge would be 25 per cent rock particles, including traces of copper, nickel, iron, chromium, molybdenum, manganese and arsenic.

In its application the company sought to discharge the untreated effluent into a "lagoon," apparently right at the edge of a beach near Jordan River.

High Run-Off for Island

Higher than average snowpacks were reported on Vancouver Island and in southern B.C. generally as of April 1.

Above average spring runoffs are predicted as a result but weather conditions in May and June will determine the ultimate effects, the provincial water resources service reports.

Preliminary water streamflow data supplied by the federal government showed that March flows at Hope in the Fraser Valley were 136 per cent of the median for the 1931-60 period.

Provincial officials earlier said that a continuation of normal weather will mean no flood danger in the Fraser Valley.

The March streamflow at Sproat Lake in the Alberni region was 120 per cent of the median.

Why our lamb is such a good buy right now.

With just about everybody wanting high quality and low prices when they shop for meat, here's why New Zealand lamb should be on the top of your shopping list.

Spring Lamb's the thing
Tenderness is the first good thing about lamb. Particularly when it's spring lamb from New Zealand. Because spring lamb is young lamb. Born in the spring and carefully raised for meat.

Extra tenderness
New Zealand lamb starts out tender. Because it's always spring lamb. But to be extra sure the tenderness comes through to you, we developed back in New Zealand a new natural aging process. So even more now you know you're getting tender lamb every time. With New Zealand Lamb.

A family treat
New Zealand lamb has a mild delicate flavour. Children like it just as much as grownups do. Which makes lamb a nice change. A treat for the whole family.

Last point: the price
Yes, New Zealand lamb is one of the best meat values today. And with everybody trying to hold down the cost of grocery shopping, that's good news indeed.

So next time you shop...look in the frozen meat section for New Zealand Lamb. The tender meat that's a terrific value, right now.

SUNBATHING ON THE SAND is out at Cox Beach north of Long Beach on Vancouver Island's west coast because bits and pieces of congealed oil, carried in by the sea, cover the landscape. Eric Roberts, printer with Victoria Press Ltd., brought back these souvenirs from trip there last week. Most of the oil is in nickel and dime pieces which turn gummy when warmed by the sun, he said. Motel operator wouldn't let his customers wear their beach shoes indoors.

Man, 28, Convicted Over Cocaine Cache

DUNCAN — Adrian Goyette, 28, of Vancouver was convicted in provincial court here Monday of possessing drugs for the purpose of trafficking.

Court was told a bag containing LSD, MDA, hashish and cocaine was found at a house in nearby Maple Bay Feb. 22 and Goyette's fingerprints were found on packages of cocaine.

Goyette, arrested in Vancouver March 12, was remanded to May 5 on $3,000 bail.

HELPING MORALE

Grim Job Situation Resists Youth Centre

BY DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN — The newly-established youth employment centre here is encountering a hard time in making a dent in the tight job situation, but it is apparently helping to boost the morale of young people.

Although Cowichan Valley residents have been co-operating there are just no jobs, says Sean McKierahan, 20, who, with the help of Canada Manpower, set up the centre in early March.

McKierahan said that the centre has found jobs for 15 out of 250 applications from students looking for part and full-time work.

He said that once school and university ends this number will increase several times over.

McKierahan has approached about 55 local employers to determine their present and future employment needs and what they are looking for in an employee. He has prepared a pamphlet advising students on how to make a successful impression on a prospective employer.

●

McKierahan feels the centre is helping to ease the unemployment problems in the area but more important it is helping the morale of the young unemployed who "in this day of unemployment is just going through rejection after rejection."

After going through the same futile procedures looking for a job in Victoria McKierahan said he returned to Duncan "where the situation seemed pretty bad. There seems to be a lot of young people in the same position as I.

"My idea of the youth employment centre wasn't this. I had just thought of something where the youths could meet with ideas and arrange to do casual jobs. This is great." McKierahan said job hunting to a young person is often depressing and demoralizing when he does not have much work experience.

McKIERAHAN

... 250 applications

"All many of them have to offer is a basic honesty and a strong back."

As well as trying to place students in permanent, part-time, or summer work McKierahan said he is counting on householders to contact him when they may have any casual jobs such as gardening, painting, window washing and babystitting to be done.

"Even if it is only a half-day's work the students are eager to take it," he said.

●

The youth employment concept was introduced into the Duncan area after McKierahan approached city council for assistance in January. After giving the idea its full support council then approached Manpower which decided to include the services within their Duncan facilities on a trial basis for six months.

"This is not unique," McKierahan said. "Many Manpower offices across Canada have set up student employment centres."

Pilot Uninjured

EDMONTON (CP) — The pilot escaped injury but the plane was damaged when a Canadian Forces aircraft made a forced landing Tuesday night, 57 miles southeast of Saskatoon.

Capt. Ormes Hayden-Bailey, the pilot from 448 Squadron at Cold Lake, Alta., was ferrying a Chipmunk plane from Portage La Prairie, Man., to Saskatoon.

Capt. Hayden-Bailey reported that he tried to land on a highway near Plunkett, Sask., but the plane came to rest in a ditch damaging the undercarriage and the propeller.

A Canadian Forces spokesman at Edmonton said the cause of the forced landing has not been determined.

Levy Protested

EDMONTON (CP) — Calgary and Edmonton have jointly protested an Alberta government plan to which they said would raise the cost of regional planning, Mayor Ivor Dent said Tuesday.

The delegations met Municipal Affairs Minister Fred Colborne to protest a bill now before the legislature which Mayor Dent said would raise Edmonton's cost of regional planning to $800,000 a year from $90,000.

Under the legislation there would be a one-mill levy against municipalities to pay for regional planning commissions.

Council Credited

VANCOUVER (CP) — President F. G. Peskett of the Employers' Council of B.C. says last year's forest, concrete, construction and towboat industry labor disputes would have been "a great deal worse" had it not been for the council. He says the "presence and performance of the business community through the employers' council" smothered the disputes.

Disease Feared

VANCOUVER (CP) — Australia's refusal to import Canadian apples is not a restrictive trade practice, Australian trade commissioner John Chapman said Tuesday.

He said it is part of a policy designed to protect his country's primary products against the introduction of disease.

Chapman was commenting on the action of British Columbia apple growers who demonstrated here in protest against what they called unfair apple trade between Canada and Australia.

Thief Makes Rounds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Owners of three separate shops at a Gastown address reported to police Tuesday that their premises had been ransacked. Police said $3,000 worth of Persian jewelry and vests of intricate patterns and colors was stolen from the Persian Boutique, a basement shop. They said the thief then went upstairs and took $24 in jewelry and food from The Treasure Chest and $132 in cigarettes and other goods from The Handi Shop.

Government Intervened Seven Times

OTTAWA (UPI — The federal government has intervened directly in labor disputes seven times in Canadian history, all in the years since 1950.

Legislation was used three times to halt or avert railway strikes, and all seven interventions involved transportation.

The first compulsory back-to-work legislation was the maintenance of Railway Operations Act. The Liberal government of prime minister Louis St. Laurent used it to end a national rail strike after a 10-day shutdown in 1950.

GAIN STRIKE

In April, 1953, St. Laurent used wartime powers to end a grain elevator strike on the west coast after 80 days. Under a cabinet order, he used the emergency powers act to appoint a controller over the five struck elevators.

On July 25, 1958, Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker pushed through parliament the British Columbia Steamship Service Act. This ended a west coast shipping strike after 70 days.

In 1960, Diefenbaker again used legislation, to avert a threatened Dec. 15 national rail strike. Parliament passed the Railway Operation Continuation Act on Dec. 2, which prohibited a strike until May 15 of the following year. The dispute was settled in the meantime.

Liberal prime minister Lester Pearson used legislation in 1963 to appoint trustees for Great Lakes shipping unions after a scandal over union operations. This was the Maritime Transportation Unions Trustees Act, passed on Oct. 18, 1963.

RIVER ROW

After a 38-day strike at St. Lawrence river ports, parliament passed the St. Lawrence Ports Working Conditions Act on July 15, 1966.

Later in 1966, Pearson again was forced to use legislation to end a seven-day national railway strike.

So far, the Trudeau government has avoided any use of legislation to end strikes.

BENSON IN NO HURRY TO SPRING NEW BUDGET

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson appears to be in no hurry to introduce an early spring budget with any substantial change in current government taxing and spending policies.

He told a labor organization this week that to accede to its demands for substantial personal income tax cuts would deprive the treasury of so much revenue that it would have to borrow large amounts of money to pay its bills, with the result that interest rates would be forced up and a new round of inflation sparked.

This was in line with earlier indications from senior government officials that they believe the economy is running along well enough for the present, after the government announced new injections of capital into housing loans and other measures involving additional spending to stimulate growth.

Mr. Benson later told the Commons he has not decided on a date for a spring budget, or whether or not his package of sweeping changes in the Income Tax Act based on the November, 1969, white paper would be introduced at the same time.

OPTION STILL OPEN

The finance department was for a time earlier this year thinking that a budget dealing with current fiscal and monetary policies might be introduced before the tax law revision. That option is still open to the minister, a departmental source said, but if the economy continues to perform as well as the department hopes, a general budget may not be necessary.

Mr. Benson last presented a budget to the Commons Dec. 3, setting up a $150 million loan fund for job-creating provincial public works, increasing unemployment insurance benefits 10 per cent, and extending regional development grants to the Montreal, Hull, Que., and Eastern Ontario regions.

But it was not as complete as a usual spring budget.

The tax law revision now is not likely to be ready for introduction in Parliament much before the end of May, and a June forecast seems more certain.

Smallwood Must Call Vote Before Year End

By ED WALTERS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Only Premier Joseph Smallwood knows when a Newfoundland election will be held this year and he is unlikely to reveal the date until exactly three weeks before voting day.

Advance notice of an election beyond the statutory 21 days could harden muscles already being displayed by the 70-year-old premier's chief opponents in the legislature.

Most observers expect the election in late June or early September. The government's five-year term expires Dec. 31.

Major issues are likely to be government spending and economic development.

It will be Mr. Smallwood's seventh election since he led Newfoundland into Confederation in 1949. All elections except his third—in 1956—were called before the statutory fifth year.

One of the most spectacular of his five victories was in the last election, in 1966, when the Liberals took 39 of the 42 seats, a gain of six from the 1962 election. In 1959, before redistribution increased the number of constituencies, the Liberals took 31 of 33.

Since the last election, defections—partly the result of a bitter 1969 leadership race won by the premier—death and retirements have cut government strength to 29 members.

There now are six Progressive Conservatives, three Independent Liberals, one independent and three vacancies.

Some sources believe Mr. Smallwood will have to field between 16 and 20 new candidates. Many long-time members, including Justice Minister L. R. Curtis, 75, are not expected to run again.

CROSBIE LEADS ATTACK

The strongest attacks have come from John C. Crosbie, leader of the three-man Independent Liberal reform group and member for St. John's West.

Mr. Crosbie resigned as health minister in 1968 in disagreement with the premier's economic policies and after being defeated by Mr. Smallwood in the leadership campaign decided to become an Independent Liberal.

His main criticisms of the government are based on the province's debt and an oil-refinery deal with promoter John M. Shaheen of New York.

Mr. Crosbie claims the debt has reached $1,001 million. Mr. Smallwood says the debt is "hundreds of millions less than $1 billion."

Charred Remains Found Of Black Panther Member

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — The charred, scattered remains of a man believed to be Black Panther Party captain Fred Bennett were found at a remote revolutionary bomb factory near this coastal community, authorities disclosed Tuesday.

Police found the remains near a hideout in the Santa Cruz Mountains near the Santa Clara county line after an informant provided a map of the site. They said Bennett had been murdered about Jan. 6.

In and around a group of cabins authorities found 148 sticks of dynamite, quantities of nitroglycerin, fuses, timing devices, and dynamite caps.

A spokesman at Panther headquarters in Oakland, Calif., said "we have no statement to make" of the slaying.

The motive for the execution of Bennett, a Stanford University graduate student and frequent Panther rally speaker, was allegedly a disapproved romance with a woman Panther.

DIMENSION 71

KNIT AND STRETCH

SEWING CLASSES

The look of fashion for '71 is dynamic, vital, alive! It involves shape, proportion, and balance. Knit and Stretch sewing is part of this totally new fashion story, a new and exciting dimension in creativity. Woodward's is pleased to announce that a complete "Knit and Stretch" sewing course is now offered in our Fashion Fabrics department. It features the original Knit and Stretch Sewing Method as created by Miss Hendy Cameron, the first person to write a book about knit and stretch sewing. The course covers all areas of knit and stretch sewing, including lingerie, sports and fashion sewing. It is unique in that its approach is toward higher styled "couturier" fashion; a sewing method that will give basic instruction yet show you how to create professional-like fashions! Register now, in Dress Fabrics, Second Floor.

'COMMUNITY WITHIN COMUNITY'

Low Income Housing Plans Made

Plans are being laid in Victoria for a 100-unit low income housing project in which residents will live as a "community within a community."

Future residents will play an important role in the planning, development and administration of the project. They might even take part in the actual construction as a means of reducing costs.

Initially, however, organizers have not been able to rouse much interest in the scheme, perhaps because most people are accustomed to leaving the question of housing up to landlords, architects and developers.

SITE AVAILABLE

About 25 people attended a meeting to discuss the project Monday in the basement of St. Andrew's Cathedral. The meeting was sponsored by the Community Action Group and the Victoria Low Income Group.

It was decided to draw up a questionnaire-application for distribution among potential residents enabling them to define some of the features they would like to see incorporated into the project.

Henriette Pilon of the Low Income Group said a site is available but must remain a secret for now.

The concept behind the project is the community one of people shaping their own lives by controlling their environment and their institutions, Miss Pilon said.

Interpersonal relations between people living in the same place now are minimal or non-existent, and this is unnatural, she said, because human beings develop through contact with others.

"People right now are accepting a way of life where they're isolated in a little box or apartment that they didn't have any say in designing."

ISOLATION

Susan Talbot of the Community Action Group said people originally lived in towns and cities on a co-operative basis, but now city life means isolation for large numbers of people.

"People I know want to go back to this thing where they are helping each other," she said.

Neil Jackson is one of four architects who are interested in the housing project and who have offered to act as consultants.

He said Tuesday private ownership of land is one of the main factors in the current high cost of accommodation. With the profit motive removed, as it would be in the proposed low income project, costs could be kept down.

"The kind of commercial apartment building we now have is really the result of people investing private capital for a return on their investment, and the public assumes there aren't any alternatives to the apartments provided in these buildings," Jackson said.

The possibilities for community housing projects are limitless, he said, because they are inspired by their residents.

CROWN JEWEL DESSERT

1 Red Jelly Powder
1 Lime Jelly Powder
1 Lemon Jelly Powder
1 Pint Heavy Cream
½ Cup Sugar
1 Pkt. unflavoured Gelatin
¼ Cup Pineapple Juice
12 Graham Wafers
⅓ Cup Sugar
⅓ Cup Butter
1 Tsp. Cinnamon

Dissolve each jelly powder in 1½ cups very hot water. Pour into oiled, separate pans and chill. Whip pint of heavy cream, add ½ cup sugar gradually. Dissolve 1 pkt. unflavoured gelatin in ½ cup cold water, add to ½ cup hot water and ¼ cup pineapple juice. Add to whipped cream. Cut jelly into cubes and then add to combined ingredients. Pour into oblong pan lined with the following crumb mixture: 18 graham wafers rolled fine, ⅓ cup sugar, ⅓ cup butter, 1 tsp. cinnamon—combine and press into pan. Chill before adding jelly mixture.

Buying fresh produce is big job for us too

Just about every morning, our buyers are on the telephone to Nogales, or Tampa or Richmond shopping. And what are they buying? Grapefruit, celery, tomatoes, avocados, bok choy . . . all the fresh fruits and vegetables you have come to expect throughout the year no matter what the weather is like here. And they shop just as carefully as you do, querying the quality and the price so that they can deliver value. It's not an easy job because weather and economic conditions (often a long way from home) make getting consistant quality and value difficult.

But they do their shopping, determined to please the boss and they know, as does every other Woodward's buyer, that you, the customer, are their real boss.

The Mitzou Look

Spanish couturier Mitzou was as surprised as everyone else when the hot pants fad became a designer fashion.

"I designed a very few, thinking they would just be show case items, but people are buying them," she said in an interview following her fashion show at the Empress Hotel Monday afternoon.

Popularity of the fancy shorts is a direct result of the unpopularity of the midi, Mitzou believes.

Women didn't buy midis; now they are tired of pant suits, and they are buying shorts instead.

Mitzou's collection, given its North American premiere in Victoria, included 16 shorts outfits among the 46 leather and suede designs.

This year's travelling collection is geared to young women—especially young, thin, rich women — but many Mitzou designs are adaptable for the over-thirties.

Her trademarks include laced boots; shoes laced up the legs with strips of suede, in Greek sandal style; jockey or Garbo hats to match each outfit, and nailhead studs in whimsical patterns.

Victoria models Pam Gillan, Elizabeth Mahoney, Penny Moyes and Serinder Bains joined European models Regina and Babette for the show, and found them "fantastic" to work with.

Regina and Babette are freelancers who "prefer to work with Mitzou whenever we can."

The local models had their first rehearsal just an hour and a half before the show, but quickly learned the Mitzou military march from their European colleagues.

Mitzou thought they were great.

The show was repeated Monday evening and and will be seen in Vancouver Thursday.

Photos by Irving Strickland

A "cut-out" in gold leather tops a clinging jumpsuit worn by Mitzou model, Babette from France. The word 'Mitzou' can be read in the last row of cut-outs in the vest. Mitzou showed another evening jumpsuit in shining silver with ribbed shorts and a high turtle neck. Both create a flat sleek look.

The classic suede look is modeled by Penny Moyes in a forest green antelope suit with a chamois blouse.

Mitzou in her gaucho suit of natural chamois rests after the show, while Regina, top left, wears a "peasant" evening dress of bright green, yellow and navy leather. Penny Moyes wears pale blue and white leather wedding gown, above the knee in front, and forming a long train in back. Babette sits comfortably in her laced hot pants outfit of antelope.

Bright-eyed and tight-lipped, Regina marches out in a black and white leather tuxedo. The waisted jacket covers a chiffon blouse, a contrast Mitzou used in several outfits. The sandals, laced to mid-calf, were platform-soled.

The nailhead trim in horseshoe pattern on the black leather vest is a typical Mitzou touch. The vest is worn with a matching skirt with studs outlining the hem and the deep slit on one side.

The only non-leather garment at the show was a daffodil-yellow silk evening dress modeled by Serinder Bains. The hand-sewn beadwork is an example of the intricate trimming and finishing done by Spaniards in country districts.

The red-hot hot pants with a flair and a jockey hat that's just right are modelled by Regina, Mitzou's model from Germany. Regina wears the velvety smooth antelope jumpsuit with laced shoes. The length of the laces varies with each Mitzou outfit. Next-to-nothing eyebrows and outlined glossy lips are part of the forties revival.

Caramel-colored buckskin knickers are worn with matching buckle boots and the Mitzou wooden heel by Serinder Bains. The jacket yoke is hand-embroidered with green thread. Mitzou says knickers were meant to be made of leather.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Unwanted Son

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A while back you had a letter in your column from a woman who had a baby boy, but she had wanted a girl so desperately that she couldn't love the baby no matter how hard she tried. She confessed she even had thoughts of killing herself and killing the baby.

I am in a similar situation. After four years of marriage and a baby boy, now 3, my husband and I decided on a trial separation. While we were apart, I lived with another man and became pregnant by him. While pregnant I went back to my husband, told him the truth, and now we are reunited and happy again. My husband said he would let me decide whether I wanted to keep the baby or adopt it out. I first decided to adopt it out, but at the very last minute I changed my mind and kept it.

The baby is 3 months old now. He is very pretty and advanced for his age, but I just can't love him. My husband treats him like his own true son, but I hold so much resentment against the boy I can't stand to hold him or feed him. Now I wish I had given him away while I still had the chance. I know he deserves to be wanted like my first son is, but I keep wishing he would die, so I wouldn't have to raise him.

You recommended an adoption agency for the other mother. Can you do the same for me? I live near Worcester, Mass. Thank you.—Wish I Were Dead.

DEAR WISH: Yes. Please send me your name and address. It will be held in the strictest of confidence.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl. I have gone with boys since I was 12 and I have fooled around a lot but I am still a virgin (technically) and of that I am very sure.

I recently went to a clinic and the doctor there told me I had syphilis. I am being treated for it now. Abby, if you think this will help other girls who think they can't get syphilis unless they go all the way, I am telling you THEY CAN! I did. Maybe I should explain that I did some real heavy petting, and that is how I got it.—No Name, Please.

DEAR NO NAME: Your letter is well worth printing, and I thank you for wanting to share with others a lesson you learned the hard way.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I belong to a card club which meets once a month on Saturday night. We play bridge and then the hostess serves. We are through with refreshments at about 1 a.m. which should be late enough for anyone, right? Not this group! The men sit down again and play cards for another two hours while the other three women gossip and I fall asleep.

There are only four couples, so without us there wouldn't be any club. If I stay up until 3 a.m. I am no good the following day. It's my turn to have the party next. How can I get them to go home at a reasonable hour?—Sleepy.

DEAR SLEEPY: You can't, without making yourself very unpopular and inhospitable to boot. Obviously you're mixed up with a bunch of night owls, so since they're rarin' to go, let 'em, and YOU go to sleep.

DEAR ABBY: That Kansas gal who's dateless but pure should move one state to the south. I'm from Oklahoma and I know lots of young men there (including myself) who prefer nice girls.

Plenty of men still want pure girls. A hint: Try a church.—Okie.

DEAR ABBY: This is an open letter to those parents lucky enough to be able to have children, but who don't have love enough in their hearts to give them.

Abby, my husband and I have been on the waiting list to adopt a baby for a year and a half, and they are hard to get.

Many people keep babies they don't really want because of outside pressure from friends and relatives. These children grow up without knowing love and a good family life. Isn't it much better to give the child to some adoptive parents who desperately want a child than to raise it in an atmosphere where it is neither wanted nor loved?

Maybe this letter will show people that everyone isn't cut out to be a parent, even if they are able to bear children. And it is much more humane to give a child away than to keep it and raise it unloved.—Waiting In Anchorage.

DEAR WAITING: There are plenty of babies who desperately need love and a good home. They are not all pink and white, but they are no less deserving, and they are available. Think about it.

Lie on your back with your legs and arms straight, palms resting on your thighs. Lift your head and shoulders until your shoulders are about 10 inches above the floor. At the same time slide your arms along your legs. Hold for a count of five. Slowly return to starting position. When your muscles become stronger you can do this same exercise with your arms crossed over your chest, and later, with your hands behind your head. Do not arch your back. Let your head lead as your back rounds. This is a great abdominal exercise.

Measurements Real Test Of Figure Trouble Spots

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I repeatedly receive letters from readers who have followed my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan saying things like, "Thank you for the spark and encouragement you had in your columns. I had never been able to stick to a reducing routine before but they kept me at it this time until I lost 20 pounds."

Do you know what that spark was? It was sheer enthusiasm that somehow got into print. Do you know why I am enthusiastic? Because I know it is true; women can look five to 10 years younger in just eight weeks if they really want to.

With my own eyes I have seen them dig curves out of bulges with diet and exercise. I have watched the change from fatigue to energy, from self-consciousness to self-confidence, and from an apologetic personality to a vibrant one. Also, thousands of readers have written me about their success.

This is the third day of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan (Bip for short). This is a carefully planned course. Most of the women who take it wish to lose weight. However, many just want to improve their health or correct measurements which are out of proportion. It is not too late to join in.

If you have been following the series this week, you know what your ideal weight is and also how many calories you should have in order to lose two to two-and-a-half pounds a week. I hope you have started using the menus. Today, we will talk about measurements. These are the real test of a good figure.

You probably do not have to guess where you are out of proportion. However, it is wise to analyze your figure. Also, it is encouraging to compare future measurements with present ones. Women vary greatly. One may have a protruding abdomen while another may have large hips or bulging thighs or a thick waist. Nature is full of variety in such matters.

The most vital measurements are bust, waist, abdomen and hips, thighs and calves. Measure carefully. Try to hold the tape with the same tautness each time and be sure that it passes straight around your body, not dipping up or down.

Measure your bust around the fullest part. Measure without a bra or wear the same one each time. A difference in brassieres can make a difference in inches. Measure around your natural waistline, without a girdle. Measure around the fullest part of your abdomen and hips.

The long-time standard for a good figure has changed somewhat with the advent of the oversize bust. However it still helps as a guide. The bust and hips should be the same, with the waist 10 inches smaller. This may be impossible for some women, but it is something to shoot toward. Following are the menus for today.

Breakfast

½ small grapefruit
1 egg — scrambled with 4 sliced mushrooms and ½ tablespoon butter or margarine
1 English muffin with ½ tablespoon butter or margarine
Coffee or tea—black.

Luncheon

1-3 ounce meat patty—lean ground—broiled
8 ounces skim milk
Carrot sticks
Coffee or tea—black

Dinner

4 ounces lean pork roast—no juice or gravy
½ cup unsweetened apple sauce—flavor with mint, cinnamon or nutmeg
1 baked potato—season with garlic or onion salt or parsley or chives
Salad greens with ½ cup of orange sections
½ cup sherbert
Coffee or tea—black

Total calories — 1209

Watch for directions tomorrow.

If you have missed the first part of this series or would like to have the entire course in a BIP booklet which gives you complete directions, calorie-counted menus for two weeks, spot reducing exercises, calorie chart and a chart on which you can watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops, send 25 cents plus 15 cents for postage and handling and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of the Times.

Problem Panty Hose Provoke Anguish, Bitter Complaints

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sagging panty hose that wrinkle around the ankles and develop holes or runs are breaking the budgets and morale of millions of women.

Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan says they are entitled to bitter complaints.

"The anguish is real, but solutions seem to be elusive," she said in a House speech. "Many women understandably believe governments should be doing more — or at least doing something — about it."

Her correspondents insist there should be some standardization of lengths and foot sizes. But most of their angry complaints are directed against holes that appear in their panty hose.

Manufacturers generally guarantee the product against runs, and it is true that few runs appear. But women who wear panty hose say that holes are fully as unsightly as runs, if not more so.

At $3.50 a pair, a woman wrote Mrs. Sullivan, panty hose are the single most expensive article in her annual clothing budget.

"Nobody's fooling us — we know that non-ruinable panty hose could be manufactured if it were in the manufacturers' self-interest," she wrote.

"If stockings were a product used by men, Congress would have investigated their shoddy quality long ago," a law school student wrote, and suggested a suit be filed against manufacturers.

She has appealed to the National Science Foundation, asking that a study of panty hose be included among NSF's research projects.

Mrs. Sullivan wrote NSF director William C. McElroy that the investigation she requested surely could be included among the foundation's other research projects like "morphogenesis of the higher fungi" and "tropic niches for neritic microcrustacea.

"The NSF has not considered this matter one of the most serious confronting the scientific community," she reported. "But perhaps they have not been hearing from or listening to the right scientists.

"I am sure there are many women scientists who would consider this indeed a serious problem — those who wear panty hose."

Mrs. Sullivan acknowledged a suit against the manufacturers would require proof of a deliberate conspiracy by a group of firms to keep stronger materials off the market. She recommended that her irate correspondents urge manufacturers to finance research on the problem."

Bishops Agree in Principle

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's Roman Catholic bishops agreed in principle Monday with demands by women for equal status in the Church, including the right to be ordained in the ministry.

Only one dissenting voice was heard when the women presented their brief to bishops attending the Canadian Catholic Conference.

Bishop Michael Rasnack of Toronto was greeted with jeers and laughter when he told the women that their role in the church was that of "suppliers" to bear children and keep up the church population.

Despite the Toronto bishop's strong objections, however, the following recommendations were agreed to in principle:

—Women should be full members of the church with the same privileges as men.

—All discriminatory barriers against women in canon law and tradition should be removed.

—Qualified women should be ordained into the ministry.

—The presence of qualified women on church bodies should be encouraged.

—All practical measures should be taken to ensure that the attitude of the clergy towards women, sexuality and marriage respect the dignity of women.

It is not expected that any decisions will be made at the conference this week.

Provincial IODE Annual Meeting

Mrs. George E. Tait, national president of the IODE, was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter of British Columbia, IODE, in New Westminster Monday.

Mrs. Tait described the work of the Order in the far north and pointed out that IODE members were one of the largest volunteer groups in Canada.

Mrs. N. D. Eastman, provincial education secretary, reported that the chapter had spent $4,662.42 on education in 1970.

She announced a national project planned for 1971 called Atlantic Adventure. The IODE will send 24 grade 11 boys (two from each province, the Yukon and Northwest Territories) to the Atlantic Provinces.

Mrs. A. D. Munro, provincial services at home and abroad secretary, reported that $53,760.45 had been spent in 1970 on various projects.

She also reported that members had given more than 7,364 hours of volunteer service to the cancer solarium, hospital clinics, Woodlands and Riverview, and transportation to schools and clinics of the handicapped, blind and retarded.

Control Of Economy Vital—Tory

OTTAWA (CP) — Eddie Goodman, organization director of the Progressive Conservative party, said Tuesday that "if something isn't done quickly" about Canada regaining control of its economy, "the only way it can be achieved will be by nationalization."

And this, he said, would be "too bad."

Goodman, speaking to a luncheon meeting of the National Press Club, said the time has come to do something about foreign domination of Canada's economy. It had become a matter of "prime and urgent concern."

The Toronto lawyer, who also is a member of the Committee for an Independent Canada, said those who argue that American investment is necessary to ensure economic growth should have a "more sophisticated look" at the situation.

Joint Communication Satellite Planned

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States signed Tuesday an agreement on a co-operative effort to launch an experimental satellite, a $45 million project to bring communications to remote areas more cheaply than now possible.

In essence, Canada will design and build the satellite; the U.S. will put it in space — in November, 1974, it is hoped — and maintain it there.

Alan Gotlieb, deputy communications minister who signed for Canada said Canada's cost probably would be about $25 million.

George Low, acting administrator of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, who signed for the U.S. in a brief ceremony in his office, said: "We hope to make it five out of five."

He recalled that all four previous U.S.-Canada satellite ventures were successful.

Each country will pay its own costs and there will be no exchange of funds on this project.

Both men emphasized that this satellite is experimental.

The ground receiving stations would be mobile.

"We could take television to a community of only 100 or even 50 people," Gotlieb said.

The experiments are designed to develop techniques for services to small villages, including community TV and audio broadcasts and two-way voice communications. They would have potential future applications for the U.S. particularly in Alaska and for Canada in its outlying northern areas.

The Canadian satellite will be designated Co-operative Application Satellite C and NASA will provide the Thor Delta launch vehicle.

The project will be the fifth in a series of co-operative satellites which began with Alouette I in 1962. Low noted Alouette I is still aloft — "the oldest vehicle now up there that has operated continuously."

In Ottawa, Communications Minister Eric Kierans told a news conference Tuesday that satellite technology is a must for Canada, with a small population spread across a huge geographical area.

WIDOW SMITH SUITED TO LEAD

City's First Woman Voter

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It was over a luncheon table where talk was about the women's lib movement that someone suddenly came up with the question — when did women first vote in Victoria and Opinions differed. So much so that my curiosity was aroused and I went looking for the correct answer. Honor of being the first woman to vote in Victoria goes to a widow, Silvestria Theodora Smith. With her were two women friends whose names are not known today. They appeared at the polls on a cold morning in January, 1875, when the town was choosing a new mayor. They knew they were defying convention and upsetting tradition but insisted that as taxpayers, they had every right to vote.

Forbes

Criticized? Of course they were. Men said loud enough for them to hear that their place was in the home and not in a town square voting for a mayor.

Mrs. Smith paid no attention to either jibes or catcalls.

* * *

She marshalled her companions through the crowd. They voted. Then went home well pleased with themselves and never doubting they had made history for their sex.

The widow Smith was ideally suited to lead in the historic 1875 undertaking. She was independent, strong willed and with ideas of equality far ahead of her time. She had pioneered with her husband in the Cariboo and she had the fighting spirit of those who venture into the unknown.

Born in Sydney, Australia, in 1846, she came to Victoria by way of California with her parents, Robert and Lucy Layzell, and two sisters, Lucy and Eliza, in 1858. When she was 16 she married Philip Smith, a well-known mining man of his day and went with him to Port Douglas where he had a flourishing pack train, hotel, bakery and blacksmith shop.

* * *

Blasting out of the Fraser Canyon road, navigation on the River and diversion of travel into the Cariboo by way of Yale, eventually closed down these lucrative enterprises. Smith went off to California to recoup his fortunes and died there in 1871, leaving his widow in Victoria with three sons and a daughter, Philip, John, Alfred and Elizabeth, later to be Mrs. Joseph Blair.

In 1884 Mrs. Smith married again, this time a man with the remarkable name of Oregon Columbus Hastings. Their first home was on Elizabeth Street, between Cook and Chambers, and it was their that another daughter, Juanita, was born (now Mrs. Fred Johnson and living in the western United States).

Later there was a fine place on St. Charles Street near the old water tower, (now Victoria's famed candle). They named it Observatory Hill and in so doing gave identity to what has become a conspicuous local landmark.

* * *

On the rocks at Observatory Hill Hastings built Victoria's first observatory and telescope and many amateur astronomers visited him there to study the stars and planets.

Eventually he sold the place and the family moved to a home on Herald Street where he died in 1912.

Mrs. Hastings lived until she was 80, dying in Victoria in 1926. Throughout her later years she often spoke of that cold January day back in 1875 when she made history at the polls. She confessed she planned the whole move and talked her two friends into accompanying her. And after it was all over she loudly expressed, in the hearing of the men who booed her, that she hoped the example might soon be followed by many other women.

* * *

However, it wasn't until the middle 80s that women took any interest in voting again and then it was only for a brief period. Shortly after that the franchise was withdrawn as far as women were concered.

In 1894 the newly formed Local Council of Women won its restoration and then backed Mrs. Gordon Grant who was elected Victoria's first woman on school board.

Jobless Insurance Scheme 'Incentive to Stay Home'

By KEVIN DOYLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Alfred Hales (Wellington) says the government's proposed unemployment insurance system will provide those out of work with an incentive to sit at home.

He told the Commons Tuesday that a bill to amend the Unemployment Insurance Act needs a massive revision to be acceptable to Canadians. Debate on the measure, now at second reading, continues today.

The bill would increase maximum unemployment benefits a worker could draw to two-thirds of his qualifying salary with a maximum payment of $100 a week going to an unemployed person who had been earning $150 or more a week.

To qualify for full benefits, a person would need to have worked 20 weeks in the previous year as opposed to 30 weeks over the previous two years as now is the case.

Mr. Hales, chairman of the Commons public accounts committee, said a person who worked 20 weeks or more in a year before losing his job could automatically collect three weeks of benefits even if he returned to work the next day.

"This is called an incentive to find work. I would say it is an incentive to sit at home."

REMARKS TYPICAL

Mr. Hales's remarks were typical of those made by many Conservatives during the debate. Most argued that the new scheme is a type of socialistic policy Canadians would not accept.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey has said most Canadians will act to prevent any abuse of the system by behaving in a typically-industrious fashion.

Under the new plan, a worker would be eligible for partial benefits after contributing to the insurance fund for eight weeks. Self-employed persons are not covered by the bill.

"It would be possible for a woman to work for eight weeks in order to obtain pin money," Mr. Hales said.

"She could work during November and December in the Christmas rush in a department store earning pin money and collect $800 worth of insurance while her husband might be earning a salary of $15,000 or more a year."

Norman Cafik (L—Ontario) said there is an unfounded belief that because unemployment insurance will be more universal under the plan, the middle class will end up subsidizing the program to a greater extent than at present.

TAKE MORE OUT

But of the 1.2 million new people who will be brought into the system only 500,000 would be earning more than $8,000 a year. In fact, these people would end up taking more out of the fund than they contributed.

He said if the current program had continued next year, those earning between $7,500 and $12,000 would contribute $33 million more than they drew from the fund.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) said the bill would prevent the governmnt from ever attempting to combine high unemployment and a tight-money policy.

Under the bill, the government would automatically pump hundreds of millions of dollars into the unemployment insurance fund when unemployment rose above four per cent.

If the government chose to create unemployment it would have to pay an extremely high price.

Charles Turner (L—London East) said he believes that most Canadians feel an obligation to be their brothers' keepers. Most would not object to paying more into the fund as a means of helping the unemployed.

CONTRIBUTIONS LESS

Mr. Mackasey has said universal application of the bill would mean lower employee contributions to the insurance fund, currently $1.40 a week for a person earning $100. The rate would be dropped to between 80 and 82 cents a week for that person, Mr. Mackasey said..

Present legislation applies only up to a maximum salary limit of $150 a week. The new legislation would cover everyone—except the self-employed—regardless of salary.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) said the bill indicates clearly that fishermen would be excluded from coverage when another insurance plan could be developed for them.

IMPOSE SOCIALISM

New Democrats generally endorsed the new unemployment insurance proposals but it was essential that plans be outlined for coverage of unemployed fishermen at the same time, Mr. Barnett said.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said the govenment is trying to impose socialism on the country. This was neither wanted nor needed.

James McNulty (L—St. Catharines) said the proposed plan represents one of the most far-reaching reforms ever attempted by the federal governmnt. The measure tried to remove the fundamental causes of unemployment.

In the Senate Tuesday, Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the upper chamber, called for removal of discriminatory legislation directed against women.

He urged the Senate to support the 167 recommendations contained in the report of the royal commission on the status of women.

If the report was supported, "femininity won't have to be sacrificed on the battlefields in a new extremist suffragette movement known as women's liberation."

Swede Starts Rowing Ocean

PERTH, Australia (Reuter) — Swedish-born oarsman Anders Svedlund left early today to row 5,000 miles across the Indian Ocean to Africa.

The 43-year old naturalized New Zealander was seen off by two reporters and a dog as he launched his 21-foot boat at Kalbarri, about 300 miles north of here.

Svedlund will have a strong easterly tailwind and calm seas for the first part of his marathon row, which he expects will take about four or five months.

His boat overturned in rough seas three days after he set out on his first attempt in September. He managed to right it and rowed back to the Australian coast.

Quick Decision On Cable Urged

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Alberta government will ask the Canadian Radio-Television Commission for early approval of Alberta Government Telephones' 10-city plan for cable-television service.

Telephones Minister Ray Reierson told the legislature Tuesday the request is made in a brief which will be submitted to the commission Monday.

In other legislative business across Canada, a Progressive-Conservative member voted against the Conservative government in Ontario; an independent commission called for a greater number of wards under the new government proposed for Greater Winnipeg by the Manitoba government, and Opposition Leader Louis Robichaud said he may have to resign his post before the current session of the New Brunswick legislation ends.

Under the planned Alberta cable television system, the provincially-owned telephone utility would distribute signals from the three major United States networks to two Edmonton and two Calgary cable operators, and oprate cable systems itself in 10 smaller Alberta centres.

The brief says broadcasters should be concerned primarily with programming and the telephone companies are logical suppliers of "the various toll and local links and distribution cables for CATV."

REJECT EXEMPTION

The Alberta legislature also defeated an amendment that would have exempted Indian and Metis people from provisions of legislation which prohibits public camping on Crown lands for more than 30 days without a permit.

Opposition members in the Ontario legislature pounded their desks when John Smith (PC—Hamilton Mountain) rose to vote with the Liberals and New Democratic Party.

The vote was on a Liberal amendment which would have added independent research staff and a budget to the legislature's committee on human resources, responsible for examining the departments of education, university affairs, social and family services, corrections and health. The amendment was defeated 53 to 31.

The Ontario legislature was also told that Ontario universities have received more than $870,000 for research from United States government agencies, with $492,000 going to the University of Toronto.

John White, minister of university affairs, said all of the money went for non-secret research.

Mr. White, questioned about a shortage of jobs for graduating teachers, also announced he hopes to establish within the next several months a system of forecasting what jobs will be available for graduates of universities and community colleges.

PREPARES TO LEAVE

In the New Brunswick house, Mr. Robichaud said his remarks Tuesday would probably be the "last intervention" he would make as a member of the legislature.

He told reporters later it was clear the house would not prorogue by May 1, when he takes over as chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission in Ottawa.

When Mr. Robichaud, Liberal premier of New Brunswick for a decade, first announced his retirement from politics he said he would stay until the end of the current session.

The Manitoba commission proposed that the number of seats on the Greater Winnipeg council be 50 instead of 48.

The commission was formed to recommend ward boundaries under the New Democratic Party government's proposal to Party government's proposal to establish an over-all government to replace the 12 municipal governments that now govern the Winnipeg area.

EVEN FIREMEN GOT BUSY WHEN WHISKY SPILLED

FORT BRANCH, Ind. (AP) — A tank truck overturned Tuesday and spilled almost 6,000 gallons of whisky.

Much of the whisky — a 189-proof bourbon still to be barrelled, colored and aged — never soaked the ground, however, as about 50 passersby collected it in whatever they could get their hands on, including boots, hats, wastebaskets and vacumm jugs.

The Fort Branch volunteer fire-department was called in and one fireman filled his helmet.

The truck, en route to the Glenmore distilleries at Owensboro, Ky., overturned on a curve. The driver was injured.

Pepin Trade Mission Welcomed in Germany

BONN (Reuter) — Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin of Canada, reporting on his nine-day visit to West Germany, said today he has explained the danger to world trade resulting from a trend towards self-sufficiency within an enlarged European Common Market.

The minister who returns to Canada Friday told reporters at a news conference that his mission has received a good welcome from government and business circles.

"Our message got across clearly," Pepin said, adding that he had outlined in his series of talks how Canada figures in the secure supply of goods needed for the West German economy, as well as Canada's good name in business.

The Canadian government as well as the 28 Canadian businessmen who have accompanied Pepin on the mission have been pointing out the adverse effects British entry into the Common Market would have on about 70 per cent of Canada's trade with Britain.

Steel Union Campaign Now in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The campaign which started in Sudbury, Ont., last week to nationalize Canada's largest union — the 150,000-member United Steel Workers of America—has switched its base of operation from Ontario to British Columbia.

"We couldn't stay in Sudbury any longer because we ran out of money," organizer Bud Arnold said here Tuesday.

"We got some good support but we needed about $20,000 to survive more than one week. We didn't get it."

Mr. Arnold, who wanted to re-organize the steelworkers union with his United Metal and Mine Workers of Canada, said the campaign will continue in this province.

"And our campaign is still aimed at the Steelworkers," he said. There are 13,000 Steelworkers in B.C.

Steelworkers' national director William Mahoney said Mr. Arnolds's attempt was not serious from the start. He called Mr. Arnold "a self-appointed spokesman for a non-existent organization; he doesn't represent any body but himself."

BY BREAK-AWAY RESEARCHERS

Poverty Views to Be Published

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four researchers who recently resigned from the Senate poverty committee say they will publish and distribute pamphlets across Canada offering their views on why this country has poverty and what can be done about it.

Peter Penz, who resigned as an economist with the committee along with three others, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa Tuesday night the pamphlets will cost less than $1 so the poor can afford them.

Mr. Penz, who quit along with fellow economist Brian Hull and writers Ian Adams and William Cameron following a disagreement with the committee chairman, Senator David Croll, said they expect to have the pamphlets out before July and a full report will be published in the fall.

He said he could not reveal yet what solutions the four will suggest because the issue is so complex and different proposals are interwoven.

"We will be suggesting new approaches that have not seriously been looked at in connection with poverty," said Mr. Penz.

He said the basic proposal for reform of the taxation system, both income and business tax, will be included in the economic philosophy of the maverick group.

Its report will include labor supply policy and the structure of job opportunities, investment and proposals for modernization assistance. Underlying it will be an analysis of wealth.

Charlie Chan Returns in Vancouver-Shot Pilot Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Happiness is like molasses—though sweet, it is slow to pour."

"When money speaks, all listen."

"Happiness is a warm clue."

Do these aphorisms sound familiar? They should, to those who remember movies of the 1930s or who have seen them on the late show. Such sayings come from the mouth of the indomitable sleuth Charlie Chan, who is to be seen on television in a new version.

The new "Charlie Chan" will be a World Premiere presentation which NBC will air in the 1971-72 season. Naturally, the production company, Universal, hopes that honorable pilot will result in a regular weekly series.

So does Ross Martin.

He's the actor chosen to portray the eighth film manifestation of Earl Derr Biggers' Chinese detective.

"I'd be delighted if the series is sold," says the accomplished character actor. "I've had it with being Mr. Sidekick in series starring other actors."

COULD CHANGE LUCK

He assumed the role of second banana in Mr. Lucky, starring John Vyvian, and then was cast as support to Robert Conrad in Wild Wild West.

Charlie Chan could change Martin's luck. It is an up-to-date version of the film series that began with George Kuwa in a 1926 serial. Kamiyama Sojin played Chan in 1928, but the played Chan in 1928, but the detective reached his greatest fame with the Fox movies starring Warner Oland. Sidney Toler took over after Oland's death, then Roland Winters. J. Carroll Naish did an early TV version.

"I play Chan at age 65," Martin related. "He has been retired from the Honolulu police force for 10 years, and he is lured out of retirement for a fascinating case in Vancouver.

"Now he is on his own; he doesn't have the facilities of the Honolulu police to help him. The question is: Can he make it on his own as a private detective?

Naturally. But not before a maze of clues and a dozen or son and his daughter, as well as anyone else who will listen. so sage sayings to his No. 8 The film was made in Vancouver for more than $1 million, big money for a two-hour TV show.

Lloyd's Mansion A Film Showplace

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The donation of the late Harold Lloyd of his Beverly Hills mansion for public use will give Americans a chance to see the lavish style in which film figures have lived. It is a style that is fast disappearing.

Lloyd's place is a French Renaissance palace. In its heyday it was staffed by 30 servants. It is surrounded by 15 landscaped acres reflecting the comic's interests: nine-hole golf course, handball court, 100-foot waterfall, Olympic-size swimming pool and 900-foot canoe run.

Movie stars once vied with each other for grandness of living quarters. No more. With rare exceptions, today's film personalities are eschewing the manorial homes with platoons of servants. The life-style of the star has undergone a thorough change.

Burt Lancaster is an example.

"I'm a rich man—I could live very comfortably for the next 10 years without working," he says. "But in times like these when the film business is in such bad shape, you feel you should cut down on expenses.

"I realized I was living in a house that required five servants and cost me $70,000 a year to maintain, including taxes. All that for two people!

"So I sold the house and now I'm renting a house at the beach. It's not cheap—$3,000 a month—but I can manage with only one servant."

Lancaster is not alone.

TREND SPREADING

Kay Spreckels Gable, the widow of Clark Gable, has placed her estate up for sale. It is valuable property—seven acres amid expensive homes in Encino—and she hopes to find a buyer who will not subdivide it. Once the horse ranch of Clark Gable, the place is too big for her now, she says, explaining that only she and son, John Clark Gable, now occupy it.

Dick Van Dyke sold his Encino estate and moved to a ranch near Phoenix, Ariz., where he will film his new television series.

Bill Cosby is disposing of his Beverly Hills home to move to Massachusetts, where he intends to pursue an education to become a teacher.

Merle Oberon recently sold her Beverly Hills mansion for $670,000. She had used it infrequently and now intends to spend most of her time in Acapulco, where she and her financier husband Bruno Pagliai own a large home.

Ship Buzzed

TOKYO (Reuter) — Three jet fighters of the Japanese self-defence force mistakenly buzzed a Soviet destroyer during manoeuvres last month off southern Japan, the defence agency said Tuesday. The fighters March 10 passed over a Soviet destroyer at 500 feet. The foreign ministry apologized to the Soviet embassy in Tokyo which accepted the apology, the spokesman said.

Marigolds, Easy Annuals to Grow

By HILDA BEASTALL

Marigolds designated as French and African are among the easiest of annuals for the amateur to grow. Though tropical in origin, their few demands can be met almost by our normal summer growing conditions.

An open sunny place, and a soil not too rich in quickly available nutrients — these are the only essential so long as the summer day temperatures keep well up into the 70's.

Hilda

Marigolds will not stand frost at the beginning of the season, nor will they grow much at below about 55 deg. F. In the fall, when fully acclimatized to varying temperatures, two or three light frosts have little effect on the plants.

Dwarf marigolds, ranging in height from six to 16 inches will commence blooming about mid-June if seed is sown indoors at mid April. Germination comes in two to three days, and by the end of seven, transplanting to flats will send them merrily on their way.

Use a humusy sandy soil but avoid peatmoss for its acidity.

If you buy flats of marigolds, don't expose them to low temperatures and possible frost before planting out. Know your own garden climate. Put them out in the daytime and under cover at night if you suspect frost at dawn.

The small flowered marigolds, usually called French (though all are native to Mexico and southwards to Argentina) make fine edgings and filler plants for planters on walls bordering terraces. So long as there is sun and a reasonably good soil they will flower all summer with occasional complete waterings.

Three splendid varieties in the 12-inch bracket with large fully double blooms are Spun Gold, Spun Yellow and Dolly. The flowers are three to four inches across, with continuous bloom from June to September. These larger flowers need removing when fading.

Dwarf marigolds seem able to renew themselves without this attention.

Giants among the marigolds have been labelled as African. These will grow up to three or four feet, are well branched, thus forming a thick hedge planting if wanted as driveway borders for summertime color.

Foliage of all marigolds is rich dark green, quite aromatic, as are most of the flowers. Color of flowers ranges from palest cream to deepest orange.

When grown specifically for cut flowers, choose such varieties as Golden Jubilee, Diamond Jubilee, or the popular Climax series. Disbudding some of the stems will result in truly phenominal size and durability.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

In this deal, which arose in a duplicate game, the defenders could have defeated South's doubled contract via imaginative defence. But when they failed to do so at their first (and only) opportunity, the upper hand shifted to the declarer. And, by a logical interpretation of the West defender's bid, declarer brought his contract home safely.

Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

♣ K J 9 8 6 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	3 ♣
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

South's three-club overcall was the "weak jump overcall," its aim being to jam up the opposition if they happened to have the better cards.

After winning his ace of spades, West continued with the spade ten, East taking the trick with his jack. The ace of hearts was cashed next, and this was followed by a heart to West's queen. West then laid down the heart king, which South ruffed.

Since West had doubled South's three-club overcall, South correctly assumed that West was the possessor of the club queen. So, at trick six, he laid down the jack of clubs ("the backward finesse"). When West played low, the four-spot was played from dummy. When the jack won, a low club was led to the board's ace, East dropping the ten-spot.

Declarer next returned to the South hand via the diamond queen, and laid down the king of clubs, picking up West's queen. The rest of the tricks now belonged to him, with his only losers being two spades and two hearts.

The three-club contract would have been defeated if, at trick three, East had led a low heart, rather than the ace. West would have won this trick with his queen, after which he would have returned a heart to East's ace.

Now East would lay down the king of spades — and West could not be prevented from making his club queen; if declarer ruffed low, West would over-ruff; and if declarer trumped with his king, West would discard a heart or a diamond.

Incidentally, it would not have helped the defenders if East, after winning the spade jack at trick two, had led the queen and king of spades at tricks three and four. Declarer would have discarded his two hearts on these leads. When East would next shift to hearts, South would ruff. He would then play the trump suit exactly as he did.

Fun with Figures

by TAD DUNNE

Ann had emptied her money box. "Look what I saved, Dad," she said. "All nickels, quarters and dimes."

"That's great." John checked. "Do you know how much it is?"

The girl shook her head. "Not really," she replied. "I only know for sure I put in one coin every week since I emptied it last time."

Her father smiled. "I make it 17 coins, exactly $3.40 in all. I'll add a buck to it if you can figure out how the amount was made up."

What do you say?

PRANKSTER ALTERS COURSE

HIGH RIDGE, Mo. (UPI) — A prankster moved the signs charting the course for a cross-country motorcycle race near here, sending participants in the marathon over private property.

Some of the farm owners pulled guns to protect their property and cyclists said they heard bullets whizzing over their heads.

The race was stopped and club officials said they would take their business elsewhere in the future.

Meeting Debates 'Embarrassing' Move By Quebec PC Chief

MONTREAL (CP) — Fernand Alie, leader of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, was told Tuesday night by the party's provincial council he has the right to voice his personal opinions.

However, council member Heward Grafftey said Mr. Alie was also asked at a special meeting to make it clear, when speaking on contentious issues, not part of established party policy, that he is expressing his own ideas and not those of the Quebec wing.

The council meeting was called to give the Quebec wing leader an opportunity to explain recent statements he has made concerning the Conservative constitutional attitude towards Quebec in Confederation.

Mr. Grafftey, former Conservative MP for Brome-Missisquoi, said in an interview later:

"The meeting was called, frankly, because we had been placed in an embarrassing position by Mr. Alie's letter to le Devoir last week."

In the open letter to Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, Mr. Alie said the party's Quebec wing might not survive the next federal election if it doesn't present policies more acceptable to the electorate here.

He also said the party should advocate a greater responsibility for Quebec and should give more independence to its Quebec organization.

Mr. Grafftey said the council feels Mr. Stanfield should not be asked to take a detailed position on the constitution until after the party's provincial policy in Quebec City next month has discussed the question.

Mr. Stanfield has repeatedly rejected slogans of "two nations," "special status," and "decentralized federalism" in reference to Quebec policy, saying that they risk placing the party in a "political straight-jacket."

Mr. Grafftey said that all the council members were convinced federalists.

"The party and its leaders have always believed that Quebecers and French-Canadians have a place in Confederation."

He said Mr. Alie told the meeting his recent statements were his personal opinions.

(Thelma) Clark, Victoria, Mrs. R. B. (Marion) Jacobsen, Fort Alberni; six grandchildren; six great-grandchildren also survive.
Funeral services Friday, April 23, 1971, at 1 p.m. from the Westwood Chapel of Flowers (Sands) with Padre Cyril Denison officiating. Interment Nanaimo Cemetery.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

PSALM 23.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. J. Gwilliam wishes to express their deep gratitude to the friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy in the loss of our dear mother. Special thanks to Rev. R. Wightman, Dr. Perry-Whittingham and nurses on the 3rd floor of St. Joseph's Hospital.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 5:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. NDP Convention. Opening ceremonies from Ottawa's Civic Centre. Addresses to delegates by party president Allan Blakeney and associate president Roland Morin.

★ ★ ★

THE MEN FROM SHILOH. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun). Some real old actor pros make this a very whorthwhile viewing segment. Art Carney plays a lovable riverboat captain with questionable motives, and Tom Ewell and Academy Award-winner Jack Albertson portray a pair of rough characters who try and use the boat to transport stolen silver bullion.

★ ★ ★

MEN AT LAW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) James Stacy plays a hard hat who loses his job to make room for a minority worker. An explosion rocks the building and Stacey is accused. Enter the former storefront lawyers Robert Foxworth, David Arkin and Sheila Larken (this was an early season segment before the series title and setting were changed.)

★ ★ ★

TO ROME WITH LOVE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) The disparate interests of the family come into focus. Grandpa Pruitt tries to save a wounded dove, and Alison thinks she's artisitically talented enough to win an art scholarship that would take her to romantic Paris by designing a winning poster, Toujour l'amour.

★ ★ ★

TRIAL: THE CITY AND COUNTY OF DENVER VS. LAUREN R. WATSON. 8:30 p.m., Channel 9. (Rerun.) When this four-part examination of the American judicial system was telecast last year, it brought a mountain of acclaim, and a number of awards, including the Saturday Review Television Award, and honors at the Cannes Film Festival. The four parts correspond to the four days of the trial in which a black militant and member of the Black Panther party is accused of resisting arrest and interfering with a police officer. He claimed police harassment (a patrolman waved his fist and yelled "white power" Watson testified). The television cameras had free access, roaming the courtroom and focusing into the judge's chamber, a landmark telecast. The remaining three parts will be shown on the next three Wednesdays.

★ ★ ★

MEDICAL CENTRE. 9 p.m., Channel 12. (Rerun.) Steve Forrest is guest star. He plays a doctor who returns from Vietnam with, among other things, a drinking problem. He recognizes his problem, but won't acknowledge that it has affected his medical pursuits.

★ ★ ★

DAVID COPPERFIELD. 9 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) An imposing cast of prestigious British actors, including three nights, no less — Sirs Laurence Olivier, Michael Redgrave and Ralph Richardson — give great depth to this revived Charles Dickens' classic. Robin Phillips has the title role in the story of a young boy's ability to overcome tragedy, grief, despair and a cruel stepfather as he achieves maturity. Richard Attenborough, Dame Edith Evans, Susan Hampshire, Wendy Hiller, Ron Moody and Emlyn Williams are also featured. The performances are superb.

★ ★ ★

THE YOUNG LAWYERS. 10 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) Kim Hunter guests as the mother of a 16-year-old girl (Mary Layne) who runs off and then solicits the neighborhood law office lawyers for legal protection from her mother and father. The parents counter with their own suit, spurring a strong bid for courtroom drama.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Every so often I see a man or woman who cannot eat at the same table with anyone else, except perhaps a member of his family. Such a person reminds me of dogs that cannot eat out of the same dish without growling at each other or getting into a fight. They remind me of some highly nervous dogs that I have known.

The persons who must eat alone have a special problem, because they keep going to stomach specialists saying that they are desperately uncomfortable and have been going around from one internist and clinic to another without getting an adequate diagnosis. Some have had their abdomen explored surgically in the hope of finding some removable cause for the syndrome. In none of these cases did several thorough examinations throw any light on the cause of their trouble.

Some of them could not eat with anyone at all. Others could eat comfortably enough if they were at home, but they could not eat in a restaurant. Some men could eat with their wives but could not eat when the children came in. I have had a number of these patients who, when eating at a restaurant, would have to get up and go out hungry if anyone sat down at the same table with them.

One of my patients, when on a journey, never dared go into the diner of the train, because if someone was put at the same table with him, he could not eat. Sometimes this man could not eat in a restaurant even when alone at a table, because a stranger at a table nearby would cause his throat to tighten up. He would then feel terribly full is if he had eaten a huge meal, and with this, he would get a feeling of pressure in his chest, which would move on up into his head; he would feel as if he were going to suffocate; he would perspire profusely; he might become nauseated, and always he would have to get up and go out into the street.

* * *

In order to get relief, he would walk around for a while and belch. He dreaded to go out to dinner anywhere, even to the home of a friend. At noon time he always went to a lunch counter about 11:30, before the crowd had arrived. Then he would try to wolf down his food before anyone came near him. I quickly learned that for six years, he had been experiencing a typical mild manic-depressive cycle, in which sometimes he felt too talkative and wide-awake, while at other times he felt low and would have no desire for food. When I asked him if onyone in his family was eccentric in any way, I learned that his father was psychotic. Apparently my patient had inherited a mild form of his father's trouble.

The most striking examples of this syndrome I have found in the relatives of epileptics, who apparently were carrying a latent tendency to the disease. One of my patients, a sullen looking machinist, said to me that he had been strong and well until nine years before when he had received a slight blow in the pit of his tomach. This did not bother him much, but he got the phobia (obsessive fear) that some important internal organ had been injured. With this, he began to have spells of air-hunger. He was the more convinced because on occasion, he would have spells of acute abdominal pain which would come and go without warning.

Unfortunately, when his physicians tired to help him by removing his appendix, this threw him into such a bad depression that for a time, he could not work at all. With the hope of repairing the damage, the doctor operated for a rupture which caused the man for a while to become completely unnerved. Gradually he got better, but he became extremely irritable and nervous and so exhausted that he often spent a whole day in bed. Then he went into a spell in which he could not stand to eat, and he lost 30 pounds.

* * *

About this time, he discovered that if he would eat alone, he could enjoy his food and digest it well, but if someone were to come into the room, he would be almost unable to swallow, and if he did get some food down, it would remain in his stomach for a few hours and then he would have tov omit it up.

With this, he became unsociable and irascible, and in some of his rages he attacked and injured people. For the next two years he had trouble holding a job jecause if his boss made the slightest suggestion as to his work, he got flustered and angry and would throw down his tools and storm out.

On questioning the man, I found that his mother was insane and his brother was an epileptic. This suggested to me that his symptoms were due to an equivalent of the family's two nervous problems, and my hunch was borne out when an anticonvulsive drug that I prescribed for him made him feel much better and much less irritable, and relieved his abdominal pains. He was also much happier when he bought himself a big house-trailer and fitted up a shop in half of it. With this, he went out through the countryside repairing farm machinery. While he was alone, he felt fine.

Anyone having this trouble should have his doctor order him to have an electroencephalogram (record of the tiny electrical currents constantly running through the brain), and if it is somewhat abnormal, an anti-convulsive drug may relieve much or all of the distress. Or an anti-depressive drug may help.

As I have read the biographies of eminent and highly sensitive and gifted writers, I have learned of many who had to eat alone.

Gati Appointed To Committee

A new national organization has been formed as a result of a unanimous vote at a meeting this week in London, Ont., of representatives of 30 of Canada's 38 symphony orchestras.

Laszlo Gati, music director and conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, has been appointed a member of the steering committee of eight which is to draw up a constitution and program for the new Canadian Association of Symphony Orchestras.

No Trace Found Of Lost Plane

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP) — Search aircraft found no trace Tuesday of a twin-engined Cessna 310 plane missing since Sunday with four men aboard.

The search by four military and two civilian planes was to resume at dawn today.

The small aircraft disappeared on a 45-mile flight from Fernie to Cranbrook in the southeastern corner of British Columbia.

Those aboard were identified as Ralph Loney of Vancouver, owner and pilot of the plane; John Reimer, Cranbrook; Herman Klassen, Abbotsford, B.C., and Arnold Polkington, Vancouver.

Helpful Adjudicators Enhance Atmosphere of Music Festival

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Two factors that contribute largely to a successful music festival are not always at the command of the organizers, no matter how industrious and devoted they are.

One is the ability of the adjudicators to communicate useful ideas to the competitors with charm and humor. The other is the relationship — the atmosphere of give and take — that exists among the entrants themselves.

Both factors are conspicuously present in this, the first week of the 1971 Victoria Music Festival.

Good humor, good will and understanding combine with profound knowledge of their subjects in all three adjudicators.

ECSTATIC

Genial and shrewd Trevor Anthony from Britain especially delights the very young singers and is in turn ecstatic when he hears lovely teen-aged singers like Jennifer Angus and Helen Wilson singing Schubert's Hedge Roses.

Or Debra Crozier-Smith accompanied by a harp in the folk song class for 15 and 16-year olds.

Or when he is able to lavish praise on the concentration and hard work of all the singers entered in the quick study classes.

Leona Paterson from Calgary's Mount Royal College turns each speech arts session into an enthralling master class. And Isobel Rolston, who is also from Calgary, does the same thing for the pianists.

GOOD BACH

Aside from whole classes of fine teen voices and some charming choirs at Fellowship Hall, Tuesday, the festival also uncovered new promising talent in the speech arts section and some excellent junior Bach and teen-aged concerto performers among the pianists.

Mrs. Rolston observed that there had been some "extraordinarily fine playing by the whole class" as she adjudicated five under-19 Bach players.

"I felt really unhappy about having to give marks here," she said.

To express her reluctance she made them as close as possible, giving both Stephen Calder and Janet Pennington the top mark of 85 and Becky Jay and Mary Chard, 84.

A little later, forced to make a comparative assessment of three fine concerto performances she again commented on her distaste for marking them.

'IMPOSSIBLE'

"It is almost impossible to treat a class like this as a competition," she said.

From the classic school there was the Beethoven B flat, played by Becky Jay "with lovely style and poise."

"You are an artist," Mrs. Rolston told 17-year-old Becky. "And I don't use the word loosely."

She found Mary Chard who chose from the romantic school — Schumann's A minor Concerto — to be a true musician and technically "right on top of the Schumann ... although the cadenza is not quite yours yet."

Jocelyn Abbott came up to the 20th Century with Ravel's sparkling G major. "Bravo," said Mrs. Rolston. "Very fine playing. You are unbelievably reliable."

Forced to make a decision between the three, she placed Jocelyn at the top with 86 and named Becky and Mary runners up in the that order with one mark separating each.

GUITAR THURSDAY

Highlights for Thursday at the festival include classical guitar classes adjudicated by Chris Jordan of Vancouver and the open piano concerto class, both in the evening at St. John's Memorial Hall on Balmoral Road.

The evening at Fellowship Hall will program campfire singing, musical comedy and light opera classes and a concert group class open to any voice.

Results in detail follow.

Horsemen Denied Use of Footpath

Central Saanich has rejected a request by horsemen to use a footpath built by school children as a centennial project.

The one-mile trail cleared by pupils of Mount Newton Secondary runs through Centennial Park on Wallace Drive.

Basil Parker, 1603 Hovey, spoksman for peninsula horsemen, told council the trail was slashed high enough to permit the passage of riders and he saw no reason why it could not be used by horses and pedestrians.

"We are in great need of riding trails to get away from highways and continuing suburbia," he said.

Mayor Archie Galbraith said pupils had done an excellent job on the trail along Hagen Creek.

"They spent two weeks building it," he said. "A couple of horses could cut up the footpath badly. It is also frightening for some pedestrians to run across horses on a narrow trail."

He said there are plenty of places where horsemen can ride in the municipality and there is nothing to prevent them from building their own trails.

Council has made allowance for riders along the circumference of Centennial Park and suggested the new Thompson Road trail through John Dean Park to McTavish Road might be opened in the future.

In North Saanich the Sunset Riding Club is working with the municipality and school children to establish a trail on Horth Hill.

Another 257 Donors

Another 257 blood donors turned out Tuesday, pushing the total for the current two-day clinic in Greater Victoria to 472.

Average turnout for the regular clinics conducted by the Red Cross has been about 250, a spokesman said today.

Greater Victoria was criticized earlier this week by the medical director of the Red Cross blood center in Vancouver.

Dr. T. D. Stout said Victoria was slipping further behind in providing its share of donors and if surgery had to be cancelled for lack of blood supplies, it would be the fault of residents.

The local Red Cross is operating a mobile donor clinic at high schools for the rest of the week and residents near the schools are welcome to join donors.

The clinic will be at Oak Bay Senior Secondary Thursday and at Claremont Secondary in Saanich Friday. Hours both days are from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30 to 3 p.m.

Crash Victim in 'Poor Condition'

A Nanaimo man is in poor condition at St. Joseph's Hospital with a fractured skull suffered in a two-car collision near Ladysmith about 8:15 a.m. Tuesday.

Joseph Angell was transferred here Tuesday morning.

Ladysmith RCMP said the man was one of the drivers in the crash at Trans-Canada Highway and Grouhel.

Police said the crash occurred as one vehicle was heading south on the Trans-Canada and the other was cutting across on Grouhel.

The other driver, William A. Marttalal of Ladysmith, was taken to an up-Island hospital.

B.C. Group Awaits Reply From Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister's office has received but has not yet replied, to a letter from the British Columbia Environmental Council asking for a public hearing in British Columbia on the possible threat to the West Coast of a proposed oil tanker route from Alaska to Washington state.

The council said in the letter that the "divergent positions taken by various cabinet ministers have done little to clarify Canada's official position" on the matter.

The council is made up of executive members of a number of environmental and conservation groups in B.C.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced in the Commons Tuesday that talks between the United States and Canada about the effects of the proposed tanker route on the Pacific coast will be held May 3.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson told the Commons studies of the effect of the tanker route are under way and the results likely will be made public.

STUDY NEW AIDS

The studies will cover use of new navigational aids that could be used to make the proposed tanker route safer for shipping, Jamieson said.

The route along the British Columbia coast would be used if U.S. oil companies receive approval to transport oil that way from Alaska.

The companies want to ship crude oil from the Alaska North Slope by pipeline to the south Alaska port of Valdez and thence by tanker to Puget Sound refineries in the state of Washington.

Conservationists in Canada and the United States have expressed concern about potential pollution and the project has been delayed.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield is visiting Alaska currently to study the situation. He said before leaving Ottawa Monday that the Canadian and United States governments should negotiate a formal agreement governing oil transport.

Muskie Wants Ban On Pipeline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine urged President Nixon Tuesday to ban construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline.

Muskie made public a letter in which he asked the president to instruct the secretary of the interior to deny the application of the Alyeska Pipeline Co. to build an 800-mile line from Alaska's north slope to the port of Valdez.

Such presidential action is necessary, the Democrat said, "if we are to prevent grave environmental damage to the lands the pipeline would traverse, the fishing resources of Prince William Sound and the waters of the Northern Pacific on which the oil would inevitably spill."

This action, he told Nixon, would permit serious consideration of alternatives to transporting Alaska oil and gas to U.S. markets via a pipeline through Canada.

Ship Launched

KURE, Japan (AP) — The world's largest ship, the 375,000-ton tanker Nisseki Maru, was launched Tuesday. The builder, Ishikawajima Harima Heavy Industries Co., said it has an order for a still larger vessel—a 477,000-ton tanker on which work will begin next February. The largest ships now in service are six 326,000-ton tankers built in Japan.

Humble Ready to Build 20 Super Oil Tankers

HOUSTON (Reuter) — A fleet of 20 ice-breaking supertankers each costing $100 million is envisioned by Humble Oil and Refining Co. if the proposed Alaska pipeline project is blocked, an official of the company said Tuesday.

"We think the pipeline will be built eventually, and we still look at it as the most viable system," A. D. Mookhoek, economic and planning manager of Humble's marine department, said in an interview. "But the ship is a real back-up case."

Mookhoek and his colleague, W. L. Bielstein, reported on problems of designing an Arctic marine transportation system in a paper presented at the annual offshore technology conference here.

Construction of the proposed pipeline to carry oil from the rich North Slope field in Alaska has been stalled by objections of conservationists.

They are also likely to oppose the ice-breaker tankers, but Mookhoek said it would take four years before the first ship was ready—"a fair amount of time to satisfy the ecology people."

Humble's report to the 10,000-member conference said its studies favored a tanker loading point 25 miles out in Prudhoe Bay, fed by a submerged 48-inch pipeline from the shore. This would enable loading at a rate of 100,000 barrels an hour.

Shattered wreckage of locomotives blocks CPR main line 55 miles north of Calgary

VICTIMS LEAP CLEAR, DIE IN EXPLOSION

Flaming Train Collision Kills Two Crewmen

BOWDEN, Alta. (CP) — A tank car of liquid butane still was burning today after two freight trains collided head-on Tuesday night, killing two trainmen who had jumped from the engine seconds before the impact.

Police said the collision about 55 miles north of Calgary started fires in one of the engines, the tank car, two box cars carrying kegs of beer, one carrying lumber, an empty flatcar and one loaded with fertilizer.

The victims, identified as enginman A. E. Lewis, 48, and fireman Colin Gradley, 42, both of Calgary, jumped clear of their northbound train just before the collision but were burned to death in a sheet of flame that extended 500 feet from the tank car of butane.

The freight train collision started a fire in the first engine unit of the northbound train, which was titled into the air by the second engine unit.

Just behind the engines was a box car carrying beer kegs which punctuated the crash scene with persistent, though relatively harmless explosions as the shaken-up beer blew out of its containers.

Firemen and rescue workers concentrated on the burning tank car carrying 6,000 barrels of butane.

A Canadian Pacific Railway spokesman said today normal rail service would resume Thursday. A southbound dayliner between Edmonton and Calgary had not reached Red Deer at the time of the crash. Passengers were being bussed between Red Deer and Calgary.

Traffic on Highway 2 resumed after RCMP had diverted cars to country roads Tuesday night.

People evacuated from nearby homes after the crash returned when it was learned a tank car was carrying phosphate fertilizer, not ammonium phosphate which would have been poisonous if it had ignited.

Four persons were slightly injured in the crash and released from hospital. There were five crew members on each train.

The collission was the second incident in fewer than four hours on the same line.

400,000 Flee East Pakistan To India Towns

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The India - Pakistan diplomatic war was on the boil today as the number of refugees fleeing to India from Pakistan was reported to have topped the 400,000 mark.

An official report issued in Calcutta, capital of India's West Bengal state bordering East Pakistan, said more than 300,000 persons had sought refuge in Bengal state alone since the central Pakistan government cracked down on secessionist moves in East Pakistan March 25.

No official figures were available for the number of East Pakistanis entering other Indian states and territories bordering East Pakistan on its eastern side but observers estimated it must be around 100,000.

The Press Trust of India news agency reported heavy fighting in the Sylhet region in the northeast, which it said was almost entirely under secessionist control.

India turned down Tuesday night a Pakistani demand that it remove East Pakistanis who have assumed control of the Pakistan deputy high commission in Calcutta, proclaiming that it now represented the so-called Republic of Bangla Desh (Bengali nation), proclaimed by secessionist leaders.

DEMANDS REMOVAL

The Pakistan high commissioner in New Delhi, Sajjad Hyder, who demanded the removal, was told that the affair was an "internal matter" for Pakistan.

A. K. Ray, joint secretary in the foreign ministry, said the Indian government had no objection to a senior member of the Pakistan high commission in New Delhi going to Calcutta to take up the post of deputy high commissioner.

Mahdi Masud was named by the high commission to replace Hossain Ali, an East Bengali, who declared last Sunday that he and his staff had switched allegiance to Bangla Desh.

Pakistan also accused India of organizing the hijacking of an Indian airliner to Pakistan in January in order to bring about a confrontation between the two countries and strengthen separatist tendencies within Pakistan.

India banned flights by Pakistani aircraft over the 1,000 miles of Indian territory separating East and West Pakistan after the Fokker Friendship aircraft was hijacked to Lahore Jan. 30 while on a flight over Kashmir.

PACIFIC RIM PARK OFFICIALLY NAMED

CALGARY (CP)—A new national park on the west coast of Vancouver Island will be called Pacific Rim National Park, it was annouced today.

R. P. Malis, western regional director of the National and Historic Parks Branch, said in a prepared statement the park will include Long Beach, the Effingham Islands and the West Coast Trail.

Malis said the park, in French, would be called Parc National Pacific Rim.

1,800 Delegates To Pick NDP Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,800 delegates massed today to select a new NDP leader and assemble a policy platform bridging heated controversy on issues ranging from nationalism and nationalization to Quebecs' problems.

Under gray skies, just across a road from the old Coliseum where the party was born almost 10 years ago, the NDP faithful assembled without the fanfare or high-spirited fervor usually associated with North American leadership contests.

The note of single-minded dedication to business was emphasized early today with approval for an amendment to the agenda that will bring delegates to Parliament Hill Thursday to protest against plant closures and high unemployment.

Al Campbell of London, Ont., proposed the amendment, saying he was being laid off soon by Eaton Automotive Corp. He is a delegate representing a local of the United Auto Workers, one of the big trade union delegations expected to have a major impact on convention policy, particularly in rebuffing left-wing policy as espoused by the militant Waffle group.

Today's policy discussion concerns farming , fishing and labor.

FIVE SEEK LEADERSHIP

Five candidates seek to replace T. C. Douglas, the former CCF Saskatchewan premier who led the New Defocratic Party at its founding in 1961.

The new leader will be elected Saturday.

In the running are David Lewis, 61, now deputy to Mr. Douglas; Edward Broadbent, 35, MP for Oshawa-Whitby; John Harney, 40, York University professor; Frank Howard, 45, MP for the British Columbia riding of Skeena; and James Laxer, 29, Queen's University lecturer from Kingston.

Mr. Lewis is widely expected to lead on the first ballot.

MAY SHIFT VOTES

But as delegates shift their votes on succeeding ballots, the other candidates give themselves good odds to win.

The delegates are to meet all the candidates at a bearpit session tonight.

Rising Waters Threaten Montreal Island Residents

MONTREAL (CP) — Floodwaters along the northern side of Montreal Island rose a further two feet overnight and civil protection officials warned that with forecast intermittent rain today the situation could reach critical levels by nightfall.

Specially-trained armed forces personnel and Quebec government engineers moved in Tuesday to areas where some families have been evacuated and hundreds of homes partially flooded. Many buildings in inundated sections along rivers and lakes are unoccupied summer cottages.

However, at least 30 families have had to leave their homes in a handful of hard-hit suburban communities. Further evacuations were threatened today.

Hardest hit were low-lying communities on Laval Island, adjacent to Montreal Island. However suburban Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Chateauguay and Ile Perrot have also been severely affected by the flooding that was the result of warm temperatures after a record winter of snowfall in the region.

Communities north and west of the city have been threatened by rising waters from the Ottawa River since late Monday.

OTTAWA RISES

On Ile Perrot, west of Montreal Island in the junction of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers, a flood control centre said levels were approaching the danger point.

Armed forces advisors and provincial engineers were advising residents and local civil protection units in the various areas affected on how best to stop the rising waters.

Some attempts were being made to construct dikes while homeowners began piling sandbags.

The situation this year is being described as the worse in at least a decade.

Calgary Schools Closed by Strike

CALGARY (CP) — More than 78,000 students were forced out on the streets today as 3,900 teachers officially went on strike in a contract dispute with the Calgary public school board.

It was the first teachers' strike in the city's history and closed 164 schools while keeping more than 1,000 non-teaching employees out of work.

Negotiations have not resumed between the board and Alberta Teachers Association following the collapse of mediation talks Tuesday.

However, Henry Libke of Edmonton, conciliation officer for the board of industrial relations, was scheduled to hold separate meetings with both sides later today in an attempt to bring them together.

Meanwhile, officials of Calgary's separate school board said they cannot accommodate children from public schools, even temporarily.

More than 21,000 separate students are continuing classes because their 975 teachers settled on a two-year contract in February.

However, separate students attending Calgary's two schools for retarded children are without classes because

Laird Warns Russia Adding ICBM

NEW YORK (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today recent intelligence evidence "confirms the sobering fact that the Soviet Union is involved in a new and apparently extensive" intercontinental ballistic missile-construction program.

At the same time, he warned that if there is no "convincing progress" at U.S.-Soviet talks to limit strategic arms, the United States may have to take what he termed offsetting action to preserve "the sufficiency of our strategic forces."

"This new ICBM construction effort, coupled with additional momentum in the strategic defence area — all clearly planned months ago — must be of major concern," Laird said.

Manila Court: Mendoza Guilty

MANILA (Reuter) — Bolivian painter Benjamin Mendoza was convicted Tuesday of attempting to kill Pope Paul at Manila International Airport Nov. 26.

Judge Pedro Bautista of the suburban Pasay city court sentenced Mendoza to imprisonment from two years, four months and one day to four years and two months.

COMPUTER SEEKS DATA-PUNCH PAL

MONTREAL (UPI)—The Sun Life Assurance Company recently assured its policyholders their letters would be answered by a human being, not a computer.

Shortly thereafter, the company said Tuesday, the firm received a packet of punch cards, which were translated by their computer. It was a letter of sympathy to their computer from computer "001-001-001" in Don Mills, Ont., expressing sorrow that "life for you may not be as full and rewarding as it is for me," and inviting the lonely machine to become a data-punch pal.

Lon Nol Agrees To Stay in Office

PHNOM PENH (Reuter) — Cambodian Premier Lon Nol has agreed to form a new government after tendering his resignation, official sources said today.

Gen. Nol offered his resignation Tuesday to Chief of State Cheng Heng for health reasons, but it was not immediately accepted.

The sources said Cheng Heng had urged Nol to reconsider his resignation and gave him three days to put together a new government. They added that Nol agreed.

A joint session of the Senate and National Assembly voted today to promote Nol to the country's first marshal of the army.

Nol is partly paralysed from a stroke he suffered Feb. 1.

Monarchy End Doubted By Marceau

(Times News Services)

RIMOUSKI, Que. — A Quebec member of the parliamentary committee on the constitution says he doubts the committee will recommend "the aboliton of the monarchy right now."

But Gilles Marceau, Liberal member of Parliament for Lapointe, said he thinks the committee's report will recommend reforms leading in the "direction" of abolishing the monarchy.

In an earlier interview, Marceau denied published reports that the committee was ready to recommend immediate abolition of the monarchy in Canada. "No one knows for sure what will be in the report," he said.

"We are still at the stage of public hearings," he added.

'LEAKED' NEWS

Published reports from Quebec City said Marceau and three other members of the committee leaked news of the planned recommendation at a routine hearing in Quebec City Monday night.

Marceau said Tuesday no member of the committee has declared what the report will recommend.

However, he said:

"I did tell a journalist Monday night in Quebec that I was personally in favor of abolition of the monarchy, but that was only a personal opinion."

The published reports quoted Warren Allmand, Liberal MP for Montreal—Notre-Dame-de-Grace, as saying "three-quarters of the members of the joint committee are against the monarchy."

Neither Allmand nor other members of the committee could be reached for comment Tuesday.

The committee, composed of both senators and MPs, is currently holding public hearings for views on the constitution.

Marceau said he was not sure when the report would be presented as it would depend on how much time the members had to spend in Parliament.

Course Set

CAIRO (AP) — The Soviet Union and Egypt said today they have charted a joint course of action on the Middle East crisis but did not spell it out. "The two sides have agreed on joint steps for the future to return the Middle East situation to normal," they said in a joint communique.

CLAMPING HIS TEETH on leg of secretary Annette Eckis is Shamu, 7,000-pound killer whale at San Diego's Sea World. The 22-year-old girl had fallen off the killer whale's back during a ride at the marine park, then suffered leg punctures when Shamu bit her. Annette, who had ridden the whale previously, said she thought it was playing. "He could have tightened his grip and pulled me to the bottom of the tank," she said. Stitches were needed to close the teeth punctures. (AP Wirephoto).

FIRST REPORT TO CONGRESS

Prisoners Tortured

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee has heard for the first time testimony that U.S. soldiers participated in or witnessed the torture of prisoners - of - war in their custody in South Vietnam.

Larry Rottmann, a spokesman for Vietnam Veterans Against the War, told the House of Representatives foreign affairs subcommittee Tuesday he personally knew of skin-stripping, pole-hanging and water torture of Vietnamese soldiers captured by Americans.

"Incidents like My Lai are not isolated," he said. "They are the result of de facto military policy in Indochina."

The session before the subcommittee amounted to the kind of atrocity hearing war opponents in and out of Congress have demanded of formal congressional committees but had not received.

Rottmann, who said he was a lieutenant in Vietnam with the 25th Infantry Division, also detailed a

THE CONCORDE

Blunder or Not? CP Air Says No

The charge here that CP Air has made a monumental corporate blunder in failing to join the queue of international air lines reserving delivery for Concorde, the Anglo-French supersonic jet transport, is disputed in a letter today from that company.

R. A. Keith, CP Air's director of public relations in Vancouver, writes as follows:

"Your recent column, 'How CP Air Blew Its Super Future' expresses a commendable dedication to the 'great, beautiful, wild-blue-yonder bird,' the Concorde. It is unfortunate that your enthusiasm for this pioneering enterprise has inspired you to attack CP Air for 'refusal to get in on the ground floor of supersonic transport.' We have blown it, you say, and CP Air 'will have messy corporate egg on its face from thinking too small, too late.'

★ ★ ★

"The accusation is ludicrous. If anything, we thought too big and too soon. CP Air has always been a front-runner in the quest for faster and more economical air transportation. Witness the fact that Canadian Pacific was the first in the world, next to BOAC, to place orders for the Comet, the real trail-blazer of the jet age. Far from being a supersonic laggard, CP Air put up cash deposits on the U.S. supersonic transport as early as February, 1964, at a time when Air Canada and many other carriers were still just thinking about it.

"We chose the U.S. version for the soundest of reasons: It was and still is, according to our studies, the only SST design capable of operating successfully on our long-stage international routes.

"You make the unsupported assertion that Japan Air Lines will be running Concordes 'between this coast and the Orient in competition with CP's old-fashioned jets.' Have you seen any Concorde range and load figures to support this assumption? We have not. There is no hope that even a beefed-up version of the Concorde will carry a payload non-stop over this 4,700-mile Vancouver-Tokyo route. A fuel stop en route would wipe out any competitive advantage while adding to the economic penalty for the SST operator.

"How can you describe CP's 'shelling out a $300,000 deposit' for Boeing SST delivery positions as 'a compromise?' (The deposit rose to $600,000.) This was no compromise but a cash commitment to the only supersonic aircraft capable of performing with success on the CP routes.

"You further asserted: 'Concorde's makers have beefed up their bird . . . and have demonstrated to Canadian Pacific that the plane can do the job on any of its routes. There's no evidence that CP has bothered to make a reappraisal.'

"On the contrary, the evidence was as available as your telephone. Had you bothered to check with CP on this, we would have informed you that our technical evaluation team of six specialists in economics, flight operations and engineering has maintained a constant liaison with the Concorde sponsors, has visited the United Kingdom plant within the last 12 months, and as recently as December welcomed Concorde technical personnel at our headquarters.

★ ★ ★

"After appraising the most recent data available, our experts report that this 'beautiful, wild-blue-yonder bird' does not meet the minimum requirements of our route pattern. In these circumstances, if you were the president of CP, would you order for your airline an aircraft you considered too small and short-ranged to be a success? That would blow it! Talk about corporate egg-on-the-face!

"Your enthusiasm for supersonic travel is more than shared here at Canadian Pacific. But unlike a newspaper columnist, the management of an airline must temper enthusiasm with economics."

Oh, come now, Ron Keith, either you haven't done your homework or you're conveniently over-looking some mighty relevant facts.

Fact: No one, including Concorde's makers, has ever suggested that the SST would work on all routes. The makers claim only this: An airline in the future operating on a balanced mix of Concordes and subsonic jets will earn a better return on their investment than an airline with an all subsonic fleet. CP Air may not be convinced of that but Air Canada, Pan-American, BOAC, Air France, Qantas and a dozen more giants see it in their future.

Fact: The maximum range of the first production-line Concordes will be 4,000 statute miles with normal airline reserves for holding and diversion. The only CP Air routes that could not be managed by Concorde would be the Vancouver-Amsterdam over-the-pole non-stop route of 4,791 miles (though Toronto-Amsterdam is well within range) and the non-stop Vancouver-Tokyo route, 4,699 miles (though CP Air jets refuel at Anchorage, Alaska, on heavy-load flights and in bad weather and with an Anchorage stop the SST would fill the bill).

Fact: Concorde's present maximum payload of 30,790 pounds will have increased to 33,670 pounds after the first 40 airplanes have been sold. In all tourist, all first class and typically mixed class configurations, Concorde's cabin can carry 144, 108 and 134 passengers respectively. In a day when the big jets are running with a great many empty seats, CP Air's "technical evaluation team" must know that losses through empty seats in off-season periods could equalize the advantages of greater passenger capacity during intensive travel periods.

Fact: Concorde's 4,000-mile range gives it full capability on CP Air's important Australian and South American runs, both almost entirely over water. On the Australian route the Vancouver-Honolulu leg is 2,706 miles, Honolulu-Fiji is 3,174 miles and Fiji-Sydney is 1,971 miles. On the South American route it is 2,452 miles to Mexico, 2,641 miles from Mexico to Lima, 1,529 miles to Santiago, 710 miles over the Andes to Buenos Aires. Concorde could also be used on the 3,255-mile route from Montreal to Lisbon. (It should be noted, as well, that the Soviet Union's TU-144, virtually a sister ship to Concorde, will be in service before the year's end between Moscow and New Delhi. That is a run up toward the 4,000-mile mark.)

Fact: Concorde can be there and back, at 1,450 miles an hour, while the regular, horse-and-buggy jet is still on the outward passage.

The ultimate fact would seem to be that CP Air's decision to go with the Americans and its rejection of a money-back guarantee by Concorde's makers that their SST would do the job, is just what I said it was — a blunder.

City to Refuse Union Demands

Victoria city hall is not prepared to meet demands of outside civic workers who have rejected the latest wage proposals, Mayor Courtney Haddock said today.

Haddock said he expects unanimous backing from council when it meets Thursday to formally consider the contract agreement.

"I am sure council is completely unified, because they have no choice," Haddock said.

"There is just no way we can meet the demands they're making. I sincerely hope they won't consider striking."

The city "simply can't find the funds" to pay for wages higher than the amount already offered.

The union is asking "far too much."

●

Members of Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees met Tuesday night and voted "overwhelmingly" in a standing vote to refuse the city's offer, union negotiator Tom Smith said today.

No vote count was taken but Smith said it was roughly the same as the 87 per cent ballot vote taken earlier to strike.

The city's offer is in line with wage hikes accepted by Victoria's inside workers as well as Saanich's inside and outside employees.

●

Workers earlier voted in favor of striking if no acceptance contract was offered by the city. A mediation officer was appointed, legally prohibiting an actual strike until he has reported no settlement is possible.

Workers would then have 72 hours to wait before halting work.

The offer by the city is for a 7½ per cent wage increase beginning Jan. 1, 1971 and a further 7½ per cent Jan. 1, 1972.

Haddock said the city's offer will cost taxpayers $1.5 million. The offer, he said, is well above the rise in the cost of living since the last contract.

One area of dispute between the union and the city is the wage scale for temporary or casual laborers who get a lower wage than regular class I laborers.

The casual scale is used for summer employees and for new laborers during the first six months of employment. The offered casual wage is $3.17 an hour compared with the class I wage of $3.33.

Increases offered include 25 cents in 1971 and again in 1972 on the 1970 rate of $3.08 an hour for class I laborers, and 38 cents and 29 cents on $3.48 for journeymen mechanics.

A letter sent by the city to all employees affected says there is no guarantee that retroactivity will be made if a strike is held. Losses for the four-month period beginning Jan. 1 would be $174 for laborers, $264.48 to journeymen mechanics and $320.16 to foremen.

●

The earliest time when 72-hour strike notice can be served by the union is sometime Friday, after mediation officer Clark Gilmour produces a final report.

An agreement between the city and inside workers who are also members of CUPE does not require the inside workers to cross picket lines.

BANISHED from Sealand because of her lusty aggression is 17-foot-long Nootka, who was hoisted out of the whale pool today by a 65-ton crane. Nootka left Victoria International Airport on a jet freight, en route to California where she will be the only killer whale at the Japanese Village and Deer Park near Los Angeles. Nootka was sold because, having become sexually mature, she started taking over the pool when Haida, the much-younger male killer whale failed to respond to her attentions. It was feared that Nootka's dominance was causing tension to the young white killer whale Chimo, a female.

Barrier Still In Doubt

Royal Victoria Yacht Club's determined battle to build a breakwater in Cadboro Bay may not yet be won, despite approval by municipal council Tuesday night.

Dr. Ross Henry, most vociferous foe of the breakwater concept since its inception, said today the breakwater "still has a number of hurdles to clear" before it is built.

A long and bitter argument over permission to build the rock breakwater ended officially, so far as council is concerned, when it voted 4-3 Tuesday to support the club's application to the department of transport.

The vote came after arguments by all members of council were heard on the subject. Bitterest opponent of the breakwater on council was Mayor Frances Elford, who suggested a "year or two delay" for hydraulic testing before the application was approved.

Also opposed were aldermen Alan Hoey and John Goult. Voting in favor were aldermen Douglas Watts, Brian Smith, Norman Pimlott and Shirley Dowell.

Henry, 3295 Beach Drive, told the Times the club faces opposition in financing of the plan — and opponents to the breakwater concept — within the department of transport.

'SMART PEOPLE'

"The DOT has some smart people. There is a fair possibility they won't approve the idea on the question of height alone," Henry said.

The breakwater, to cost an estimated $160,000, would stand an average six feet above water level. It would run 600 feet into Cadboro Bay off the entrance to Loon Bay.

"We wish to commend Mayor Elford for her clear and determined stand for the interests of Oak Bay municipality as a whole," Henry said.

Other members of council, who supported the proposal, were either "insufficiently informed, lacking in understanding or unable to perceive the broad picture of what is best for Oak Bay . . . or they were politically motivated," Henry said.

"The breakwater is not yet built, and an expression from Oak Bay taxpayers might still be effective . . . to prevent this disaster."

LAWYER OBJECTS

A brief skirmish erupted during the council meeting when Ald. Dowell questioned the authenticity of a petition circulated by breakwater opponents.

Lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, representing the opposition, told council Ald. Dowell had made a "personal attack" on him and asked for a withdrawal of her remarks. "I don't withdraw anything I said," Ald. Dowell said.

After the meeting, engineer John Graeme, chairman of the club's breakwater committee, expressed cautious optimism at the council decision.

"We are pleased with the decision and by the very fair treatment afforded us by council," Graeme said.

Master Plan Charge 'Absolutely Ridiculous'

Oak Bay alderman Shirley Dowell came under fire this morning for an attack Tuesday night in which she accused "a handful of rebels" of disrupting the University of Victoria campus.

Referring to a "smear campaign" against Uvic president Bruce Partridge, Mrs. Dowell said she was "absolutely appalled" at the situation.

She named former student president Norman Wright and said the disruptions were "part of a master plan by Mr. Wright to overthrow the administration."

Mrs. Dowell said she had called the university and been given information about Wright. More than $6,000 "of taxpayers money" has already been used by him, she said, "to cause this unrest."

'PETULANT'

Wright this morning denied the charge he had used $6,000 to create unrest as "absolutely ridiculous."

"Mrs. Dowell's petulant remarks about me contain the full quota of innuendo which has become the hallmark of recent statements by both the university administration and those who speak on their behalf.

"Her limited experience of public affairs must be to blame for the fact that she can totally misinterpret the events on this campus as a 'master plan' by any individual," he said.

'UNIMPORTANT'

Faculty Association president Dr. Charles Doyle also rallied to Wright's defence, although he dismissed Mrs. Dowell's accusations as "unimportant."

"It seemed to me she was probably just airing her prejudices," Doyle said. "She can't have close and accurate information about the situation.

"She talks about Partridge being smeared. That's kind of a smear in itself."

Oak Bay council also received a petition signed by Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Wolfe and 15 other residents of the municipality.

It said:

"Because of the proximity of the University of Victoria to Oak Bay, the quality of that university must surely reflect on our community . . .

"As things stand now this university has been censured by the executive of the CAUT. If the full Council of the CAUT accepts the officials' recommendations and censures the University of Victoria, the effect on the university and its students will be drastic. Degrees which are obtained only after the expenditure of much effort, time and money will be markedly devalued. A graduate from a university with a better name will definitely have the edge over a University of Victoria student.

"All of us who can read know that two or three years ago our local newspapers, the Daily Colonist and the Victoria Daily Times, gave us glowing enthusiastic accounts of the new president of the university and his superlative qualifications. Everyone was very happy — Uvic would grow to be a credit to Victoria, to British Columbia and to Canada. What has happened since then? Where are those exceptional qualifications? Why have the governors of the university not offered the citizens any reasons, or excuses, or remedies for this fiasco?

"How can we expect the younger generation to have any respect for us older ones if we do not take a stand on this important issue? The young people are the chief losers — but we too lose something if we do nothing. We lose some of our integrity. We, the undersigned, ask council to take a look at the situation and make your position known to the board of governors."

Visitor Dies In Canyon Fall

A 28-year-old man believed to have fallen 150 feet was found dead Tuesday at Niagara Canyon in Goldstream provincial park.

Colwood RCMP identified him as Frank Pretula who is from out-of-town and had been visiting his mother Donna Pretula, 923 McLure.

A 32-year-old German tourist, Herbert Otto Hohans, died in a fall from the same cliff less than a year ago.

Pretula's body was found by hikers at 1:30 p.m., at the bottom of the canyon a few feet from a pool of water. It is believed there were no witnesses.

A provincial parks branch official said warning signs have been posted and painted on rocks in the Canyon area. But guard rails along the trail will not be put up.

This is impractical, he said, for many spots on the trail are dangerous. This is the case with many trails in provincial parks.

Parks director Robert Ahrens said policy is not to erect guard rails.

"In the end, we each must be responsible for our own safety," Ahrens said.

Man Dies From Burns

A landlord who attempted to rescue an 80-year-old man killed in a house fire Sunday morning died in Royal Jubilee Hospital late Tuesday afternoon.

Edwin Kaye, 69, had been in poor condition with burns to his face and body since the fire at his home at 1016 Queens.

He had attempted to save tenant Ernest Greenwood from his upstairs room and was found lying outside the room.

Faculty Vote Aid For 3 in Dispute

The Faculty Association at the University of Victoria authorized at a general meeting Tuesday night establishment of a legal aid fund for three faculty members involved in a tenure and contract dispute with the administration.

The motion to create a legal aid fund of $1,000 on behalf of Dr. Tikam Jain, Dr. William Goede and Toby Graff drew overwhelming support, a spokesman said this morning.

The fund was authorized for administration by the executive of the association.

"There was feeling that the association should put a legal counsel on retainer," the spokesman said.

Jain, Goede and Graff have been involved in a lengthy and complex dispute since last year. Their cases have been central issues in student and faculty discontent which has produced votes of non-confidence in president Bruce Partridge.

Later Tuesday night Dr. Charles Doyle was elected new president of the association, succeeding Don Harvey.

Esquimalt Gets Sewerage Loan

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has approved a $100,000 loan for part of the Capital Regional District's sewerage work in Esquimalt, Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson said today.

The loan, repayable over 15 years, will go towards the $150,000 cost of three pump stations and 2,650 feet of four-inch and six-inch forcemains in the dockyard and Craigflower-Admirals areas.

AT INTERVALS through the years, I have uttered dolorous croaks about the state of affairs along Vancouver Island's great north road. Now Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich has discovered that all is not as it should be, what with car graveyards, unsightly industrial blotches, and suchlike visual pollution.

But Mayor Hugh's outburst didn't cover enough territory. It set Nanaimo, the self-proclaimed bathtub capital of North America, Lord help us, as its northern limit, whereas the unsightlier aspects of rural sprawl don't end there.

Except for too-brief interludes, the traveller who seeks relief from roadside clutter needn't hope for it until he has left Campbell River behind and is well along the blacktop that leads to Kelsey Bay.

I don't really expect the municipalities concerned, or the provincial government itself, to do much about ribbon development as it has multiplied along our Trans-Canada and Island Highways. As a matter of fact, there's little that they can do.

Plant some trees, maybe. Persuade the operators of junk car middens to build highway-fronting fences . . . which, come to think of it, would hardly contribute to the pleasures of a run north. Preserve buffer zones along reaches where private enterprise in one form or another has so far failed to rear its head.

Otherwise, a return of the highway strip to sylvan semblance could only be brought about through a wholesale pushing-back of man's works from the verges. That would call for massive expropriation, a remedy which I for one would find much worse than the ailment.

The sort of thing that offended the Saanich mayor's vision didn't come about overnight. It is the product of many years during which population increase wasn't paced by municipal or senior government planning. I suspect that it also offers a preview of the Vancouver Island east coast future.

More population. More clutter. And eventually, as already heavy traffic pressures increase, a drastically revised highway which for much of its length will forsake the coast for points inland.

Meanwhile, I wish Mayor Curtis well in his attempt to remove eyesores from our present route, which I love most dearly in spite of its faults and flaws.

If he can do no more than persuade Mayor Frank Ney of the Bathtub Capital to yank out that roadside sign advertising his city's claim to fame, I'll be grateful!

Here's a letter from Victoria artist-designer Barbara Burns, who feels that craftsmen of this area would fare better if their individual efforts at marketing their work could be replaced by a co-operative venture.

"Surely the best reward the craftsmen could hope for," she writes, "is more exposure and sale of their work throughout British Columbia and abroad."

As a means of bringing this about, she suggests a B.C. design and craft centre, to be operated on a non-profit basis. It would function as a clearing house where dealers could select and purchase work for future retailing.

"Screened B.C. crafts carrying a seal of quality on them would encourage the artist to improve his product," Mrs. Burns points out.

"Only in this way can the oft shy, non-salesman artist feel he has a distribution centre, along with 'if not approved, why not' control over what he produces. Surely with so much talent under our noses, it wouldn't be asking too much to promote such a craft distribution centre."

Would the producing craftsman reap worthwhile benefits if one were organized here? What, if any, are the difficulties he would encounter?

I'll welcome a breakdown from any craft-occupied reader who may have dealt with such a centre elsewhere.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rapeseed prices continued on declines at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today as commission house liquidation met limited buyer support.

Trade in rapeseed was generally limited to inter-month spreading while flax had small exporter buying on commission house selling.

Oats, barley and rye had domestic shipper and miller activity and prices fluctuated marginally.

Tuesday's export wheat loadings included 552,000 bushels to Britain, 489,000 to Japan, 765,000 to The Netherlands, 30,000 to the Philippines, 5,000 to Singapore.

Volume of trade Tuesday was 427,000 bushels of flax, 936,000 of rapeseed, 275,000 of rye.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat all were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP — A late rally accompanied by short-covering nearly erased a 1-cent loss in soybean futures on the Board of Trade Wednesday.

Corn futures, which also held a loss of around 1 cent at one time, closed on an irregular tone. Wheat futures gained around ¾ of a cent and oats advanced around ½ cent. Soybean oil prices were lower but meal gained a few points.

Reports that field work in preparation for seeding of corn and soybeans was far ahead at this time compared with last year brought wide selling or corn and soybeans futures and losses of around 1 cent a bushel. Later, corn futures recovered but beans continued along a weak vein.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto, N.Y. Down Again

Prices were on the downswing today for the second consecutive day on the New York and Toronto markets. The Dow Jones average was down four points at one point in the day but closed three points off.

The London market was steady to firmer while Vancouver was mixed in moderate trading.

In Montreal, most prices gained, but banks and papers were among declining issues.

AT TORONTO, prices on the stock market were mixed to sharply lower near the close.

Falconbridge dropped 4½ to $147, Fraser 1⅝ to $16⅝, Occidental Pete 1⅝ to $20, Chrysler 1¼ to $31 and Consumers Distributing 1 to $22½.

Reed Shaw Osler climbed 1 to $25¼, Home A ⅞ to $29⅝, Quebec Telephone ¾ to $14¼, Keilsey-Hayes ¾ to $10½ and Skyline ⅝ to 9½.

AT NEW YORK, the stock market appeared to be firming in late-session trading although prices still remained below Tuesday's figures. Volume was increasing from earlier levels.

Declines outnumbered advances on the New York Stock Exchange by 8 to 5. Earlier in the day, the ratio had been 2 to 1.

Analyists said the profit-taking pressure was being partially cancelled by increased buying interest.

Store Sales Up 10 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Department store sales totalled $168.7 million in February, an increase of 10 per cent from $153.4 million in February last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

All provinces registered increases, and the biggest increases were in women's and misses' sportswear, TV, radio and music, and men's clothing.

Chain stores reported $727.8 million in sales, up nine per cent from a year earlier, with the largest growth in service stations and garages, followed by fuel dealers.

Bank Head, Stockbrokers Indicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former president of a New Jersey bank and four stockbrokers were indicted Tuesday in connection with an alleged scheme to use $10 million in bank funds to purchase stock in 26 corporations.

The indictment said the plan involved purchase of more than $200 million worth of common stocks between July 1, 1969, and Aug. 7, 1970.

Named in the indictment was Douglas James Schotte, former president of the Eatontown National Bank in Eatontown, N.J.

The bank was closed last August by federal bank examiners.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

PSALM 23.

Shattered wreckage of locomotives blocks CPR main line 55 miles north of Calgary

VICTIMS LEAP CLEAR, DIE IN EXPLOSION

Flaming Train Collision Kills Two Crewmen

BOWDEN, Alta. (CP) — A tank car of liquid butane still was burning today after two freight trains collided head-on Tuesday night, killing two trainmen who had jumped from the engine seconds before the impact.

Police said the collision about 55 miles north of Calgary started fires in one of the engines, the tank car, two box cars carrying kegs of beer, one carrying lumber, an empty flatcar and one loaded with fertilizer.

The victims, identified as engineman A. E. Lewis, 48, and fireman Colin Gradley, 42, both of Calgary, jumped clear of their northbound train just before the collision but were burned to death in a sheet of flame that extended 500 feet from the tank car of butane.

The freight train collision started a fire in the first engine unit of the northbound train, which was tilted into the air by the second engine unit.

Just behind the engines was a box car carrying beer kegs which punctuated the crash scene with persistent, though relatively harmless explosions as the shaken-up beer blew out of its containers.

Firemen and rescue workers concentrated on the burning tank car carrying 6,000 barrels of butane.

A Canadian Pacific Railway spokesman said today normal rail service would resume Thursday. A southbound day-liner between Edmonton and Calgary had not reached Red Deer at the time of the crash. Passengers were being bussed between Red Deer and Calgary.

Traffic on Highway 2 resumed after RCMP had diverted cars to country roads Tuesday night.

People evacuated from nearby homes after the crash returned when it was learned a tank car was carrying phosphate fertilizer, not ammonium phosphate which would have been poisonous if it had ignited.

Four persons were slightly injured in the crash and released from hospital. There were five crew members on each train.

The collision was the second incident in fewer than four hours on the same line.

400,000 Flee East Pakistan To India Towns

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The India - Pakistan diplomatic war was on the boil today as the number of refugees fleeing to India from Pakistan was reported to have topped the 400,000 mark.

An official report issued in Calcutta, capital of India's West Bengal state bordering East Pakistan, said more than 300,000 persons had sought refuge in Bengal state alone since the central Pakistan government cracked down on secessionist moves in East Pakistan March 25.

No official figures were available for the number of East Pakistanis entering other Indian states and territories bordering East Pakistan on its eastern side but observers estimated it must be around 100,000.

The Press Trust of India news agency reported heavy fighting in the Sylhet region in the northeast, which it said was almost entirely under secessionist control.

India turned down Tuesday night a Pakistani demand that it remove East Pakistanis who have assumed control of the Pakistan deputy high commission in Calcutta, proclaiming that it now represented the so-called Republic of Bangla Desh (Bengali nation), proclaimed by secessionist leaders.

DEMANDS REMOVAL

The Pakistan high commissioner in New Delhi, Sajjad Hyder, who demanded the removal, was told that the affair was an "internal matter" for Pakistan.

A. K. Ray, joint secretary in the foreign ministry, said the Indian government had no objection to a senior member of the Pakistan high commission in New Delhi going to Calcutta to take up the post of deputy high commissioner.

Mahdi Masud was named by the high commission to replace Hossain Ali, an East Bengali, who declared last Sunday that he and his staff had switched allegiance to Bangla Desh.

Pakistan also accused India of organizing the hijacking of an Indian airliner to Pakistan in January in order to bring about a confrontation between the two countries and strengthen separatist tendencies within Pakistan.

India banned flights by Pakistani aircraft over the 1,000 miles of Indian territory separating East and West Pakistan after the Fokker Friendship aircraft was hijacked to Lahore Jan. 30 while on a flight over Kashmir.

PACIFIC RIM PARK OFFICIALLY NAMED

CALGARY (CP)—A new national park on the west coast of Vancouver Island will be called Pacific Rim National Park, it was announced today.

R. P. Malis, western regional director of the National and Historic Parks Branch, said in a prepared statement the park will include Long Beach, the Effingham Islands and the West Coast Trail.

Malis said the park, in French, would be called Parc National Pacific Rim.

1,800 Delegates To Pick NDP Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,800 delegates massed today to select a new NDP leader and assemble a policy platform bridging heated controversy on issues ranging from nationalism and nationalization to Quebec's problems.

Under gray skies, just across a road from the old Coliseum where the party was born almost 10 years ago, the NDP faithful assembled without the fanfare or high-spirited fervor usually associated with North American leadership contests.

The note of single-minded dedication to business was emphasized early today with approval for an amendment to the agenda that will bring delegates to Parliament Hill Thursday to protest against plant closures and high unemployment.

Al Campbell of London, Ont., proposed the amendment, saying he was being laid off soon by Eaton Automotive Corp. He is a delegate representing a local of the United Auto Workers, one of the big trade union delegations expected to have a major impact on convention policy, particularly in rebuffing left-wing policy as espoused by the militant Waffle group.

Today's policy discussion concerns farming, fishing and labor.

FIVE SEEK LEADERSHIP

Five candidates seek to replace T. C. Douglas, the former CCF Saskatchewan premier who led the New Defocratic Party at its founding in 1961.

The new leader will be elected Saturday.

In the running are David Lewis, 61, now deputy to Mr. Douglas; Edward Broadbent, 35, MP for Oshawa-Whitby; John Harney, 40, York University professor; Frank Howard, 45, MP for the British Columbia riding of Skeena; and James Laxer, 29, Queen's University lecturer from Kingston.

Mr. Lewis is widely expected to lead on the first ballot.

MAY SHIFT VOTES

But as delegates shift their votes on succeeding ballots, the other candidates give themselves good odds to win.

The delegates are to meet all the candidates at a bearpit session tonight.

Monarchy End Gradual —Marceau

(Times News Services)

RIMOUSKI, Que. — A Quebec member of the parliamentary committee on the constitution says he doubts the committee will recommend "the aboliton of the monarchy right now."

But Gilles Marceau, Liberal member of Parliament for Lapointe, said he thinks the committee's report will recommend reforms leading in the "direction" of abolishing the monarchy.

In an earlier interview Marceau denied published reports that the committee was ready to recommend immediate abolition of the monarchy in Canada. "No one knows for sure what will be in the report," he said.

"We are still at the stage of public hearings," he added.

'LEAKED' NEWS

Published reports from Quebec City said Marceau and three other members of the committee leaked news of the planned recommendation at a routine hearing in Quebec City Monday night.

Marceau said Tuesday no member of the committee has declared what the report will recommend.

However, he said:

"I did tell a journalist Monday night in Quebec that I was personally in favor of abolition of the monarchy, but that was only a personal opinion."

The published reports quoted Warren Allmand, Liberal MP for Montreal—Notre-Dame-de-Grace, as saying "three-quarters of the members of the joint committee are against the monarchy."

Neither Allmand nor other members of the committee could be reached for comment Tuesday.

The committee, composed of both senators and MPs, is currently holding public hearings for views on the constitution.

Marceau said he was not sure when the report would be presented as it would depend on how much time the members had to spend in Parliament.

Rising Waters Threaten Montreal Island Residents

MONTREAL (CP) — Floodwaters along the northern side of Montreal Island rose a further two feet overnight and civil protection officials warned that with forecast intermittent rain today the situation could reach critical levels by nightfall.

Specially-trained armed forces personnel and Quebec government engineers moved in Tuesday to areas where some families have been evacuated and hundreds of homes partially flooded. Many buildings in inundated sections along rivers and lakes are unoccupied summer cottages.

However, at least 50 families have had to leave their homes in a handful of hard-hit suburban communities. Further evacuations were threatened today.

Hardest hit were low-lying communities on Laval Island, adjacent to Montreal Island. However suburban Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Chateauguay and Ile Perrot have also been severely affected by the flooding that was the result of warm temperatures after a record winter of snowfall in the region.

Communities north and west of the city have been threatened by rising waters from the Ottawa River since late Monday.

OTTAWA RISES

On Ile Perrot, west of Montreal Island in the junction of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers, a flood control centre said levels were approaching the danger point.

Armed forces advisors and provincial engineers were advising residents and local civil protection units in the various areas affected on how best to stop the rising waters.

Some attempts were being made to construct dikes while homeowners began piling sandbags.

The situation this year is being described as the worse in at least a decade.

OLENIK GETS 13-YEAR TERM

TORONTO (CP) — William Lawrence Olenik, 25, of Vancouver, charged in connection with a rash of cat burglaries, pleaded guilty today and was sentenced to a total of 13 years in prison.

Olenik faced 39 charges involving thefts at 73 city homes since Jan. 1. He also admitted to stealing cars from 23 of the homes.

The cat burglaries caught the public interest because the victims failed to awaken, dogs failed to bark and the thief helped himself to food and in one home, beer. At another home, the thief played with an electric train.

Calgary Schools Closed by Strike

CALGARY (CP) — More than 78,000 students were forced out on the streets today as 3,900 teachers officially went on strike in a contract dispute with the Calgary public school board.

It was the first teachers' strike in the city's history and closed 164 schools while keeping more than 1,000 non-teaching employees out of work.

Negotiations have not resumed between the board and Alberta Teachers Association following the collapse of mediation talks Tuesday.

However, Henry Libke of Edmonton, conciliation officer for the board of industrial relations, was scheduled to hold separate meetings with both sides later today in an attempt to bring them together.

Meanwhile, officials of Calgary's separate school board said they cannot accommodate children from public schools, even temporarily.

More than 21,000 separate students are continuing classes because their 975 teachers settled on a two-year contract in February.

However, separate students attending Calgary's two schools for retarded children are without classes because

Lon Nol Agrees To Stay in Office

PHNOM PENH (Reuter) — Cambodian Premier Lon Nol has agreed to form a new government after tendering his resignation, official sources said today.

Gen. Nol offered his resignation Tuesday to Chief of State Cheng Heng for health reasons, but it was not immediately accepted.

The sources said Cheng Heng had urged Nol to reconsider his resignation and gave him three days to put together a new government. They added that Nol agreed.

A joint session of the Senate and National Assembly voted today to promote Nol to the country's first marshal of the army.

Nol is partly paralysed from a stroke he suffered Feb. 1.

Manila Court: Mendoza Guilty

MANILA (Reuter) — Bolivian painter Benjamin Mendoza was convicted Tuesday of attempting to kill Pope Paul at Manila International Airport Nov. 26.

Judge Pedro Bautista of the suburban Pasay city court sentenced Mendoza to imprisonment from two years, four months and one day to four years and two months.

CLAMPING HIS TEETH on leg of secretary Annette Eckis is Shamu, 7,000-pound killer whale at San Diego's Sea World. The 22-year-old girl had fallen off the killer whale's back during a ride at the marine park, then suffered leg punctures when Shamu bit her. Annette, who had ridden the whale previously, said she thought it was playing. "He could have tightened his grip and pulled me to the bottom of the tank," she said. Stitches were needed to close the teeth punctures. (AP Wirephoto).

Course Set

CAIRO (AP) — The Soviet Union and Egypt said today they have charted a joint course of action on the Middle East crisis but did not spell it out. "The two sides have agreed on joint steps for the future to return the Middle East situation to normal," they said in a joint communique.

FIRST REPORT TO CONGRESS

Prisoners Tortured

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee has heard for the first time testimony that U.S. soldiers participated in or witnessed the torture of prisoners of war in their custody in South Vietnam.

Larry Rottmann, a spokesman for Vietnam Veterans Against the War, told the House of Representatives foreign affairs subcommittee Tuesday he personally knew of skin-stripping, pole-hanging and water torture of Vietnamese soldiers captured by Americans.

"Incidents like My Lai are not isolated," he said. "They are the result of de facto military policy in Indochina."

The session before the subcommittee amounted to the kind of atrocity hearing war opponents in and out of Congress have demanded of formal congressional committees but had not received.

Rottmann, who said he was a lieutenant in Vietnam with the 25th Infantry Division, also detailed a

Charlie Chan Returns in Vancouver-Shot Pilot Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Happiness is like molasses—though sweet, it is slow to pour."

"When money speaks, all listen."

"Happiness is a warm clue."

Do these aphorisms sound familiar? They should, to those who remember movies of the 1930s or who have seen them on the late show. Such sayings come from the mouth of the indomitable sleuth Charlie Chan, who is to be seen on television in a new version.

The new "Charlie Chan" will be a World Premiere presentation which NBC will air in the 1971-72 season. Naturally, the production company, Universal, hopes that honorable pilot will result in a regular weekly series.

So does Ross Martin.

He's the actor chosen to portray the eighth film manifestation of Earl Derr Biggers' Chinese detective.

"I'd be delighted if the series is sold," says the accomplished character actor. "I've had it with being Mr. Sidekick in series starring other actors."

COULD CHANGE LUCK

He assumed the role of second banana in Mr. Lucky, starring John Vyvian, and then was cast as support to Robert Conrad in Wild Wild West.

Charlie Chan could change Martin's luck. It is an up-to-date version of the film series that began with George Kuwa in a 1926 serial. Kamiyama Sojin played Chan in 1928, but the played Chan in 1928, but the detective reached his greatest fame with the Fox movies starring Warner Oland. Sidney Toler took over after Oland's death, then Roland Winters. J. Carroll Naish did an early TV version.

"I play Chan at age 65," Martin related. "He has been retired from the Honolulu police force for 10 years, and he is lured out of retirement for a fascinating case in Vancouver.

"Now he is on his own; he doesn't have the facilities of the Honolulu police to help him. The question is: Can he make it on his own as a private detective?

Naturally. But not before a maze of clues and a dozen or son and his daughter, as well as anyone else who will listen. so sage sayings to his No. 8 The film was made in Vancouver for more than $1 million, big money for a two-hour TV show.

Ship Buzzed

TOKYO (Reuter) — Three jet fighters of the Japanese self-defence force mistakenly buzzed a Soviet destroyer during manoeuvres last month off southern Japan, the defence agency said Tuesday. The fighters March 10 passed over a Soviet destroyer at 500 feet. The foreign ministry apologized to the Soviet embassy in Tokyo which accepted the apology, the spokesman said.
